$10,000 Reward, Not Dead.
Abolishing Bryant.
W. R. Hearst in London.
Fine Coin, Good Motto.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT, having tried and failed, offers $10,000 for "getting" the bandit, Dillinger; $5,000 for capturing his aide, "Baby Face" Nelson. Nothing is said of getting them "dead or alive," for government could not pay for killing somebody not yet convicted even though he may have 15 or 20 murders to his credit. You are expected to "arrest" Dillinger, which might not be easy.

You get half the reward for information enabling authorities to capture the desperado. It is unpleasant to reflect that dozens of Americans know, or have known, where Dillinger and his gang are, and have refrained from telling for fear of personal injuries, or worse, because of admiration of the professional "killers."

DEAN COOMBS, of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, says the colleges are turning out twice as many graduates as there are jobs for them to fill, and hears that "lack of employment opportunities will compel the great majority of college graduates to be satisfied with menial and inferior positions."

The possibility in the long run may be an excellent thing for the college graduate. Often a "mean, inferior position" is a good "college" on its own account. Lincoln, Edison, many others graduated from such positions.

A COLLEGE education uses up four years of opportunity in which a young man might have established himself satisfactorily. Many young men from college, now wondering what to do, need not have wondered had they gone to work four years ago. And had they chosen to do so they could have acquired an education while working. You need not play football, baseball or yell college yells to find out what is in books.

A MAN can acquire knowledge if he will. William Cullen Bryant, born in a New Hampshire log house, wanted to go to Yale; his father could not afford it. He studied Greek for a year under the Rev. Moses Hallock, and two months after he began studying the Greek alphabet he had read the New Testament through, in Greek.

By the way, it is proposed in New York that the name of William Cullen Bryant, a really great and noble American, be removed from "Bryant Park," a small area separating the big Fifth Avenue Public Library from Sixth avenue. Some patriot of the late war says "Bryant is out of date," and asks the city to rename the park "Lost Battalion Park."

EVERYTHING SHOULD be done to honor the memory of good fighters, but it should be done without offending the memory of a most distinguished American, one, by the way, to whom New York City owes the existence of its Central Park, one of the finest in the world.

George Washington, as regards years, is "out of date," and so is Lincoln but you would not rename the Washington Monument after Belleau Wood, or change Lincoln highway to "Pershing highway," however great your admiration for the head of our fighting forces in Europe.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, talking in London to a reporter for Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express, and asked "what changes impressed you in Europe since your last visit three years ago," replied, expressing surprise at the improvement in British conditions:

"The one thing that I notice most is the great improvement in England's prosperity—the great improvement in the mental attitude of people here. There is no longer a depression, and people are no longer depressed."

That will interest Americans, but business men especially, also Mr. Hearst's statement:

"When the crisis in England became sufficiently severe, the business men of England, the statesmen got together and devised a co-operative plan and pulled the nation through, and that co-operation has kept the situation continually improving, and I believe, will keep it improving. We should exercise the same intelligence in the United States."

Concerning American conditions, Mr. Hearst said:

"Mr. Roosevelt is an admirable man. I like him much

Blonde, 22, Accusing Premier

New Clue Reveals Missing Bride in Hiding

NORMA SOBS TRAGIC LOVE STORY

MISS VIVIAN MacMILLAN . . . . . SUING ALBERTA'S PREMIER

Miss MacMillan, whose suit for unstated damages from Alberta's Premier John E. Brownlee, comes up today in the provincial high court at Edmonton. The Premier's cross-suing her and her father. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

PREMIER TRIED ON GIRL CHARGE

International News Service.

EDMONTON, Alta., June 25.—The most sensational court drama in the history of Canadian jurisprudence will begin unfolding here today—the suit of pretty, blonde, 22-year-old Vivian MacMillan and her father, A. D. MacMillan, former Mayor of Edson, against Premier John E. Brownlee, 50, for 13 years a minister of the crown and for nine years head of Alberta's provincial government.

In their suit Vivian and her father charge enticement and seduction over a period of two and one-half years.

In the fall of 1930, the suit alleges, the premier induced his attorney general's pretty stenographer to accompany him motoring. On a lonely country road, they claim, Premier Brownlee, "laughing at Vivian's old-fashioned scruples," seduced the girl.

From that date on the statesman is alleged to have had a number of trysts with the pretty girl, telling her his wife was an invalid, that he was a lonely, unhappy man, and that it was her patriotic duty to give herself to the man who carried the great burdens of state on his shoulders.

Youthful 'Tarzan' Plunges to Death

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 25.—(INS.)—Playing the part of the fictional jungle-lord, Tarzan, ended tragically today for 9-year-old Ronald Wheeler, of near Emlenton.

Ronald, swinging from a grapevine across a deep ravine, lost his balance and plunged 50 feet to a rocky base. He died shortly after being rushed to Franklin Hospital.

Policemen Warned On Street Litter

Orders for policemen to enforce regulations against throwing refuse on the streets or face suspension were issued today by Acting Police Superintendent Jacob Dorsey.

Dorsey said the police have not been enforcing the orders against dumping papers, cans, ashes and other rubbish in city streets.

BANK CASHIER'S HOME SOLD

The house of Hazel Weigel, the former Elizabeth bank cashier, has been sold to make up for some of the funds which disappeared with her nine months ago, it was learned today.

Miss Weigel lived in a well-furnished home in Pangburn Hollow, Elizabeth, where she was assistant cashier of the State Bank of Elizabeth.

The property was sold at sheriff's sale to A. G. Rothey, of Elizabeth, for approximately $2,000. Judgment was obtained against the property for the estate of a Negro whose account was one of those on the juggling list discovered with the disappearance of the 43-year-old spinster.

The shortages which coincide with Miss Weigel's disappearance eventually reached $20,000, which was fully covered by bond.

Miss Weigel, who had been a respected and trusted employe of the bank for 17 years, later mailed back $3,000 from Arizona. But her whereabouts remain a secret.

Nephew of Pope Engaged to Marry

VATICAN CITY, June 25.—(AP.)—The engagement of Count Franco Ratti, president of the Vatican City administrative council and nephew of Pope Pius, to marry Angela Maria Crespi, the daughter of Senator Silvio Crespi, of Milan, was announced today. The Pope himself may perform the ceremony.

M'NAIR HINTS INCINERATOR DEAL GRAFT

Wants to Know Who's Going to Get The $70,000

Mayor McNair today hinted graft in selection of a site for a municipal garbage incinerator plant at Reedsdale and Chateau streets and demanded a list of stockholders of the company owning the property.

The Mayor's flare against the proposed deal to purchase a site owned by the Pittsburgh Forgings Company came when he was visited by a delegation of property owners and two ministers protesting against acquisition of the site.

To them the Mayor declared:

"Who's going to get the $70,000 graft, because that's all it is? It (the site) isn't worth $10,000. Find out who owns the Pittsburgh Forgings Company. Find out who gets the money and this will all die down."

He added:

"Well I think it is a rotten deal."

MAYOR'S DEMAND

McNair followed up his statement by sending a letter to Edwin Hodge, Jr., president of the forgings company, stating that public suspicion had been aroused by the proposed purchase and asking for a list of stockholders as those who would benefit by the transaction.

An ordinance appropriating $70,000 for purchase of the property was to be acted on finally this afternoon. The company had asked $80,000, but Council apparently thought the price could be reduced.

When informed of the Mayor's charges Hodge laughed. He said:

"We have between 900 and 1,000 shareholders and if the Mayor wants to look them over he's welcome to."

RIDICULES CHARGES

Hodge ridiculed the Mayor's graft charges. He said:

"This offer is an absolutely bona-fide proposition. The property is worth much more than we are asking the city for."

Previously Hodge had appeared before Council and explained why the company asks $80,000 when he had testified a year ago in assessment proceedings that the

Aylesworth Lauds Young as Citizen

VAN HORNESVILLE, N. Y., June 25.—(AP.)—Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, today asked 17 graduating students of Van Hornesville Central School, to became "true, participating members of this great nation—American citizens."

Speaking at commencement exercises in the school, given to the village by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric Company, Aylesworth praised Young as a typical real American citizen. Mr. Young presided.

Girl Swept Over Falls, Rescued At Ohiopyle

Miss Helen Springer, 19, of Clairton, was recovering from shock at her home today following her experience of being swept over the falls in the Youghiogheny River at Ohiopyle into the whirlpool below.

Two hundred persons who witnessed the accident were horror-stricken as the girl was whirled in the eddies.

A group of rescuers clambered over the rough rocks jutting from the water to a point of vantage where they could reach the victim of the maelstrom.

After many futile efforts one of the men was able to grab hold of the girl's clothing. She was lifted from the water apparently lifeless.

Dr. E. E. Phillips, of Ohiopyle, member of a group of picnickers, started artificial respiration. After 45 minutes the girl was revived and was taken home in her father's automobile.

Miss Springer slipped and fell as she was wading in the river yesterday, and the strong current swept her over the falls.

'LIFE TERRIBLE, DEATH EASY'

"Lived terribly—died EASY."

These were the words contained in a note left by a man who jumped from Brown's Bridge into the Monongahela River early today. The note carried the name of William J. Jackson, a resident of Shantytown, near the bridge, police said.

William Thompson, 123 West Twelfth street, Homestead, told police he found the note with a man's hat as he crossed the bridge.

A full description of himself was given by the man, who said he lived in a shack for three years. He told of having two brothers killed at the front in the World War and of a sister living in Buffalo, N. Y., whom he did not want notified. The note read:

"I'm sick, hungry, homeless, and out of a job."

It continued:

"I will now jump 50 feet from shore. God bless me."

Zaro Agha, 'Oldest Man,' Near Death

ISTANBUL, June 25.—(INS.)—The Children's Hospital here has a patient 160 years old. He is the famous Zaro Agha, who made a trip to the United States after his 150th year.

Because of his advanced age hospital authorities hold little hope for his recovery. Zaro Agha is said to recognize that, but to be far more disturbed by his realization that some of the doctors doubted that he is as old as he claims to be.

Fatal Crash Ends Sunday Auto Picnic

BEDFORD, Pa., June 25.—(AP.)—A Sunday outing by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller came to tragedy in an automobile collision in which one child was killed.

The victim, Charles Snyder, aged 2, was to have been adopted by the Millers. Miller and his wife, their daughter, Leah, and Jean Snyder, sister of the child killed, are patients in a hospital. Police said a bus collided with their car.

Marie Dressler Ill, But 'Not in Danger'

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., June 25.—(AP.)—Improvement in the condition of Marie Dressler, of the films, was noted today by her physician, Dr. F. R. Nuzum, who said she had been "quite ill" from a complication of illnesses, including heart and kidney ailments. Dr. Nuzum said Miss Dressler was in "no immediate danger."

BRIDE ALIVE, NEW CLUE REVEALS

Hunt Turns to Boston As Shop Employe Identifies Photo

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—New York police said they received information today indicating that Agnes Tufverson, missing New York attorney and subject of a sensational international mystery, was alive in Boston as late as June 10.

Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan, in charge of detectives, received a telephone call from Boston police, in which he was informed that a picture of Miss Tufverson had been identified as that of a woman who called at a Boston cleaning shop on May 15 and again between June 1 and 10.

The inspector also made public a letter from Scotland Yard, dated June 15, giving all available data on the London activities of Capt. Ivan Poderjay, who is held in Vienna on a charge of suspicion of murder.

LINKED IN FRAUD

Poderjay married Miss Tufverson shortly before she disappeared last December 20. The letter from London contained a record of his marriage there, nine months earlier, to Marguerite Suzanne Ferrand.

Scotland Yard informed the local police that complaint was lodged against Poderjay last April 25, by John McKenna, who charged he had been defrauded of £1,270 in a foreign exchange deal. McKenna decided later not to press the complaint, the letter said.

A detective left for Hartford, Conn., today, to question an unnamed school teacher who was supposed to have corresponded with Poderjay.

IDENTFIES PHOTO

It was said that positive identification of photographs of Miss Tufverson as those of a woman who had garments cleaned in a Boston shop this month, was made by an employe of the shop.

Mrs. Ruth Hall, who previously had expressed the opinion that a customer of the cleansing establishment strongly resembled published pictures, promptly identified the pictures positively as those of the woman who had visited the establishment on May 15 and again between June 1 and 10.

Furthermore, she said, a dress in which Miss Tufverson was photographed appeared to be the one that was brought to the Boston plant for cleansing. Inasmuch as the establishment specializes in a three-hour cleansing service, no record was kept of addresses.

Vienna Police Tighten Guard on Capt. Poderjay

International News Service.

VIENNA, June 25.—Complete isolation from other prisoners was decreed by the police today for Ivan Poderjay and Marguerite Suzanne Ferrand, the strange couple held in jail here while police of many countries seek a link between them and the disappearance of Miss Agnes Tufverson.

The pair were placed in separate single cells and steps were taken to keep them from any possible contact with other prisoners. Even during their daily exercise walks Poderjay and Mme. Ferrand will be segregated from their fellow prisoners.

Poderjay, alleged international Don Juan and practitioner of weird love rites, is held on suspicion of murder. Miss Tufverson disappeared 16 days after she married Poderjay in New York last December.

Col. Wood's Son Hurt In Fall From Auto

Peter Wood, nine-year-old son of Col. Eric Fisher Wood, Pittsburgh architect, suffered a fractured ankle in a fall from an automobile while riding home from Philadelphia near Bedford yesterday. He was taken to Bedford Hospital and then brought to Pittsburgh.

TELLS JURY OF UNHAPPY MARRIAGE

Soap Put in Mouth For 'Talking Back' to Millen, She Says

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., June 25.—Norma Millen, pretty 19-year-old preacher's daughter and convicted murderer's bride, today confided to a jury the details of an unhappy home life and an unhappier marriage in her fight for freedom against the charge she was an accessory after the Needham Bank robbery and killing of two policemen.

Wiping the tears from her violet eyes and speaking in a continual childish whisper, Norma testified that she was driven into the marriage with Murton Millen because he treated her kindly when she "had no place to go." She testified her father, the former Rev. Norman Brighton, ordered her out of his home because she wanted to go to a dance with Murton.

She said her mother, divorced from the minister, refused to take her into her lodging.

SOBS HER STORY

While the slim, diminutive defendant sobbed quietly, she put no theatrical effects in her testimony other than letting her words—when they could be heard—speak for themselves.

She defended her mother for not taking care of her "because she had no money."

She spoke no direct word against her father, despite the urging of her counsel.

She painted Murton, whom she met at a Nantasket dance hall, as a tender, thoughtful wooer who "did no harm" to her during the period of solicitous courtship and provided shelter and food her her. Norma told of how she kept wavering over the marriage proposal of Murton. Even after she had accepted an engagement ring her mother advised her to marry Murt, she said. She ran away to New York to think it over and try to get a job—but Murton came after her.

TAKEN TO BOSTON

Murton took her back to Boston and they were married within a few days, Norma said.

They were married in a hotel. She didn't even wear the wedding dress her mother gave her.

CHOKER ROUTED FROM BOUDOIR

A mysterious intruder who attempted to throttle Minnie Butch, 26, of 246 Thirty-seventh street, fled from her bedroom early today as the girl screamed.

He fled through a window onto a porch roof, then jumped to the ground and made his escape.

Miss Butch described him as a youth aged about 21. According to her story to police, she had come home from visiting a friend about 1 o'clock, had read for awhile, then had turned off the lights and gone to bed.

Then she became aware that someone else was in the room, she said. The intruder clutched her by the throat. She screamed in terror.

Miss Butch, a waitress, said she believed the intruder had gained entrance to her room earlier in the night and had been hiding under her bed.

35 Striking Caddies Win Boost in Pay

After carrying their own golf clubs for more than two weeks, golfers at the Brackenridge Heights Country Club, Harrison Township, had a load lifted from their shoulders today by the return of 35 caddies who had been on strike for more money.

Club officials report the caddie fee was boosted 20 cents. The caddies now will receive 70 cents for 18 holes.

MERIDIAN, Miss., June 25.—(AP.)—The Ole Miss, single-motored monoplane of the endurance fliers Al and Fred Key, still droned overhead today as the brothers continued their attempt to break the present record of 23 days aloft.

The fliers took off at 7:59 Thursday night from the municipal airport.

Hitler Downfall Near, Writer Declares

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—The New York Post, in the first of three copyrighted articles by Johannes Steel, says today that Adolph Hitler's rule of Germany has come to an end and that the Nazi dictatorship will be succeeded by a military dictatorship.

Steel predicts these steps in Germany:

"1—Tool of forces stronger than himself, Hitler will be stripped of power, possibly within two weeks.

"2—Hjalmar Schacht, real ruler of Germany for the past six months, will remain dictator of economic and commercial policies.

"3—The aged Von Hindenburg will retire.

"4—The former Crown Prince, or one of the Kaiser's grandsons, or Hitler himself, will be made Regent or President.

"5—Franz von Papen or Hermann Wilhelm Goering will become Chancellor.

"6—If Hitler is made President, executive power will be vested in the Chancellor; if a Hohenzollern becomes Regent executive power will be theoretically his.

"7—Fritz Thyssen, steel and power baron, will hold his grip as czar of the Ruhr and Rhine basins."

Astor, Ellen Early Birds At License Bureau

International News Service.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 25.—Right on the dot at the opening of the Newport marriage license bureau, John Jacob Astor, 3rd, and his bride-to-be, Miss Ellen Tuck French, drove up to City Hall today, obtained their marriage license in private, and then departed.

They were the first couple to visit the office today. They were taken into the private office of W. Norman Sayer, clerk of the license bureau. With them was Mrs. Livingston French, the bride-to-be's mother, and her attorney, Cornelius C. Moore.

Astor gave his age as 21 and his occupation as "real estate." Miss French stated she was 18 and gave her occupation as "at home."

The wedding is scheduled for Saturday at Trinity Church.

Socialites at Bailey's Beach today were wondering if Astor had been "hung up" by his 18-year-old fiancee on a swimming date yesterday, or if the whole thing was a ruse to fool newspaper photographers. The camermen were all ready to catch the couple going for a dip in the ocean, but Astor arrived alone, and after waiting around for two hours, sped away in his automobile.

PINCHOT RETURNS TO CAPITAL IN STATE RELIEF CRISIS

GOVERNOR ALSO MUST DECIDE OWN FUTURE

Special Session Call, Candidacy Plans In Balance

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service.
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, June 25.—Returning to the executive offices from a round of fishing at his Milford estate and a reunion with his classmates at Yale, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today was still silent on the possibility of a special session or on his own political future.

The executive's only remark about reports that a special session of the legislature is imminent this summer was to say he was "still hopeful" that federal funds will be made available to continue Pennsylvania's relief load until next year.

He revealed that Eric Biddle, state relief chief, is in Washington today conferring with Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins regarding another $11,500,000 federal grant for July. The Governor said he did not expect to go to Washington. He will remain here until after the Thursday meeting of the relief board, then return to Milford.

FEDERAL JOB RUMOR

Asked about reports that he is being considered for some high federal post, Gov. Pinchot remarked:

"You don't expect me to comment on that do you?"

This week, ending with the last day of June, again brings vividly to the fore the state's critical relief situation with its attendant specter of a fourth extraordinary convocation of the General Assembly in as many years.

Virtually every available dollar for relief will have been spent when the week is out. Unless the federal government mails another check of about $11,000,000, the Legislature probably will have to be called to prime the vast relief machinery with state funds obtained from somewhere.

WON'T TRANSFER FUNDS

As the only commonwealth officer who can transfer money from the motor fund to the general fund, the Governor has closed the door to its suggested emergency avenue of escape from a legislative session by declaring such a course to be illegal. This suggestion is the only one yet made to avoid a special session if federal funds are not made available.

Aside from the relief situation, the Governor returns to a capitol abuzz with reports that he is slated for some high federal post either in the near future or at the expiration of his term in January. The reports have mentioned ambassadorships and cabinet offices.

Friends of the Governor have declared they do not think he wants an ambassadorship to France, England or Germany, the three most often mentioned possibilities. They frankly admit they do not know whether he is flirting with the prospects of an independent Senatorial campaign.

FIGHT ON TUBE TOLLS NEAR SHOWDOWN

Hint Half Projects To Be Dropped if Agreement Fails

A showdown in the controversy over the proposal for a toll plan at the Liberty Tubes drew nearer today as a committee of South Hills residents prepared to meet with the County Commissioners.

The meeting will be held early this week. It is intended to iron out the differences threatening the granting of a federal loan to the Allegheny County Authority to carry out a $30,000,000 works program.

LOAN UP SATURDAY

Final action on the county's application for the huge loan is scheduled for Saturday.

If the differences over the toll plan cannot be ironed out before that time, officials indicate that more than half of the projects for which the loan is sought will be dropped.

Meanwhile, Attorney George P. Kountz, one of the leaders in the battle to prevent the levying of a toll, reiterated his statement that a delegation of eight named to meet the County Commissioners will stand pat in opposition to the toll plan.

COMMITTEE PERSONNEL

The eight committeemen include L. T. Stevenson, chairman; D. W. Baker, of Mt. Lebanon; Edward C. Emmerling and Ray R. Pollitt, of Dormont; James R. Galbraith, of Brookline; Elmer E. Harter, Jr., of Beechview; S. V. Barton, of Castle Shannon, and P. Lewis, of Overbrook.

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen yesterday reminded the group that the $500,000,000 appropriation for PWA loans and grants will be allotted soon.

U. S. TO PROBE NEW P. O. RAMP PROBLEM

Government Sending Agent to Study City's Traffic Protest

The government is to investigate the traffic tangle problem involved in the new postoffice ramp at Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue, James L. Stuart, Allegheny County head of the Relief Work Division, announced today.

Stuart said that W. C. Reynolds, head of the Procurement Division, would come to Pittsburgh to make a personal inquiry and view conditions at the new postoffice building.

PROTESTS MADE

Recently Stuart went to Washington with Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston and Charles M. Reppert, chief city engineer, to urge a revision of the government's ramp plans.

Mayor McNair and his public works experts have protested to the government that if the present ramp project is carried to completion, a virtual blockade of traffic will result at the city's most congested corner, due to use of the ramp by 1,000 mail trucks and other vehicles.

The city proposes elevating Bigelow boulevard over Seventh avenue, widening the postoffice approach to connect with the boulevard and providing an under-pass at the boulevard and Seventh avenue.

STUART LAUDS CITY

Stuart today said:

"The city administration is to be commended for the business-like manner in which it approached the difficult situation confronting the city at Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue.

"It is to be hoped that the Federal government will recognize the advantage to be gained by the Postal Department and the city in a co-operative effort to obtain an improvement which has been anticipated for many years and has now become an absolute necessity.

"There is every justification for favorable consideration and action in this project."

LEHMAN PET FOUND IN POND

International News Service.

PURCHASE, N. Y., June 25.—"Scampy," the missing female Cairn terrier, which was the pet of Hilda Jane Lehman, 13, daughter of Gov. Herbert Lehman, was found drowned today in a small pond in the rear of the Governor's summer place here.

Gardeners searching the estate for the dog, which disappeared Saturday, discovered the little animal.

Police all over the country searched yesterday for the pet, which, with its mate, "Bunky," were inseparable companions of Hilda Jane.

When Gov. Lehman arrived here for the week-end he asked the state police to send out a radio alarm for the missing animal.

WEIRTON STEEL UNION HOME DYNAMITED

Windows Shattered, Store Rocked by Explosion

WEIRTON, W. Va., June 25.—A stick of dynamite, set off by a short fuse, damaged the hallway leading to the headquarters of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, shortly after midnight today.

Windows in the building were broken and merchandise knocked from shelves of a wholesale candy firm on the first floor of the two-story brick structure. Part of the stairway was torn away.

The damage was estimated by Jake Entinger, president of Amalgamated Local No. 38, at $800.

Weirton police sought two men reported to have been seen in the vicinity a short time before the blast.

This is the second attack, believed, steel union leaders say, to be part of a plan to harass the steel workers' organization within three days. Saturday morning a live skunk was placed in the hallway and members planning a meeting there were forced to postpone the session. Weirton police put the animal to death.

Two suspects, said to be special police at the Weirton Steel mill, were arrested about 1 o'clock this morning by Deputy Sheriff Jack O'Connor and a constable two miles from Weirton. They were taken to the Wellsburg jail while officials of Brooke County continued their investigation. No charge had been made against the pair early this afternoon.

Left Wing Steel Union Plan Heard at Capital

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP.)—An 11point program for holding elections in steel plants to determine what unions shall represent workers was presented to the Labor Department today by a group representing the left wing Steel and Metal Workers Industrial Union.

Claiming to speak for 15,000 workers, the delegation headed by Patrick Cush, national chairman of the union, conferred with Thomas Eliot, associate solicitor of the department.

Turner W. Battle, executive assistant to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, flew to Pittsburgh today to hear the complaints of Pat Cush, head of the Steel and Metal Workers Industrial Union. He learned that Cush was in Washington and immediately flew back to the capital.

Her father didn't attend the wedding.

Q.—You moved into the Boylston street apartment with Murton?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was that the first time Murton ever occupied an apartment with you?

A.—Yes.

Then she described the blight that came over her romance. She said:

"After Christmas Murt stopped treating me nice."

Q.—When did you become unhappy?

A.—When he changed toward me. He told me I was too dumb to live. He wouldn't talk to me all day. He wanted me to read psychology books. I didn't want to read them. I wanted to see my mother, but I told him I would go away.

Norma testified:

"He dragged me into the bathroom and put soap in my mouth for talking back to him. Then I ran to my mother's."

She said that after Christmas, Murton wouldn't let her drive his car, stopped going to the movies with her and talked "very little" to her. She said:

"He seemed to be getting tired of me."

Weirton Coal Strike Peace Action Begins

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 25.—(AP.)—District Attorney Wade K. Newell has assumed the role of mediator in a strike of 700 employes at the Weirton Coal Company, subsidiary of the Weirton Steel Company.

The strike was called several weeks ago after an alleged dispute between rival unions, during which a man was shot and wounded. Since then, the plant has been closed.

CORBEIL, Ont., June 25.—(AP.)—The Dionne quintuplets were four weeks old today and celebrated by putting on three ounces in weight.

The children now weigh 12 pounds 12¼ ounces.

CHARGE MURDER IN AUTO DEATH

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., June 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Martha Clift, 28, of Oneonta, and Mrs. Eva Coo, 45, roadhouse proprietress, were held for action of the special grand jury when arraigned today before Peace Justice Harold D. Carpenter on first degree murder charges in connection with the automobile death of Harry Wright, 49, handy man at the inn.

The arraignment of the two women who accused each other of the crime of running an automobile back and forth over Wright, causing his death, was held behind closed doors, and no one except officials was admitted.

Justice Riley H. Heath, presiding over the special grand jury which began its investigation of the case soon after the arraignment of the principals, set the bail of Mrs. Edna Hanover, of Oneonta, and Harry Nebinger, roomer at the roadhouse, at $5,000 as material witnesses.

4 in Family Die In 3 Auto Crashes

DETROIT, June 25.—(INS.)—Hurrying to Detroit to attend the funeral of their son-in-law, who was killed in an automobile crash Friday, Andrew Shivak, and his wife, Dora, both 57, of Caretta, W. Va., were killed last night near Monroe when their car struck a tree.

They were en route to the home of the daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Tadeuasiak, 26, whose husband, Adam, died in the wreck of his car on a suburban highway last week.

HIS DEAD WIFE ONE TOO MANY

MUSKEGON, Mich., June 25.—(AP.)—To unravel the tangled marital situation in which he found himself when the wife he believed dead for six years turned up alive a few weeks ago, Louis Crenno, of Muskegon Heights, filed suit for divorce from her in Circuit Court today.

Following the supposed death of his first wife, Nina, Crenno remarried. The divorce, he said, is sought so that he may legally marry his second wife, by whom he has two children.

Crenno filed a divorce suit in Circuit Court here in 1927, but withdrew it when his wife's mother identified the body of a woman taken from the water at Chicago as her daughter.

Neighbors Find Man Dead, 2 Near Death

FORDYCE, Ark., June 25.—(AP.)—Lee Grinmett, 47, manager on a service station here, was found shot to death and his wife, Ola, 35 and daughter, Nancy Louise, 9, with their skulls crushed and in a dying condition by neighbors who went to the Grinmett home when they heard shots early today.

LOBBY BATTLE BACKED AT QUIZ

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Defending the present Army's motor purchase system, Maj. L. H. Bash, quartermaster-general, today told the House Military Affairs Committee that refusal of certain manufacturers to sign so-called "anti-lobbying" certificates prevented them from securing contracts.

The legality of these certificates, which force bidders to assure the department they have employed no agents other than bona-fide sales agencies in securing government contracts, is to be ruled on by the comptroller general, Bash said.

CITY ASSESSOR BACKS TAX LAW

Pittsburgh's graded tax law is doing exactly what it was intended to do—discourage land speculation—Chief City Assessor Percy R. Williams told the Hungry Club today.

Using the data collected by Dr. J. Paul Watson, of the University of Pittsburgh, in his criticism of the graded tax, Williams declared:

"The avowed purpose of the graded tax was to reduce land prices in Pittsburgh, and it has accomplished that."

Dr. Watson, with whom Williams debated today, asserted:

"The graded tax law has tended to defeat itself."

GRAFT HINTED BY M'NAIR

property was valued at only $36,500.

Hodge asserted he had valued the property at the lower figure for assessment purposes because he was under the impression that industrial property was appraised at only 50 per cent of its fair value.

GROUP PROTESTS

The Mayor, while assailing the proposed purchase, refused to tell the Manchester delegation definitely that he would veto the ordinance if it reached his desk.

From the Mayor's office the group went to Councilman Walter R. Demmler's office. Spokesmen demanded that Demmler change his vote. Demmler had voted in favor of the garbage site purchase on first and second readings of the ordinance. The vote was five to four for the measure.

THREATENS INJUNCTION

Demmler refused to agree to change his vote, contending Council was seeking a way out of the old system of garbage collection by private contract.

The Rev. C. L. Daugherty, pastor of Trinity Methodist Protestant Church, stormed at Demmler:

"We elected you. We're paying your salary and you are spending our money in a way we don't want it spent."

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, of the Second Presbyterian Church, threatened to bring injunction proceedings to halt erection of an incinerator plant if the plan went through.

'DAD' BROWNING FIGHTS FOR LIFE

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—His left side paralyzed as a result of cerebral hemorrhage, Edward W. (Daddy) Browning, wealthy real estate operator and estranged husband of Frances (Peaches) Browning, was in a critical condition today in the Hospital for Joint Diseases.

Although his physician, Dr. J. B. Weighart, acknowledged that Browning continued in a serious condition today, the doctor said the millionaire real estate man had a chance for recovery.

Hospital attaches said yesterday Browning was "not so good" and the report today was that he was unchanged.

Reorganized Bank In Johnstown Opens

HARRISBURG, June 25.—(AP.)—William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, announces the Johnstown Bank and Trust Company opened at Johnstown today, succeeding the Johnstown State Deposit Bank, the Johnstown Trust Company, the Morrellville Deposit Bank and the United States Savings and Trust Company of Conemaugh. The reorganization releases deposits of $2,071,179.08.

Weather Conditions

The low pressure centers that appeared in the West Saturday morning, passed over this section yesterday, and this morning there is a center in the far Northeast. The disturbance produced only scattered showers over the country. This morning there is a center over South Dakota at 29.66 at Huron, South Dakota, and it is causing a cloudiness and a showery conditions over the plains states. Scattered showers occurred yesterday and last night over the Rocky Mountain states, the plains states and over Florida. Temperature changes were slight. Temperatures of 90 degrees or higher occurred yesterday afternoon over the Ohio Valley states, the Mississippi Valley states, and most of the plains states. In Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, temperatures of 100 to 102 degrees were reached.

ALUMINUM MEN WON'T STRIKE

International News Service.

MASSENA, N. Y., June 25.—A strike has been called by the National Council of Aluminum Workers at the order of its general secretary, Fred A. Wetmore, Maryville, Tenn., for midnight, July 25, but the local aluminum workmen have voted to ignore the order and keep on working.

Union workers of the Massena Aluminum Company, a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, voted almost unanimously to join the strike recently along with other union men, but today, Joseph Stacey, president of the local organization, announced:

"Massena union men are not in favor of a strike in any formr. We don't want a strike and this union won't strike."

Officials of the Aluminum Company of America here said today that they had received no formal notification that employs at the New Kensington plant would go on strike July 25. The union men held a meeting about 10 days ago and intimated that there would b a walkout if the aluminum code sets a minimum wage of 37½ cents an hour instead of 50 cents, the figure demanded by the union.

Aluminum officials declared that fixing the code figure is a company function.

Dock Strike Peace Hopes Up to U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—(INS.)—As plans went forward today for forcible opening of the port of San Francisco to move the millions of dollars worth of goods tied up by the coastwise dock strike, all hope of peaceful settlement of the strike apparently rested in Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward M. McGrady.

McGrady, who arrived here by airplane as the representative of Secretary of Labor Perkins and the unofficial spokesman of President Roosevelt, was to confer today with waterfront employers and workmen.

Mother of Roosevelt Guest of MacDonald

LONDON, June 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and American delegates to naval conversations here, were luncheon guests today of Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, in a special gesture of Anglo-American friendship.

The social affair was MacDonald's last before beginning a long holiday ordered by a physician.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who arrived yesterday, is staying at the American Embassy.

London newspapers told of her arrival yesterday at Southampton in laudatory interviews. Pictures showed her being welcomed by Robert W. Bingham, American ambassador.

Some of the captions were:

"World's most wonderful woman." "Meet Mr. Roosevelt's mother—80 years young." "Mother of one of the greatest men in the world."

Old Eye and Ear Hospital Purchase by City Urged

A plan to purchase the former Eye and Ear Hospital on Fifth avenue as a central administration building for the city health and welfare departments was offered City Council today by Dr. J. J. Buchanan, representing the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League.

Dr. Buchanan revealed he personally had obtained an option to purchase the building for $42,000 and offered to permit the city to acquire the property at this figure.

An additional $5,000 for remodeling and repairs would place the building in condition for operation as an administration headquarters and would provide the city with 57 more beds for patients, Dr. Buchanan said.

Dr. Buchanan said he had conducted a survey of overcrowded conditions at Mayview, and said conditions would be improved there if 130 tubercular patients were transferred to the Leech Farm Hospital where that amount of space is available.

Council took his offer under advisement.

KING GEORGE IN PAJAMAS CITED AS TRYING TO BLOCK WAR

ASQUITH LETTER TELLS OF CRISIS

Ruler Termed 'Sleepy,' Ramsey MacDonald Called 'Ghost'

LONDON, June 25.—(AP.)—King George was in his pajamas at 1:30 a. m. Aug. 1, 1914, when Prime Minister Asquith and William Tyrrell of the foreign office obtained his Majesty's signature to a telegram to the Czar, endeavoring to ward off the outbreak of the war.

This revelation appeared today in the second volume of the "Letters" of Lord Asquith to his friend, Mrs. Harrison, of Boar's Hill.

Lord Oxford, as the Liberal premier eventually became, was dining with her ladyship at the palace in 1922, and, as he writes:

"The King was in his usual form and very friendly. I reminded him how on the night of Aug. 1, 1914, I invaded the palace with Tyrrell at 1:30 a. m. and he appeared with sleepy eyes, in his pajamas and dressing gown, and signed a telegram we had drawn up to Nikky of Russia."

In view of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's present illness it is interesting to note that exactly 10 years ago Lord Oxford wrote:

"Poor Ramsay looks every day more like a ghost. He is suffering from neuritis. He has taken on a burden far too heavy for a man who is not composed of equal proportions of iron and leather."

MacDonald at that time was combining the offices of prime minister and foreign secretary.

Reign of 'Fascist Terror' Charged to MacDonald

LONDON, June 25.—(INS.)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald was savagely attacked today by the radical branch of the Labor Party which accused him of leading the country toward Fascism and eventual war.

The accusation was made in a sensational letter made public by James Maxton, chairman, and Fenner Brockway, secretary, of the Independent Labor Party, the radical branch, with which MacDonald was formerly affiliated.

The basis of the attack was the fact that MacDonald, while still a Laborite, is supporting the policies of a government composed almost entirely of Tories.

Recalling that the Prime Minister was formerly a member of a party which advocated Socialism and opposed war, the letter continued:

"Now you are the head of a government which seeks to maintain the capitalist system by methods of Hitler in Germany and Dollfuss in Austria, introducing a reign of Fascist terror.

"You are personally responsible for preparing for a struggle for Fascism and its sequel—war."

'MAIL ROMEO'S' SLAYER CALM

International News Service.

CLARION, Pa., June 25.—Refreshed by a visit from "church people" who came unasked into her cell for religious service, 20-year-old Leona Menser, of Coshocton, O., today turned to quiet reading as she awaited grand jury action on the charge that she murdered her 61-year-old matrimonial agency fiance.

She is accused for having fatally shot John B. Kelly, the aged farmer she came here to marry, following a courtship through a marriage bureau.

Sheriff S. C. Elder said today:

"Leona reads and behaves just as any other young girl would do in the same position."

Although frequent letters come from her mother, Leona has had no correspondence from the matrimonial agency or any bureau "sweethearts" who might have heard of her case. Leona, who claims she shot Kelly when he attempted to strike her during an argument over the date for their marriage, is held without bail pending grand jury action late in August.

Charles Ingersoll To Speak on Tax

Charles H. Ingersoll, a member of the well-known watch family and advocate of the single tax, has been induced to come to Pittsburgh by Mayor McNair to address the Henry George Club Friday at the Chamber of Commerce. Mayor McNair expressed the hope that Ingersoll will arrive on Thursday in time to address one of the meetings protesting tube tolls.

POLICE SCOUT KIDNAP STORY

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—(AP.)—Federal authorities, expressing doubt of Mrs. Sibyl Fidanque's story that she had been kidnaped, advanced the theory today that the singer may have been an amnesia victim.

Mrs. Fidanque, who claimed she was abducted at San Jose by a man named "Jim" and a woman called "Mazie" and taken to El Paso, was pale and trembling as her train brought her here. She clung to the arm of her son, Jack Fidanque.

Department of Justice Agents B. E. Sackett and E. J. Geehan confronted her with Mrs. Eva Schurr, Santa Monica beauty parlor operator, who identified Mrs. Fidanque as the woman who spent six hours in the beauty parlor last Monday having her black hair dyed a deep copper color, and who told her she was "going away to look for a job."

WOMEN CROWD PASTOR'S TRIAL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 25.—(AP.)—More than 200 women crowded the courtroom here today as selection of a jury began in the divorce trial of Mrs. Wineta Long Welburn, former school teacher, against the Rev. William D. Welburn, Jr., who denies they are married.

Judge W. W. McCrory instructed deputies to admit women first.

Mrs. Welburn's petition alleges she was married to the young minister at Boerne, Tex., in July, 1933, and that in November a son was born to her.

She charges that Mr. Welburn, who was pastor of the Government Hill Methodist Church here until last winter, told his congregation he had not married her and was not the father of her child. This constituted extreme mental cruelty, she contends.

Bellevue Boy's Body Taken From Creek

The body of Thomas Jackson, 19, of 433 Forest avenue, Bellevue, was recovered early yesterday from Muddy Creek, near Slippery Rock. He drowned Saturday while attending the annual picnic of the Boys' Bible Class of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church. State Troopers found the body at 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

YOUTH GRILLED IN ROBLES CASE

International News Service.

LA JUNTA, Col., June 25.—Sheriff Gridley, of Tucson, Ariz., was expected at La Junta today to question Don Rodriguez, 23, of Globe, Ariz., a prisoner in the Otero County Jail here, in regard to the kidnaping of 6-year-old June Robles in Tucson, Ariz., on April 26.

Sheriff Paul Whitton, who has questioned Rodriguez, said he felt certain that his prisoner knew who kidnaped the Robles girl.

Rodriguez was arrested at Rocky Ford, Col., on June 10 after he had been knocked unconscious by Harry Mendenhall, president of a bank, who found him in his house at night. Police declare Rodriguez had gone to the banker's house to kidnap him. Another man, who assertedly stood watch outside, escaped.

Rodriguez pleaded guilty to charges of burglary in connection with the Rocky Ford crime. He will be sentenced in District Court here next Saturday.

RELIEF SOUGHT FROM HEAT

A perspiring populace sought relief again today as the sun, shining from a clear sky, sent the mercury mounting toward yesterday's mark of 90.

Observer W. S. Brotzman's map showed temperatures of over 100 in Kansas and above 90 in most stations east of the Mississippi.

Humidity was rather low, however, which made the heat less oppressive. Showers are possible late tomorrow, according to indications.

9 Drowned as Heat Drives N. Y. to Beach

NEW YORK, June 25.—(INS.)—Throngs again headed for the beaches today as the mercury hovered around the 85 mark. A record June crowd of a million and a half blistering souls jammed the shore resorts yesterday, 800,000 persons visiting Coney Island alone.

Nine persons were drowned at smaller beaches, and lifeguards at the larger resorts wert kept busy rescuing over-ambitious swimmers.

'Terrified Steer' Hearing Delayed

LONDON, June 25.—(AP.)—The case of the terrified steer will have to wait a few days before being heard.

Summonses against Tex Austin, rodeo impresario, for "unlawfully causing" the terrifying, and T. J. Rickards for carrying out the actual terrifying came up in the West London Magistrates Court today, but the hearing was adjourned.

Live Wire Kills Child Hunting Coal

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 25.—Genevieve Cooley, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lloyd Cooley, of Martin Station, was killed by a live wire yesterday as she was hunting coal with her father near a mine property.

The charged wire was in contact with an iron beam on the ground. The child stepped on the beam, then fell lifeless.

YOUTH SEIZED IN VANDERBILT THREAT

'Model' Student Faces Lindbergh Law Penalty

CLINTON, Ill., June 25.—(AP.)—A federal investigation of crime conditions he asked for in his vicinity brought the arrest of a 19-year-old "model" student charged with sending extortion notes to Cornelius Vanderbilt III and Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The recent high school graduate, Francis Goodrich, 19, whom police quoted as saying he "thought I could get by with it because others did," faced arraignment today under the Lindbergh law, making it a crime to send extortion letters through the mails.

Deputy Sheriff Leslie C. Orr said the youth also sent a letter to Gov. Henry Horner, of Illinois, stating that he had a "machine for destroying things" and thought the apparatus should be in the hands of the state rather than gangsters.

The letter to Gifford, United States Attorney Frank K. Lemon said, demanded $25,000 under threat of bombing. The wording of the letter to Vanderbilt was kept secret.

'MERCY DEATH' KNIFE FAILS

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—Walter Nokofsky couldn't stand to see Mrs. Rose Tisachny suffer; so he cut her throat.

Nokofsky is 57, the woman 29. For weeks the breaks have gone against her. Months ago her husband left. Last night—

Nokofsky was talking with her. She told him finally there was no money to pay the rent; no money to buy even a loaf of bread that her 10-year-old boy might eat. No money.

Telling it to the police today, Nokofsky said her plight was so pitiful that he tried to kill her. He came close to doing it. Surgeons took 40 stitches to close a horrible cut that circled from ear to ear. Then he turned his razor on himself, but somehow he seemed not to have tried as hard to kill himself, for eight stitches fixed him up so that he could be taken to a cell.

'KILL,' OFFICERS HUNTING 4 TOLD

LUBBOCK, Tex., June 25.—(AP.)—Officers tracked a condemned murderer and three other escaped convicts today, offering them a chance to make good their boast that they would "shoot it out" with their pursuers. The officers had orders to "shoot to kill."

The hunted men—Ed Stanton, condemned slayer; Andrew H. Nelson, burglar; Bill Doupe, hijacker, and J. B. Stephens, burglar—slugged their way out of the Lubbock County Jail yesterday, carrying two hostages.

Walter S. Posey, vice president of the First National Bank of Lubbock, and Campbell H. Elkins, assistant Justice of the Peace, their captives, were finally released, 75 miles away last night near Big Spring.

LAWYER HINTS 'URN DEATH' EXPOSE

Startling Disclosures In Filing $14,000,000 Will Loom

SEATTLE, June 25.—(AP.)—Asking "why should the death of Mrs. Sarah Smith-Scollard have been kept secret for two years?" Attorney O. H. Rummens, representing the Scollard heirs, promised "sensational disclosures" today in the case of the eccentric woman, whose fortune was once estimated at $14,000,000.

"Just about every cent of Tessa Brown's estate belonged to Mrs. Smith-Scollard," he said, referring to her attorney and adviser in the years before her death, in Montreal, two years ago. Brown was killed in a motor car accident several months ago.

The third and last will left by the wealthy eccentric, he said, will be filed here in probate court Wednesday.

'DEATH' BARED

He indicated that he planned to get in touch with Mrs. Katherine Kirkpatrick, of Oakland, Cal., sister of Mrs. Smith-Scollard, and other interested persons.

The death of the wealthy woman, whose law suits, three marriages and real estate operations in Chicago led her to be called the "Hetty Green of La Salle street," came to light Friday in Yakima, Wash., when Brown's widow produced in court an urn purportedly containing her ashes.

SUITS FILED

Papers in Mrs. Brown's possession disclosed that her remains lay hidden on Brown's estate while she was sought throughout the country.

After relating the friendship of the Browns for Mrs. Smith-Scollard, Mrs. Brown went into seclusion here yesterday at the home of their only son.

The Scollard interests have filed suits, including one for $5,000,000, against the Brown estate.

'BOOKIE' RAID HOLDS MAN

On charges of conspiracy and abetting gambling, John Conway, 55, of Mt. Lebanon, with headquarters in the House Building, Smithfield and Water streets, was held for court today by Magistrate J. W. McGowan in Police Court.

Conway was arrested last week by Inspector of Detectives Samuel Wheeler, after a quantity of racing charts, race track telegraph tickers and other equipment were seized in his headquarters.

Wheeler, posing as a business man, had rented adjoining offices to obtain evidence against Conway, who is alleged to have supplied racing results and other information to "bookie" joints throughout Pittsburgh.

Triplets Now Added To 2 Sets of Twins

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 25.—(INS.)—Triplets were added today to the family of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Dean, who already have two sets of twins and three other children. The three newcomers weighed between 5 and 6 pounds each.

Trying Stage Again

KATHARINE HEPBURN . . . TWO MOVIES, THEN TO BROADWAY

JUDGES CREATE RECORD HERE

For the first time in history all the 14 judges of Common Pleas Court were on the bench today as a drive to clean up pending cases got under way.

During this week the jurists hope to dispose of 121 proceedings involving equity arguments for new trials and 92 proceedings for divorces.

President Judge Ambrose B. Reid presided in the assignment room and directed the plan to speed up the wheels of justice. Judge W. Heber Dithrich was in Criminal Court, where he is presiding for his term.

The 92 divorce trials scheduled to be heard this week set a record for the county. After July 2 the judge hope to obtain some relief through the plan to have uncontested divorce actions heard by masters appointed by the court.

Ida Lupino Stricken, Shows Improvement

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.—(INS.)—Stricken last week with a mild attack of infantile paralysis, Ida Lupino, beautiful blonde film actress and member of a famous London theatrical family, was reported considerably improved in condition today.

Physicians announced that Miss Lupino would be able to resume work within three weeks, and that the ailment had left her unharmed.

HEPBURN TO TRY STAGE AGAIN

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—Katharine Hepburn, the movie actress, is going to make another bid for success on Broadway, undaunted by the failure of "The Lake" this spring.

Arthur Hopkins, producer, announced today Miss Hepburn will appear in New York next season in a dramatization of Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice."

After a sudden and spectacular spurt to fame in the movies, Miss Hepburn came to New York from Hollywood to star in "The Lake," which met with little favor from critics or the public.

It closed suddenly, and Miss Hepburn departed for Europe and a vacation. Before coming back to Broadway, it was reported here Miss Hepburn will star in two pictures, Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" and John Galsworthy's "Forsyte Saga."

3RD RABBI HERE CALLED TO N. Y.

The third rabbi of the congregation to be called to New York in six months, Assistant Rabbi Jerome Rosenbloom, of Rodef Shalom Temple, has been named head of Tremont Temple, in The Bronx. He will leave Pittsburgh August 1 and will enter upon his new duties September 1.

Rabbi Rosenbloom came here February 1 from Cleveland. He had also served a rabbinate in Bay City, Mich. He was born in Pittsburgh in 1907 and educated in Pittsburgh schools and the University of Cincinnati. Tremont Temple, to which he goes, is one of the larger Jewish congregations of New York.

Last January Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson left Rodef Shalom to become leader of Temple Emanu-El, New York. Later Acting Rabbi B. B. Glazer, of Rodef Shalom, was named to be assistant to Dr. Goldenson in New York.

Flier to Attempt Flight to Norway

CHICAGO, June 25.—(AP.)—En route to New York to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight to Norway, Thor Solberg, 39, Brooklyn picture frame manufacturer who turned aviator, stopped over in Chicago today.

He said his flight would start within a short time in his amphibian plane, the Lief Ericson.

JIMMY WEDELL KILLED IN CRASH

Famed Speed Pilot Plunges to Death, Student Hurt

PATTERSON, La., June 25.—(AP.)—James R. (Jimmy) Wedell, 34, daring speed flier and holder of the world land plane speed record of 305.33 miles per hour, is dead, the victim of a tragic crash while teaching a student to fly.

The New Orleans and Patterson aviator was killed late yesterday in the crashing to earth of a small English-built Gypsy moth plane in which he was teaching Frank Sneeringer, of Mobile, Ala., how to be a pilot.

Within two minutes after Wedell and Sneeringer took off from the Patterson Airport of the Wedell-Williams Air Service Corporation here, the plane went into a nose dive down into a muddy rice field a mile south of the airport from a height of 200 to 300 feet.

Wedell was killed outright. His skull was fractured, his body was crushed and his feet were caught in the floor boards of the plane.

STUDENT BADLY HURT

Sneeringer was reported dangerously hurt, but hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Harry P. Williams, of New Orleans and Patterson, president of the Wedell-Williams Air Service Corporation, in which Wedell was associated with him as vice president, flew to Patterson from New Orleans on word of the accident.

Williams said that the student, a husky fellow, apparently froze at the controls, and Wedell was unable to dislodge him.

He examined the plane and announced that it would be salvaged.

After talking to witnesses, Williams asserted that the airplane bearing Wedell and Sneeringer went into a left bank, then into a half roll and dived straight into the ground at high speed.

The aviation world mourned for the flier who held many speed records in dashes between cities and focal points of the United States, Canada and Mexico, as well as prized records in competitive national and international air events which he won during the past three years of his record-breaking career.

ENTERED IN RACE

Wedell was one of 16 crack American fliers entered in the $75,000 London-to-Melbourne, Australia, race set for next October. For several months he had been conditioning a plane and making preparation for the flight.

Wedell broke into aviation as a youngster with a salvaged plane which he purchased for several hundred dollars in his native section, Texas City, Tex., close to the border. He had only one hour of flying instruction before he built a plane and made it fly.

Williams and his wife, the former Marguerite Clark of the films, were crushed over the tragic end of Jimmy Wedell. The flier's widow, who has watched him patiently in his many aviation exploits and dares, was reported bearing up bravely.

Plans were made for the body of Wedell to leave Patterson today at 12:30 p. m., for New Orleans, where it will lie in state until taken to West Columbia, Tex., for interment.

BULLITT SAFE IN PLANE CRASH

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., June 25.—(AP.)—Ambassador William C. Bullitt, of the United States, received congratulations today for his escape from injury in an airplane crash yesterday.

The Ambassador flew here in his private airplane piloted by Lieut. Thomas D. White, United States military attache, to meet his young daughter, Anne, who will arrive Wednesday for a visit.

The motor failed just as Lieut. White was about to set it down at a local airport. He was unable to place the plane exactly, the wheels struck soft earth, and the ship nosed over.

Neither of the fliers was hurt.

5 Spectators Die In Crash of Plane

VIENNA, June 25.—(AP.)—Five spectators were killed today when an airplane crashed into a crowd witnessing a Jugo-Slav aviation meet at Bemisce on the Hungarian border. Three other persons, injured in the crash, were reported dying.

200 Whales 'Imprison' 5 Fishermen in Boat

POINT PLEASANT, N. J., June 25.—(AP.)—Skipper Stephen Shawdow, of the 30-foot cabin cruiser Stella, returned to port late yesterday with four thoroughly frightened fishermen to tell a story of being held virtual prisoners eight miles off shore by a school of 200 whales.

Capt. Harry Smith, of the cruiser Lila, later reported he had seen two huge whales earlier in the day.

C. R. Sigg and three others, whose names were not learned, went out on the Stella Saturday morning. They had fished for two hours without a bite, when off to the east there was a disturbance which indicated to Shawdow that fish were feeding. He speeded up the motor and suddenly 200 yards ahead there appeared a geyser of spray.

"Thar she blows!" cried the elated captain, who 25 years ago was in the Halifax whaling trade. A moment later, however, tails and fins appeared on all sides and the skipper realized the craft was in danger. He cautioned the men against making noise and was afraid to start the motor. Shadow said the whales undoubtedly had followed a school of fish close to shore.

'Dummyless' Contract To Feature Tourney

CHICAGO, June 25.—(AP.)—A new form of card game, contract whist, it was announced, will be launched at the forty-fourth annual congress of the American Whist League beginning today.

The league, meeting with the Women's Whist League to award league titles in contract and auction bridge and whist, describes contract whist in its program as played without exposed cards or dummy as in the old form of whist, but with contract bidding and count.

Andrew J. Mouat, of Wilmette, Ill., secretary of the A. W. L., explained:

"Contract whist has been developed out of contract bridge, just as contract was developed from auction and auction in its turn from the old game of whist.

"It is also a more difficult game, but it should prove interesting to old-time whist players and novel to players who are used to looking at 26 cards."

The league has planned to give the Saturday morning session, June 30, to contract whist. The event is open to all players.

STUDENTS WIN RUSHMORE AWARDS

Scores of students in tri-state district today share honors with the major winners in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition through having had their texts selected as the best in their individual schools.

The major winners were announced in yesterday's Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

While these boys and girls will not have the distinction of having their texts submitted to the National Committee on Awards, of which President Roosevelt is chairman, yet the patriotic enthusiasm displayed by their participation has been rewarded. In many schools, the pupils submitting the best was successful in that the Pittsburgh Regional Rushmore Committee selected their text among the first 10 in the separate classification for consideration of the national committee.

The students will receive certificates of merit for their good work. Also, 12 schools in the district will receive certificates of merit for the patriotic support offered this nationwide project, which was sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and the associated Hearst newspapers for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission.

278 TEXTS IN ONE SCHOOL

Outstanding among the schools developing active participation was the Morgantown, W. Va., high school which received 278 texts. This was the highest number reported in the high school classification. The Kittanning high school was second with 150 entries.

Duquesne University carried off laurels of the higher schools of education with a total number of 361 texts. Besides these schools, certificates will be issued as follows:

St. Stephen's parochial, Pittsburgh; Westlake public, Pittsburgh; Latrobe (Pa.) high; No. 2 public, Rankin, Pa.; Kelton public, Dormont; McKeesport high; Lincoln public, Mt. Lebanon; Stephen C. Foster public, Stowe township; Lincoln public, Carnegie, Pa., and Hillsdale public, Dormont.

CERTIFICATES AWARDED

Pupils not selected in the major winners for national consideration but awarded certificates for the best submitted through their individual schools are:

David Bemesderfer, Stephen C. Foster School, Stowe township; Margaret Ciarrocki, Masontown (Pa.) high; James Helfrick, Kittanning (Pa.) high; Billy Moore, No. 2 public, Rankin, Pa.; Elizabeth Cohn, Oil City (Pa.) junior high; Andrew H. Babyak, West Bethlehem township high; Irene Cordon, Brush Creek high, Marianna, Pa.; Zella Mae Schwavey, Fredericksburg (Pa.) high.

Betty K. Harris, Dormont High; Anton Skurcenski, Braddock High; Jean Nelson, Versailles Avenue public, McKeesport; Charlotte Engster, South Park public, McKeesport, Pa.; Paulino Formenti, Springdale High; Betty Charters, Mt. Lebanon High; Edmond Colaiami, Julia Ward Howe public, Mt. Lebanon; Dale Kirsopp, Markham public, Mt. Lebanon; Thomas Kundravy, C. M. Schwab Vocation High, Homestead; Pauline Lucas, Brownsville High; Arthur Leroy Crawford, East Fallowfield High, Adamsville; Ralph Davis, Meadowland public, Houston; Marie Zigarovich, Scott High, North Braddock; Marian Kirby, Warren, (Pa.) High; Michael Haburchak, Connelley Trade, Pittsburgh; William Cawthorne, Central Catholic High, Pittsburgh; Helen Bandolya, Third Ward public, Homestead; Lucille A. Stein, McKeesport High.

IN YEARS TO COME

In years to come, when the greatest national memorial in the world is completed in the Black Hills of South Dakota, these pupils will know they shared in the country's greatest journalistic achievement in searching for the most telling inscription of America's flag.

Mrs. William J. Crittenden, retiring regent of the Pittsburgh Chapter, D. A. R., who served as a member of the Pittsburgh Regional Rushmore Committee, noted the keen support that students gave to the patriotic project. Aware of the patriotic interest of boys and girls through her active leadership in the D. A. R., which sponsors American history awards and other interests to stir pride for the historical background of the nation, Mrs. Crittenden commented:

"It is a patriotic privilege to help this great work along. And it was gratifying to note the immense interest in American history which these young people manifest."

The certificates will be mailed to the successful entrants within a short time. The winners have been certified to national headquarters, which will issue the awards.

SPRAGUE HEADS HEARST HOTELS

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Lester B. Sprague, former manager of the Hotel Pancoast at Miami Beach, Fla., and the Buckwood Inn, Shawnee-on-Delaware, has been appointed general manager of the Hotels Ritz Tower, Lombardy, Warwick and Devon, operated by the Hearst Hotels Corporation, it is announced. He succeeds Harry Barth as general manager, who withdrew from his duties because of ill health.

Mr. Sprague has been active in hotel management for the last 22 years, during which time he has directed the finest resort hotels in Florida, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

EDDIE, M'NAIR TO FIGHT LIQUOR

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 25.—(AP.)—Explaining "it's too hot to keep a man in jail," Mayor Eddie McCloskey last night mopped his brow and freed a number of men arrested for intoxication.

Several prisoners, held on more serious charges, were not turned loose, however.

The Mayor addressed the men as he gave them their freedom. He said that he and Mayor William N. McNair, of Pittsburgh, were planning a state speaking tour against the Pennsylvania liquor laws.

McCloskey said he is opposed to a system "which makes the city pay for the board and lodging of drunks while the state gets the liquor license money."

15th Ward Schools Picnic in Kennywood

Tomorrow is picnic day for students of public and parochial schools in the Fifteenth Ward, Hays, New Homestead, and Mifflin. AMBRIDGE, Pa., June 25.—Unemployed for three years, Stephen Grula, 40, of 915 Walnut street, killed himself yesterday by leaping off the Ambridge-Aliquippa bridge into the Ohio River it was reported to the coroner. His body was recovered by police later. Grula left a wife and three children.

CHURCH CHEERS DRY'S VICTORY CLAIM

OXFORD, O., June 25.—

"We are nearer the ultimate realization of permanent prohibition today than at any time in the American history."

That statement by F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was cheered last night by commissioners and visitors at the United Presbyterian General Assembly in session here.

Dr. McBride said that the dry forces had no desire for the return of the Eighteenth Amendment at this time even if it were possible to re-enact it, but that they favored the passing of the new Shepherd bill which would place the restricting or abolishing of the liquor traffic in the hands of Congress and therefore would make it definitely responsive to public sentiment.

Sentiment against the present situation all over the country is getting stronger and stronger he said and that after a tour of 24 states he found no group of people and no newspaper willing to defend, much less sponsor, any of the present control legislation.

Commissioners yesterday afternoon gathered in Kumler Memorial Chapel of Western College, where the sessions of the assembly are being held, for the annual communion service. The Rev. Dr. W. R. Sawhill, pastor of the First Church, Seattle, presided, and the communion address was given by the Rev. Dr. C. P. Proudfit, of Cambridge, O.

Interest today centers in the reports of the committees on education and reform, which have several delicate problems before them.

Expect 5,000 at B. Y. P. U Meet Here

Reservations received by the local committee of the forty-third anniversary convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America indicated that approximately 5,000 delegates from all parts of the country will attend. The conference, with headquarters in the William Penn Hotel, will be held here from July 4 to July 8.

Carman Reports Theft of Tokens

Bishop Cannon Opens New Drive Against Repeal

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., June 25.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, yesterday led more than 4,000 people in urging Congress to submit a new prohibition amendment.

The proposed amendment to the Constitution would empower Congress to prohibit, or restrict, the sale of alcoholic liquors in the nation as a whole. Bishop Cannon declared:

"This issue will make national prohibition of this national evil a clear cut issue in the election of every Congressman and every Senator until we have again achieved prohibition."

The meeting here yesterday attended by people from Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Virginia, was described as the initial move of a new national drive against the sale of liquor.

The bishop himself introduced the resolution which was passed with a roar of "aye" from the crowd which filled almost every seat in the Bashford Amphitheater. No dissenting voice was heard. The resolution read:

"In furtherance of the continually expressed attitude that the liquor traffic should be branded as a national evil and outlawed as other criminal activities, we urge the passage by Congress and the submission to the states of a resolution for a constitutional amendment to give power to Congress to restrict or to prohibit the traffic in alcoholic liquors."

The Bishop told his audience that "the church is not only standing firm but once more becoming aggressive" in the matter of prohibition. But to his statement he added:

"I regret, however, that we can expect no help from the Catholic hierarchy and that the Catholics are practically solid against prohibition."

Stitches in Heart, Man 'Doing Well'

LANCASTER, June 25.—(AP.)—With two stitches in his heart, George Hampton, 41, is "doing as well as can be expected," surgeons say.

His heart was lifted from its place, the stitches closed a stab wound, and then it was replaced.

His housekeeper, Mrs. Myrtle Dorward, 36, is charged with the stabbing.

Conservatives say it's Radical... but the Moderns call it Swell!

"HOW QUAINT!" is a compliment to precious antiques... but not to automobiles. You want your car to be as modern as this morning, as up-to-date as tonight.

This explains the new AIRFLOW De Soto's decided favor among the smart people of today—the up-and-coming Moderns who enjoy the good things first.

The AIRFLOW De Soto is no conventional car—no ordinary new car. Its beauty is not the beauty of yesterday—but of this dashing modern age. It is the first real aerodynamic car.

And De Soto's stunning smartness is only a hint of its thrill. To step into its wide seats—to settle back—and to set De Soto soaring over ruts and bumps—that's the big adventure in store for you!

At 50—at 60—you glide so smoothly over a rough gravel road that the back-seat passengers can doze off to sleep—or read a newspaper if they like. At the wheel, it handles like a dream.

Today—take a trial trip in this new type of car. Sit three in the front seat and three in the back. Put the AIRFLOW De Soto through the paces and you'll want to call it your car!

FETE TO MARK ELIZABETH'S CENTENNIAL

The small borough of Elizabeth is making last minute preparation to accommodate the thousands of visitors who will attend the homecoming centennial celebration July 1 to 4.

More than 60 committeemen and women attended a meeting in Elizabeth High School yesterday furthering their extensive plans. S. M. Wylie, general chairman, presided.

The celebration is of the one hundredth birthday of Elizabeth's incorporation as a borough.

The fete will open with union religious services at the high school athletic field Sunday evening, July 1.

Monday, July 2, will be steamboat day when more than 20 steamboats will take part in a river parade. Speed boats and other pleasure craft will line up behind the fleet and float past the shores of the borough of Elizabeth and West Elizabeth. Capt. "Bob" Eberhardt, of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, will be commander of the fleet, and will be aided by a group of well-known Monongahela rivermen. The parade, starting at Lock No. 3 will continue to Lock No. 2 and back again.

Tuesday, July 3, will be devoted to athletics, with a long program of various contests and events on land and water.

A huge parade is scheduled for July 4. It will consist of a great number of floats, uniformed organizations and more than 25 drum and bugle corps of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Washington, Fayette and Greene counties will participate.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings a historical pageant will be staged on the athletic field. It will be based on local historical events, data assembled by Richard T. Wiley, historian, author and newspaperman. Wiley is the author of "Sim Greene," a story of the Whisky Insurrection with a local setting. The pageant has been dramatized by the John B. Rogers Company and will be presented by a cast of more than 300 people.

The celebration will close with a display of fireworks on last day of the centennial.

The community started as a settlement of 35 persons in 1768 on a strip of land obtained by the Penn colony from the Iroquois Indians.

The community was named after Elizabeth, wife of Col. Stephen Bayard, an officer in the Revolution, some years of whose military service was at Fort Pitt. Col. Bayard, immediately following the war, was instrumental with others in the formation of the First Presbyterian Church and the academy from which grew the present University of Pittsburgh.

SOUTH'S PAPER PLAN DEBATED

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 25.—(AP.)—The feasibility of establishing a slash pine paper-making industry in the South was the topic of discussion today at a meeting of the newsprint committee of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association.

During its sessions today and tomorrow the committee will inspect the experimental plant in which Dr. Charles H. Herty has developed a process for using slash pine in making newsprint. Mills B. Lane, chairman of the board of the Citizens and Southern National Bank, will have the committeemen as his guests at a dinner tonight at his Lebanon plantation.

James G. Stahlman, of the Nashville Banner, heads the committee. Other members are Clark Howell, Jr., of the Atlanta Constitution; Curtis B. Johnson, of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer; J. P. Fishburn, of the Roanoke (Va.) Times and World News; Victor H. Hanson, of the Birmingham News and Age Herald; Myron G. Chambers, of the Knoxville (Tenn.) News Sentinel; J. L. Mapes, of the Beaumont (Tex.) Enterprise and Journal, and Emanuel Levi, of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal.

Finleyville Church To Dedicate Tablet

Independence Day exercises at the Old Mingo Presbyterian Church, Finleyville, will be marked by dedication of a bronze tablet to replace a stone inscription on the monument of Maj. McFarlane, Whisky Insurrection hero.

The Rev. George P. Rowland, pastor of the Aspinwall Presbyterian Church, will be the principal speaker. The tablet has been donated by members of Monongahela Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Ex-Senator Thomas To Be Cremated

DENVER, June 25.—(AP.)—In accordance with his deathbed request, the body of Charles S. Thomas, former United States Senator from Colorado and ardent silver champion, who died at his home here Sunday, will be cremated, probably tomorrow.

The 84-year-old ex-Senator asked that no funeral services be held and that his body be cremated.

Jewish Workers End Relief Drive

The final report meeting for all workers in the United Jewish Appeal for German Relief is to be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue. At that time returns will be announced by the follow-up committee headed by Hyman Rogal.

better than I like his program. I think if he would dismiss all the theorists and experimentalists, all the impractical professors and visionary doctrinaires and co-operate with the intelligent business men of the country, as England has done, the United States, would speedily come out of its difficulties."

AT A RECENT sale of old coins, somebody paid $100 for a "brass dollar," of the time of Franklin, that dollar having stamped on it the words "Mind your business."

If that dollar could make this country take that advice, it would be cheap at a hundred millions. Failing to mind our business has cost the United States many tens of billions, and will cost more in the future.

TO "MIND YOUR BUSINESS," which means to "attend to your business," is one thing that this country has seemed unable to do since President Wilson went wandering through Europe. At present the United States is invited, most urgently, to enter the League of Nations' labor department. Two or three different nations offer to resign to make room for us.

Uncle Sam ought to look at that old brass dollar and say:

"No, thanks. I shall mind MY business, and regulating the world's labor for the League of Nations is no part of it."

IN AMERICA, horses race "against the clock," running around the track in a direction opposite to that followed by the clock hands. In France, horses race with the clock hands, that caused a mix-up on the French track at Longchamps, and, ricing, due to public indignation, broke up the day's racing.

Two American horses wanted to run the wrong way. Perhaps they thought they wouldn't be paid, even if they won. When anything displeases the French, they arrange a "demonstration." If they are much displeased they have a riot, and very much displeased, they may have a revolution.

Since February 9, the French have organized eleven hundred different manifestations, riots, etc., and Monsieur Sarraut, minister of the interior, says the police are all worn out.

THE HARRIMAN hosiery mills, Harriman, Tenn., would not obey all orders of NRA and the Blue Eagle was taken from the mills. That seemed simple. But, now those mills say that because the Blue Eagle was taken they are losing business, for instance, one single order for 30,000 dozen pairs of stockings has been canceled by the state of Pennsylvania. The Harriman hosiery mills have decided to close down, which would put 653 workers out of jobs, adding to the sufficiently large army of unemployed.

What would you do in a case of that kind? There may be many such cases, and the decision is important. It is easy to say to an employer, "Lift yourself by your boot straps;" not so easy to lift.

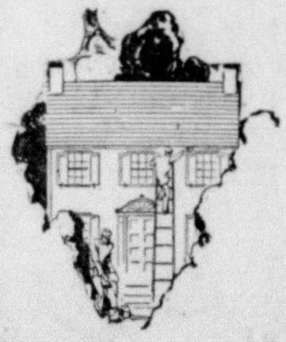
DEVOE HOUSE PAINT
A Paying Investment



★ There is no mystery about the savings you get with Devoe House Paint. Immediate savings come through greater covering capacity — each gallon covers from one to three hundred square feet more than cheap, bargain paint.

★ By far the greatest savings come through longer wear—ranging from one to three years longer than ordinary paints. You save not only the cost of an extra coat of paint but also the cost of putting it on. And labor runs four times greater than the cost of the paint itself.

Gallon	$3.20
½ Gallon	1.70
Quart	.95
Pint	.55

Cheap paint is expensive at any price. Devoe House Paint costs a little more per gallon—but the extra cost is repaid many times over in greater covering capacity and longer wear. Come in today for an estimate.

ROBOT TO WAR ON 'CHISELING' CLEANERS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 25.—(AP.)—New dry cleaning standards robot, a substitute for the Blue Eagle price stabilization which was revoked by presidential order, will be offered to every cleaner and dyer in Pennsylvania in a campaign beginning today.

An ordinary looking dress or suit which automatically reveals the quality of a cleaner's service is to be the test. It is expected to prevent chiselers from concealing shoddy work.

With it the Pennsylvania Association of Dyers and Cleaners hopes to stabilize their industry by setting up standard of quality to replace the uniform price compulsion which collapsed under the national code.

OWN 'BRAIN TRUST'

When the collapse came they called in some brain-trusters of their own, among them Mrs. Pauline Beery Mack, in charge of textile chemistry at the Pennsylvania State College. She perfected the garment test and suggested that if it worked honesty would become more automatic and some of the chances for ruinous price-cutting would vanish.

The test garments are stained with gravy, ink, perspiration and mercurochrome, four representative stains difficult to remove. Also with dirt and dust skillfully placed, and concealed strips in seams.

Immersion in cleaning fluids will not remove all these stains. Some require handwork. Back from a cleaner's these garments will go before special light-detecting tubes which can detect soil invisible to the eye and measure the degree of cleaning.

SIX-YEAR STUDY

Six year's scientific testing of dry cleaning methods at Pennsylvania State College is back of the new system. A committee of the Dry Cleaners' Association, which adopted the new plan, will offer every owner in Pennsylvania an opportunity to adopt the proposed standard. Acceptance includes an insignia to inform the public. The committee report says:

"If consumers want to buy substandard services at exceedingly low prices, they will undoubtedly be able to do so, since all cleaners within the state will certainly not be able or willing to conform the minimum requirement set for a standard job."

N. D. GOVERNOR PRESSES FIGHT

BISMARCK, N. D., June 25.—(AP.)—Gov. William Langer, encountering unprecedented odds, swung today into the close of his fight to be chosen again as the leader of the non-partisan party and Republican gubernatorial nominee at Wednesday's primary.

These are obstacles which Langer must overcome to be successful in his drive for re-nomination:

Conviction in Federal Court a week ago on charges of defrauding the United States government.

Revolt of six state officials against his rule.

Questioning by federal forces of the legality of $500,000 in highway contracts signed by Frank Vogel, state highway commissioner, a Langer appointee.

Admissions by Langer during his trial that a portion of the funds collected by 5 per cent contributions from state employes' salaries reverted to his personal account.

TECH GRADUATE DROWNS

Albert Clyde Jeffords, 21, of Cyclone, Pa., near Bradford, who graduated from Carnegie Tech a few days ago, was drowned while swimming yesterday at Lake Chautauqua, N. Y. Jeffords was seized with cramps. Miss Mildred Williams, of Derrick City, Pa., to whom Jeffords was reported to have been engaged, witnessed the tragedy.

Jeffords was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffords. He was a graduate of Bradford High School and attended Allegheny College before entering Carnegie Tech. His body has been recovered.

One Dead, 59 Hurt In French Line Crash

HOUILLES, France, June 25.—(AP.)—The engineer was killed and 59 passengers were injured, nine of them seriously, when a speeding train crashed into a standing freight train last night.

Rescue crews worked for four hours to free the engineer, who was pinned under the locomotive.

Hollywood Too Slow, Trixie Friganza Leaves

Movie Colony 'Crazy As Fried Egg,' Says Stage Veteran

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—Trixie Friganza said today if Hollywood thought she intended to "rock out" her time waiting around movie lots doing nothing—

"They were crazy as a fried egg.

"I got dog-bited tired of twiddling my thumbs out there."

The good-humored, white-haired actress, who for 45 years has starred on the American stage, said:

"So I packed up my hot water bottle and came back to Broadway—where they are doing things."

And this morning, Chamberlain Brown, the theatrical agent, telephoned to ask the 63-year-old actress how she would like to appear in an Atlantic City stock company playing "Grandma" in "No More Ladies."

Miss Friganza, who holds that if she had as much money as health she could pay the war debt, said:

"You should have heard me whoop. I told him I'd be just tickled to pieces. Grandma in that play is just my gait—plenty of zip."

Taking off the spectacles through which she had been reading the script, Miss Friganza remarked:

"I wouldn't wear those things on the sidewalk if I stubbed my toe and fell down. It's a woman's business to make herself look attractive and no woman ever set the world on fire in spectacles."

Then fluffing her hair, she said:

"I know it's white but let me tell you this—it's white because I like it that way. It'd be black or red or yellow if I ever took the notion.

"During my 45 years on the stage, I've been in farce and musical comedy and light opera and vaudeville, and now I'll add stock company to all that.

"I'll have done everything in the theater except skip in burlesque and sing in grand opera—I'll never do either of those. I can't compete with the girls and my voice won't stand up to Mary Garden's, but I'm having myself a time.

"I'm just a young girl trying to get along in the show business."

Miss Friganza said she could hear old timers say:

"Won't she ever act her age?"

And she answered her own question:

"No! I won't."

TRIXIE FRIGANZA

PROBE BARBER'S ALIBI IN DEATH

FARRELL, Pa., June 25.—(AP.)—State police have announced finding discrepancies in the story of a Farrell barber, held in connection with the death of his young wife.

The woman, Mrs. Ida P. Jemmee, 21, mother of a 6-year-old boy, was shot to death Thursday night in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Pastore, in Farrell.

Her husband, Peter Jemmee 37, claimed he spent the evening at the home of a neighbor. Police quoted the neighbor as saying the barber did not arrive at their home until "early in the morning" on Friday. Afterwards Jemmee told the police he spent Thursday evening walking.

The Jemmees had been estranged prior to the slaying.

SCIENCE MEET PLANNED HERE

Preliminary plans have been announced for the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, to be held here from December 27 to January 4, 1935.

A feature of the conference will be an exhibition of the progress of science in industry to be shown in the new Mellon Institute. Included in the display will be recent inventions, modern laboratory equipment, and a library of newly published scientific books.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Tech, is general chairman of the meeting. Dr. L. O. Grondahl will head the local committee on the exhibition, assisted by Dr. Audrey Avinoff, H. S. Coleman, F. C. Frary, B. T. Hance, S. M. Kintner and W. B. Spellmire.

3-WEEK JUBILEE ARRANGED

A three-week Century of Progress Jubilee was being arranged today by the East Liberty Retail Merchants Association, Inc., opening with a decorated automobile parade through the district July 11 and terminating with a community picnic in Kennywood Park July 31.

Named general chairman by the association president, Dr. Lester Goldstein, George O. Adams appointed committee chairman including: M. M. Kramer, James McShane, Elmer Mayer, William Metzgar, J. H. Adams, Joseph Miller, Robert Blake, H. G. Rice, L. A. Cook, F. L. Powell and M. Schwartz. A picnic feature will be a bathing beauty contest for the "Miss East Liberty" title, with Jack Nuskay, chairman of the parade committee, in charge.

LAWS TO DOOM 'OXCART'-RULE STUDIED

Eighteen pieces of legislation which would go a long way toward abolishing the oxcart system of governmental operation, and replacing it with a modern and simple system of governmental operation, are under consideration by the Pennsylvania Taxpayers' Forum for adoption into a legislative program.

The 18 points were brought up at the formal organization meeting of the forum in Philadelphia last week. The forum has a membership limited to 100, one from each county and 33 at large. Samuel Harden Church, of Carnegie Institute, is the Allegheny County member.

The points considered were:

1—Collection of all local taxes by a single agency in each county and payment of yearly salaries instead of fees to such official and assistants.

2—Further steps toward abolition of the fee system of compensating any public official.

3—Mandatory budget procedure, including public budget hearings, for all local units of government, based on the use of uniform budget forms for each different tax levying unit.

4—Uniform, mandatory accounting system and uniform, mandatory reporting system for each of the various classifications of local governmental units.

5—Establishment of a county welfare or poor board in every county which does not have the county-wide unit of welfare administration. This would eliminate present small, independent poor boards.

6—Periodic, compulsory audits of accounts for every local tax levying unit by an independent auditing agency, such audits either to be instituted or approved by a properly constituted state authority. The cost of such audit to be fixed within reasonable limits, as determined from the experience of the many states which now have such a department, and to be paid by the local unit.

7—Advance date for beginning the collection of local taxes in conformity with the budget year to remove the necessity for costly temporary borrowing pending tax collection.

8—Suitable classification of boroughs and re-classification of first and second class townships, respectively.

9—Centralization of milk inspection by the state.

10—Creation of a commission to study the courts with a view to reduction in the cost of operation, especially in the county courts.

11—Improvement in methods of collecting delinquent taxes and reduction in the cost of collection.

12—Elimination of mandatory, separate assessment of property for cities and counties. One assessment to answer all purposes.

13—Elimination, or a substantial reduction, of extra pay for counting votes in election divisions which use voting machines.

14—Repeal of the four mill tax paid by local governments to the state on all local indebtedness.

15—Requirement that contracts let by township officials shall be subject to the same provisions, in regard to advertisement and purchase from the lowest bidder, which are now in force for other local units of government.

16—Abolition of the office of county surveyor.

17—Abolition of the office of high constable in boroughs.

18—Appointment of a commission to investigate and consider the problems of reorganization and consolidation of local governments in the commonwealth.

PAPYRUS SHOWS ILLS UNCHANGED

Universal Service.

BERKLEY, Cal., June 25.—Scientific attention was directed from the very modern to the very ancient when the famous Hearst Medical Papyrus, archaeological treasure of the University of California, was discussed here in the closing sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

A new translation, far more comprehensive than any before attempted, was announced by Prof. H. F. Lutz, of the university, who has been at work for two years on this compendium of prescriptions which some Egyptian doctor carried in the latter decades of the sixteenth century, B. C.

Prof. Lutz told his audience:

"The Hearst Medical Papyrus is one of the seven known to the world and is one of the most treasured possessions of the University of California."

He explained then, how from the Hearst and other medical papyri, philologists and medical men, working together, have been able to trace the course of diseases through an incredible length of civilization's history.

The papyri have revealed that the ancient Egyptians, back as far as any dynasty which left written records, suffered maladies identical with those which now afflict humanity.

CITY ECONOMY QUIZ PUSHED IN SECRET

The Efficiency and Economy Commission of Pittsburgh is gradually filling city hall with sharp-eyed accountants and business experts seeking to find out how the city is run.

At present there are about 50 experts quietly going in and out of city offices, and there will be 100 of them before the plan is completely organized.

The commission is running on the same idea as was used in Baltimore where a similar body is credited with accomplishing large economies in municipal government.

KEEP STUDY SECRET

A man active in the Baltimore survey, Maj. Ezra B. Whitman, is chairman of the commission here. Henry J. Horn, secretary, has an office at city hall, and has been introducing experts from Pittsburgh industries to department heads.

The Commission is apparently averse to publicity, for its workers for the most part maintain silence and their tracks have been carefully covered in many city departments.

However, it is known that they are digging deeply into the Public Works Department, that the city's methods of accounting and collecting are being scanned and that the warehousing and handling of supplies is under investigation.

LAUDS CO-OPERATION

Possible sources of revenue which the city has but which have not been exploited because of failure to enforce ordinances are being considered. This refers particularly to fees supposed to be collected at the wharves.

J. W. Williams, of the National Economy League, Western Pennsylvania Branch, which is sponsoring the commission, recently attended a police Research Commission hearing. He explained, however, that his group is interested only in the business side of the Public Safety Department.

Williams praised the co-operation given by city officials.

SOVIET ENVOY AT D. A. R. MEET

Willie Snow Ethridge, Washington newspaperwoman, writing in the July issue of Good Housekeeping, tells what happened when the Daughters of the American Revolution, who opposed the recognition of the Soviet Union, met the new Russian ambassador and his wife.

When the daughters held their forty-third annual convention in Washington the Russian ambassador, Troyanovsky, and his wife received an invitation as a matter of course. What is more, they attended.

Miss Ethridge reports a close friend of Troyanovsky telephoned the ambassador the day after his appearance and said:

"'What in heaven's name possessed you to go to that D. A. R. meeting?'"

The ambassador replied:

"'Why, they are my kind of folks. They are revolutionists too.'"

TWO BURNED IN EXPLOSION

Clarence Scherdler, 42, and his son, James, 5, were burned yesterday afternoon and two automobiles were damaged when a pan of gasoline exploded in the rear of their home, 309 Natchez street, according to a police report.

A spark from the automobile he was repairing exploded the gasoline. Although burned badly on the hands the father obtained a blanket with which he extinguished the flames that were enveloping the boy, who had been seated in the automobile.

East End Woman Dies in Boulevard

Stricken in Baum boulevard as she was en route to services in the Third Presbyterian Church, Mrs. John S. Milliken, 54, of the Kenmawr Hotel, Shady avenue, died yesterday morning from a heart attack, according to a report. Mrs. Milliken has resided at the Kenmawr for the past 10 years. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Samuel D. Chamberlin, of Hartford, Conn.

World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

CHAPTER VIII

Nothing that ever happened to me—nothing that can happen — affected me like the death of Campbell. Up to then it never had seemed to me that anybody could die as the result of my punches. No one else had. They all got up and were no worse for it a day afterward.

But Campbell was dead.

And I was called "a butcher."

The volley I fired at Campbell in the final round violated no rules of the ring. He was backed against the ropes, free to hit me if he willed, and I was allowed, by the rules, to hit him.

The referee was in there with power to stop the fight whenever he felt that I was hammering Frankie too hard. Any other ringman in my position would have done the same thing that I did—kept on punching.

When I hit Frankie in the second, it wasn't with any idea of taking an unfair advantage. I had slipped down. I never have been knocked down in my life. I jumped up, saw Campbell walking away from me, and I didn't stop to think why he was walking away.

Impetuous Youngster

I was an impulsive impetuous youngster, in there with a seasoned ringman who had turned his back upon me—and the rules specified that a fighter must take care of himself at all times.

CHIC MAXIE, A FASHION PLATE, PROVING THERE ARE TWO PLAYBOYS IN THE FAMILY

From the time I slipped down until I charged at Campbell and hit him on the jaw, I don't suppose three seconds elapsed.

When I left the ring, Frankie was in his corner, his seconds working on him. I didn't realize how seriously he was hurt. When I had finished my shower and was putting on my clothes I said to Ancil Hoffman:

"I'm going to Frankie Campbell's room and wish him better luck next time."

"No," said Ancil, and his voice seemed strained. "Frankie isn't back in his room yet. He's still in the ring."

Arrested for Death

I was arrested after Frankie died and my manager, J. Hamilton Lorimer, made no successful effort to bail me out. But Ancil Hoffman took the receipts of the fight—small bills and an auto load of silver—and posted it as my bond and gained my release.

Day after day I was hounded. The newspapers hammered me with "Butcher," "Murderer," "Ban the Killer from the Ring for Life." All of this while I, a 21-year-old boy, dazed and bewildered by it all and innocent of any real malice in the fight, did not know what my fate would be in court.

The enormity of the whole thing staggered me.

It finally was ruled that Frankie had gone to his death of concussion of the brain and the courts held me innocent of the manslaughter charge. But the Boxing Commission sentenced me to a one-year suspension, although, so far as I could understand, I had violated no ring rules in that fight.

By that time I didn't much care whether they made it a month, a year, 10 years. I had lost my enthusiasm for the game. I felt afraid to try to fight again — afraid only that I might kill somebody else.

The ring sport had been a great thing in my life for me since I popped the painter in Twin Oaks. Now it was something that belonged to a horrible past. What I wanted to do was to get away from California — go anywhere — try to forget it.

Meets Dorothy at Reno

Everywhere I went in Oakland or San Francisco I'd meet people who wanted to talk about the fight, sympathetically, of course, but I was going half wild just listening. But I couldn't leave because I was broke and in debt, and when I asked Ham to loan me some cash he turned me down.

Very early in October—that was about five weeks after the fight—Ham told me that he could get $5,000 for me if I would turn over 16⅔ of my 66⅔ per cent interest in my fistic future to Ancil Hoffman. I told him to accept, and the deal was made on October 6, 1930.

While I was debating where to go, someone suggested Reno, Nev.

"It's a boom town now; everything wide open; lots of life and action. That's the kind of tonic you need."

I went to Reno with $5,000 in my pocket. It lasted just one week, and then I headed back to Oakland. But it was during that span of exactly seven days that I met Dorothy Dunbar, fell instantly and violently in love with her, and that meeting changed the entire course of my life.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contains no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS :-: By PAUL MALLON

Peek Battles Odds In Campaign for Foreign Trade

WASHINGTON, June 25.—One man in this government believes something important can be done about foreign trade. He is George Peek. Other officials, who smoke up big statements and gr-r-reat speeches on the subject, will tell you behind their hands that it is just a little government hyplay.

Several insiders actually believe that Mr. Roosevelt started the tariff-trade talk only because he had to get Peek out of the agricultural adjustment administration and had no place else to put him.

Wiser ones have a better theory. They point out that the administration was forced to do something on the tariff because of campaign promises. Serious action was impossible because of world conditions.

Maybe some day in a year, or two, or three, the world situation will get around to where something important can be done. In the meantime, Mr. Peek is laying a good groundwork.

That is the real story underneath the bushel baskets full of words and figures now being exhibited by Mr. Peek and the foreign trade ballyhoo squad.

RESULTS

The first of the reciprocal trade treaties will be announced very soon. It is with Colombia. Negotiators completed it several weeks ago, but it cannot be made public until it is ratified by the Colombia Senate.

HERE IS SENATOR ARTHUR ROBINSON, REPUBLICAN, OF INDIANA. HIS CRITICISM OF THE ADMINISTRATION HAS GOT DEMOCRATIC SENATORS SO JUMPY THAT THEY RISE, ALMOST AS THOUGH DRILLED, WHENEVER HE ASKS RECOGNITION OF THE PRESIDING OFFICER. HE HAS STARTED MORE THAN ONE OF THE RECENT PARTISAN DEBATES BY TOSSING A FEW MAJOR AND MINOR CHARGES IN THE LAPS OF HIS DEMOCRATIC COLLEAGUES. SENATOR ROBINSON IS UP FOR RE-ELECTION THIS FALL. Malone—Washington—34.

It will be followed by treaties with Cuba, several other Latin-American nations and, possibly two or three Europeans. These, like the Colombian treaty will not make any substantial difference in the total volume of trade.

The reason for that was disclosed in the recently published Peek report. The world owes us billions (private and public debts). Mr. Peek concluded that, inasmuch as they cannot pay us, we should sell them more goods. He wants them to pay us with goods shipped to us.

That sounds good, but everyone here knows our main trouble now is that we cannot consume enough to keep our own factories and farms going.

Hence, Mr. Peek must confine himself to things we do not produce. That makes it a penny ante game among billion dollar players.

KIDDING

Mr. Peek is such an enthusiast that he is not troubled about such things, but he has personal worries just the same.

These center around the fact that, while he is the foreign trade adviser, others seem to be more influential in handling the problem. The leading one is Assistant State Secretary Francis Sayre. He negotiates all treaties. Mr. Peek, not being an official of the State Department, cannot have anything to do with making treaties. (The State Department saw to that.)

That leaves Mr. Peek in the position of an advisor in the second degree.

YELLING

One of the Presidential advisers was suggesting off-the-record the other day:

"I think the greatest recovery step which could be taken in this country right now is for everyone to stop yelling. There should be a moratorium for three months on complaining by business, labor and all those not suffering real hardships.

"There is business, half recovered, bleating about profits, extra hours, union leaders and what not. There is labor, working under as good conditions generally as it ever had, howling because it cannot have everything."

PATIENCE

Gen. Johnson never has to look for trouble. It always seeks him out and he does what he can to see that it finds him.

He has some very good friends high in the White House. Their friendship was strained when he fired the head of the union of his own NRA workers (John Donovan), saying in effect: "No one is going to tell me how to run my business." Imagine this, from Johnson.

The inside of the story, however, is much more favorable to the General than the published ones. The NRA union group is quite a high tension crowd. They move around the halls in groups of 10 to 20 looking like a mob.

Their over-aggressive tactics, however, soon exhausted what little patience Johnson has.

RULE FORESEES VOCATIONAL AID FOR JOBLESS

STATE COLLEGE, June 25.—(AP.)—Vocational education for the jobless youth and workers who find it advisable to change occupations in the recovery era were forecast today by Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction.

Speaking at the opening of the annual vocational conference, Dr. Rule said additional federal aid will make possible the extension of vocational opportunities to those who are not in school. He said:

"Details are now being worked out whereby this extended service can be made available through local public schools in communities where the school district will be able to carry a relatively small part of the total cost."

PART OF RECOVERY MOVE

He predicted vocational education activities will form an important part of national recovery, adding:

"Vocational teachers will be called upon to meet changes in industry and provide training for new or changed types of workers, both men and women.

"With the nation's annual crime bill three times the size of public school expenditures, vocational education has much to contribute to the unemployed youth problem.

"Thousands of cases are on record where disinterested boys have been encouraged to remain in school through interest aroused by a teacher in some form of vocational training.

400 ATTENDING "MEETING"

"Vocational education should challenge the best minds of the community. It should attract boys and girls of high intelligence so that future craftsmen and women will be competent to carry on the best traditions which have been developed in the various trades and industries of the state.

"Young men and women should be made vocationally competent in the fields in which there are opportunities for employment if they are to gain satisfaction from their jobs and from life."

More than 400 vocational teachers, supervisors and industrial representatives are attending the meeting.

Pontiff Receives Mrs. Nicholas Brady

VATICAN CITY, June 25.—(AP.)—Pope Pius today gave an audience to Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, papal duchess and widow of the former New York capitalist, preliminary to the inauguration later in the day of the Nicholas Brady pavilion of the Infant Jesus Hospital by Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state.

PUPILS ATTAIN PERFECT MARK

Never absent or tardy in eight years of grammar school is the perfect attednance record of two students who have just been graduated from St. Leocadia's Parochial School in Wilmerding. They are Stella Glazar and Stanley Wawsckowicz, both 14.

The students were awarded a perfect attendance certificate in recognition of their achievement. They will enter Union High School at Turtle Creek next fall.

Three perfect school attendance records in one family is the proud boast of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Berner, of 3903 Liberty avenue, Lawrenceville.

Edward, 14

Most recent is that of Edward H. Berner, 14, who graduated from St. John the Baptist Parochial School last week without having missed a day since he toddled into the first grade. Modestly Edward said:

"Oh, my sister, Rita, did the same thing. And Eileen hasn't missed a day yet. She's in the fifth grade."

END ISOLATION, TEACHERS TOLD

CHICAGO, June 25.—(AP.)—College teachers were called upon today to forsake isolation and plunge into the "social and political life of the nation."

An appeal circulated as the American Federation of Teachers opened its eighteenth annual session asserted:

"Teachers need organization which will defend their interests economically and prevent them from being forced to low levels of work and salary upon which it is impossible to maintain any life of culture.

"Unless teachers have an organization to protect them they are likely to be victimized for teaching the truth. If that truth comes into conflict with the interests of powerful and dominant groups in society."

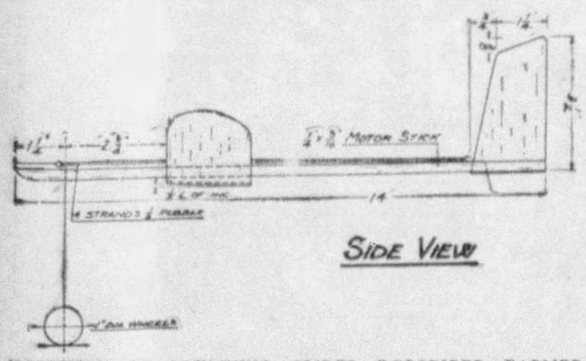
Model Builders' Course for Beginners
Lesson 13—Assembly of Low Wing Flier
Send Today for Free Book of Derby Rules

By LAWRENCE SHAW
National Director

Having completed all of the members for our low-wing flier, we should now have before us the completed wing with dihedral and wing clips already attached, the rudder, elevator



ASSEMBLY OF LOW-WING GLIDER DESCRIBED EARLIER

(or stabilizer), motor stick, landing gear with wheels already affixed, the carved propeller with shaft already inserted and the combination rear motor hook and tail skid—a two-in-one wire fitting.

We built or made all of these parts during our past few lessons. However, in addition, we should have before us a length of rubber strand for the motor, a thrust bearing which looks like a needle bent at the end where the eye is located, and three bearings or washers. These laid out before us, we are ready to start assembly of the model.

Assembling Your Balsa Wood Parts

Our first task is to assemble the tail unit. At the rear end of the motor stick, cement your elevator (or stabilizer) to the bottom of the stick, and then your rudder stop of the elevator upright and to one side of the motor stick, just as you did when assembling your glider.

This is clearly shown in the drawing of the completed lowwing flier published in this column a few days ago. There is nothing difficult about this procedure.

Secondly, we clip our wings underneath the motor stick, the smaller clip going to the front, the longer one, remember, to the rear, in order to give our wings an angle of incidence. The front of the wing should be between three and one-half to four inches back of the nose of the motor stick.

However, the wing being adjustable due to the wing-clips, we will test the model in flight when we have finished assembling it and then push the wings forward or backward should we find our model stalling or nose diving.

Next we take our landing gear and clip it to the front of the motor stick, one and one-quarter inches back of the nose. Do not move it any farther as we must leave room for attaching the thrust bearing which we will affix in our next and final lesson in the construction of our low-wing flier. Cement the landing gear to the motor stick and let your model dry.

In our next and final lesson we will assemble the rest of our plane including the motor unit, the thrust bearing, rear motor hook, the propeller and lastly the rubber motor itself. Also in our next lesson, we will have complete instructions on how to adjust and fly this speedy craft and we will then be ready to build our outdoor endurance model, in time for the July 7th meet.

Hundreds Get Eight Page Book of Rules

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing Model Plane Derby will be held Saturday, July 7 at Schenley Oval in Schenley Park. Don't forget that date. It is less than two weeks off.

Hundreds of members have already sent in asking for the free eight-page book of rules telling about the forthcoming contest. It tells you the rules and specifications for the three types of eligible planes, rules governing the contest, news of the national contest at Fort Meyer Field, Va., and the prizes to be awarded in both the local and national contests.

Here is a fine letter to your local wing commander that I want to give you. It comes from William L. Bohn, of 2419 Diehl avenue, Carrick, and reads:

"I am interested in entering the Model Plane Derby. I have built model planes for the last five or six years and I have quite a collection of all types and makes.

"I would be glad to help out in any way I could anytime I am needed.

"I would like you to send me an entry blank and also the book of rules governing the contest.

"By the way I see you have a 'Tail Spin' unit for licensed fliers who belong to the Junior Birdmen. Well, why not have a special group for licensed mechanics?

"You see I hold an airplane mechanic's license, and therefore know something about planes."

Many thanks for your interesting letter. I'll see what I can do about having a special group for licensed airplane mechanics. I'll be seeing you at the plane derby on July 7.

Put Membership Number In All Your Letters

Be sure that you write your name clearly and include your membership number and address in all letters that you send to the local headquarters. That helps us to keep a better record.

We are still holding the silver wings and membership card of a 11-year-old boy by the name of Jack, who lives at McClellandtown, Pa. We can not send him his pin because we do not know his last name.

Happy Landings!

Have You Plenty of Cotton Frocks

Pattern 1762

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern

How are you fixed for cotton frocks this summer? Don't answer too quickly! Think of those sweltering days to come . . . when every woman would like to change several times . . . and often has to, in the interest of daintiness. Then look at the pattern. Wouldn't one or two more frocks like this be a chic safeguard? Remember, they are the simplest thing in the world to make! Did you ever see so much style crowded into one detail as that clever yoke manages to combine in its tabbed front, long shoulder lines, and the clever point at the back?

Pattern 1762 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

The smartest warm weather fashions, the newest fabrics, and the Summer season's outstanding accessories are illustrated and described in the NEW PATTERN BOOK FOR SUMMER. ORDER YOUR COPY OF THIS HELPFUL NEW SUMMER BOOK. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I can sympathize with those who have been waiting patiently for their checks from the Department of Military Affairs. Although I have not written much lately about the bonus checks, I haven't forgotten about them nor have they escaped my especial vigilance.

In spite of all the speed at Harrisburg, there remain many veterans who have not yet heard about their money.

This is partly due to the delay between Washington and Harrisburg in checking veterans' records, and partly to the increasing number of applications being filed.

I'll venture to say that hundreds, or perhaps thousands, who are eligible for their soldiers' bonus have not as yet made their applications.

The widows and children have been further held up because of necessary routine and investigation to make sure that only the parties entitled by law to receive the checks do so.

Be patient, and remember that it only hinders to write to Harrisburg. Some clerk will have to leave his work to read and note your letter.

I have received a round-robin complaint from women patrons of the Highland Park swimming pool, who say that the new rules require them to walk an inconvenient distance to get to their lockers after swimming.

I'll forward the letter to the Recreation Department.

I'll be glad to be of what service I can in ironing out taxpayers difficulties with city administrative rules.

Let me know of any unpleasant or dangerous condition that diminishes the pleasure and usefulness of swimming pools. The administration, I'm sure, will be glad to hear of such things, too.

"Man Eater" Story On WCAE

"Sharks and Teir Taking Ways," an educational address by A. W. Henn, of the Carnegie Museum, is broadcast from WCAE at 6 o'clock.

The Pittsburghers are heard in special arrangements of popular airs at 7:45, and the baseball scores are flashed at 6:25 and 11 P. M.

The Sun-Telegraph Family is heard at 4:45 P. M.

Registration for Pitt Summer Sessions

Registration for the regular six weeks summer session at the University of Pittsburgh will be held Friday from 1 to 4 p. m., and Saturday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. in the Cathedral of Learning.

Besides the classes at the Oakland school, Pitt will also conduct summer courses at its Johnstown and Erie branches and special biological studies at Rector and Erie, Pa., and Woods Hole, Mass. A survey camp for engineering and geology students is maintained at Windber, Pa.

Barristers Broadcast Tonight

Homer S. Cummings, United States Attorney General; Seth Richardson, former assistant Attorney General, and others speak during the Federal Bar Association dinner in Hotel Shoreham in Washington tonight over an NBC-WCAE network at 10:30.

* * *

Lud Gluskin and his Continental Orchestra, European society favorites for the past 12 years, and Henrietta Schumann, brilliant young pianist, are signed for a summer series of weekly broadcasts beginning over a CBS-WJAS network tonight at 9:30.

* * *

"Just Another Hero," romantic comedy by Gordon Saint Clair, Chicago playwright, opens a new half hour series of dramatic presentations by The Players over an NBC-KDKA network at 9:30.

* * *

Yankee Doodle

A specially arranged overture of tunes by Broadway's famous "Yankee Doodle" song writer, George M. Cohan, is heard as the opening feature of the Contented program on WCAE at 10.

The Cohan numbers to be heard are "Give My Regards to Broadway," "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "You're a Grand Old Flag." Morgan L. Eastman's concert orchestra, a male quarter and the Lullaby Lady also are heard in the program.

* * *

The voice of experience discusses an unusual problem during his 8 o'clock period on WJAS tonight. His correspondent is a 23-year-old blind man in love with a 22-year-old mute. They have been friends for 12 years, and during that time have devised a way of communication.

Violinist

Sascha Jacobson, concert violinst, has chosen Mendelssohn's only violin concerto as his solo number with the NBC Symphony Orchestra tonight on a NBC-KDKA network at 10.

He is accompanied in the full hour broadcast by the NBC Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Frank Black.

The orchestra offers Dvorak's Suite in D and the Coriolanus Overture by Beethoven.

Rosa Ponselle repeats Grosvenor's lilting tune, "I Carry You in My Pocket" during her broadcast with Andre Kostelanet's Orchestra and chorus on WJAS at 9.

The Shopkeeper Turns Gentleman," a radio adaptation of Molier's four-act comedy "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," is the Radio Guild dramatization heard over KDKA this afternoon at 3.

The story concerns Monsieur Jourdan, who after making a great deal of money in business becomes possessed of high social ambitions and tries to arrange a marriage between his daughter and a count.

Dots, Dashes Eventually Get Them

By AIRCASTER

Poor "Sparks!"

He's as nice a lad as you'll ever find, but the constant strain of listening to the wireless dots and dashes in his earphones has begun to tell on his mind.

I've known a dozen others like him—victims of the incessant, staccato, high-pitched peep that spells out messages from shore station to ship, and vessel to vessel.

Long voyages and quick turnarounds in port, with little time ashore, have something to do with it, too.

Some day, they'll install voice transmitting equipment in all ship's radio cabins and do away with the damage that's done by dots and dashes, and there'll be fewer ex-wireless operators in the psychopathic wards.

All in Fun

It's a temptation to his shipmates at the mess table to "ride" poor, good natured Sparks for their own amusement.

He's a great fellow for telling tall tales, but he never gets a story told.

"I was in one of the Orient liners sailing out of Bremerton back in '29," Sparks will begin, by way of spinning a yarn at supper time.

"They don't sail out of Bremerton—they sail from 'Frisco!' the junior engineer across the table will contradict."

"Well, Bremerton's a suburb of "Frisco," Sparks will explain, trying to get on with his story.

"G'wan! Bremerton's up in Washington, 500 miles from the 'Golden Gate'," someone will interrupt.

"Alright, Anyhow, I was with the Orient Line in '29 when . . ."

"I thought you said you were running to Africa on the America-West Africa Line in '29!" another messmate reminds him.

"I got around a lot, that year," Sparks will blythely pass it off.

And that's about as far as he gets with that or any other story.

About Time

Sparks and I became close friends during the voyage. He has built a home for his mother in a small town not far from Pittsburgh, and allots her most of his monthly pay.

He used to breeze into my cabin where he knew he'd find a sympathetic ear and I heartily encouraged him in his impatience to quit the sea and go home to the house he's built on a few farm acres in God's country—where even the worst of radio is easier on the ear than dots and dashes.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

HIGHWAY DEATH TOLL SHOCKS ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt said in a letter read today at the convention of the American Automobile Association that he was "deeply concerned over the staggering toll of deaths, injuries and heavy property damage caused by highway accidents."

The letter, addressed to Thomas P. Henry, of Detroit, president of the association, said:

"We cannot longer afford to temporize with this problem.

"Those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they assume when they take the wheel.

"Safer conditions for travel undoubtedly would contribute to a greater use of the highways, now that shorter working hours and more leisure time is assured by the national recovery program.

"It is to such organizations as the American Automobile Association that we look for leadership in the continuing effort to work out a solution of the accident problem. You are to be congratulated on what you have accomplished in the past and on the broad-gauged program you are formulating for the future.

"I extend to you and your associates my cordial good wishes for a successful convention."

In his opening address, Henry said misappropriation of highway funds, operation of roadside courts and lack of national and community planning to check highway accidents was hampering the development of highway transportation. He said:

"Our estimates indicate that road funds are now being diverted at the rate of $200,000,000 a year, or approximately 20 per cent of the total collections from special motor taxes.

"This huge sum of money, which is to all intents and purposes stolen, or used as a political jack pot, would build 10,000 miles of hard-surfaced roads."

FARLEY IN TALK AT HYDE PARK

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

International News Service.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 25—President Roosevelt held a lengthy conference with Postmaster General James Farley today.

The pair discussed the personnel of two important commissions to be named within the next few days, for stock market regulation and for communications.

The Postmaster General and Democratic National Committee Chairman arrived about noon, and went directly to the Roosevelt home. He said he brought with him a long list of prospective names for the commission personnel. Mr. Roosevelt announced before he left Washington a week ago that he would name the two commissions, to comprise five men each, before he sailed for his Pacific trip next Saturday.

Farley indicated that the general political situation might be gone over in his talk with the President.

'White House' Ship Ready for Cruise

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 25.—(AP.)—Escorted by two destroyers, the heavy cruiser Houston, which will be President Roosevelt's floating White House later this summer, steamed out of the Brooklyn Navy Yard today.

The Houston, one of the Navy's new 10,000-ton treaty cruisers, will proceed to Annapolis where she will remain in readiness to take the President on a cruise to Hawaii via the Caribbean, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Panama Canal.

COMIC PARADE LURING MANY

The Sun-Telegraph comic parade by the boys and girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity at Kennywood Park, Friday, July 13, promises to be the big event of the summer. Hundreds of youngsters are already, with the help of their parents, preparing their costumes and make-up to represent one of the favorite characters in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph comic pages.

Maggie

There'll be "Barney Googles," "Katzenjammer Kids," "Tillies," "Toots" and "Caspers," "Jiggs" and "Maggies" and plenty of "Popeyes" in the parade. Yes, and it looks as though "Mickey Mouse" will not be neglected. Of course there'll be a lot of "Snuggins," "Skippys" and "Tim Tylers."

What a colorful parade this is going to make and what a lot of real fun it is going to produce. Don't wait until the last minute to get your entry blank filed. It costs nothing. Clip it today and send it in right away.

Bear in mind that there will be scores of fine prizes for the best "make-ups," including two expensive bicycles—one for a boy and one for a girl. Yes, and hundreds of strips of free tickets will be given away for the rides and the shows. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for details.

CHURCHES JOIN TO CLEAN FILMS

CHICAGO, June 25.—(AP.)—Chicago's Protestant churches joined with the Catholics in their fight on indecent motion pictures.

A committee of the Chicago Church Federation, a co-operative organization of Protestant churches, yesterday forwarded to their member churches suggestions for lines of action to follow in carrying out the crusade, and recommended that the federation as a whole send a communication to all its members urging co-operation through a pledge of non-attendance and otherwise.

North Side Man Beaten, Robbed

Matt Sumic, 40, of 1217 Spring Garden avenue, was waylaid in West Park, near the green house, beaten and robbed of $2.50. A short time later police reported the arrest of John Ruskavige, 18, of 1812 Shore avenue, on a charge of robbery. Ruskavige was hiding under the torpedo tube at the Maine Memorial in West Park when taken into custody, police said.

Elector Who Voted For Lincoln Dies

CHICAGO, June 25.—(AP.)—Granville Davisson Hall, 96, former secretary of state of West Virginia and a presidential elector who cast his vote for Abraham Lincoln at his second election, died last night at his home in suburban Glencoe.

He was a shorthand reporter in the United States Senate, then went to Wheeling, W. Va., to become private secretary to Gov. Pierpont, the state's first Governor. He subsequently worked on the Wheeling Intelligencer, which he later bought and served as editor.

ROBBERS POSE AS RUM AGENTS

Three robbers posing as state liquor enforcement agents held up the home of Chmielewski Konstanty, of 85 Spruce street, Natrona, last night and escaped with $400 in cash and some jewelry.

When the three men arrived at Konstanty's, they said they were agents, had a warrant to search the house and were admitted by Mrs. Jane Zilokowski, daughter of Konstanty. As they entered, the men drew guns, cut the telephone wires and herded the family into the kitchen.

While one gunman stood guard, the others ransacked the house, stealing three rings, two watches and the cash.

A week ago Mrs. Konstanty was fined $500 for violating the state liquor laws.

WELL-BALANCED DINNER MENU FOR SUMMER TIME

Coolness—aren't we all striving for it in our summer foods? We want a certain lightness and color in our meals that will attract us despite the heat of the day.

And coolness is what Mrs. Lee C. Bortz, of Apollo, incorporates in her dinner, the first of our week's reader-contributed menus. It is not merely food, dished out in any form, but a carefully arranged culinary picture.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. ELLEN ATKINSON,
648 East Second street, Salem, O.

PINEAPPLE OATMEAL COOKIES

Two cups sugar.
One cup shortening.
One cup water.
Two cups oatmeal.
Three cups flour.
Three eggs.
Three teaspoons soda.
Three-quarters teaspoon salt.
Three-quarters cup sour milk.
Pinch salt.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One cup raisins.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
Small can grated pineapple.

Cream shortening and sugar, sift flour, soda, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Add sour milk alternately with the flour mixture. Grind raisins, nuts, oatmeal in a food grinder, add to the dough. Put in the pineapple and the beaten eggs. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven. If quick cooking oatmeal is used do not grind. Some cooks prefer to cut rather than grind the nuts and raisins.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. GEORGE J. GREY,
432 Fifth street, Wilkinsburg.

PRUNE ICE CREAM

Two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk.
Two cups water.
One-fourth teaspoon lemon extract.
One cup whipping cream.
One-fourth pound prunes.

Cook the prunes in water until tender. Do not sweeten. Force through a coarse sieve. This will make approximately one-half cup puree. Add one-half cup puree to condensed milk. Blend together the sweetened condensed milk, prune pulp with juice and lemon extract. Chill. Whip the cream to a custard-like consistency. Fold into the chilled mixture. Pour the mixture into the freezing pan and pack in the freezing unit. After the mixture has frozen into a stiff mush, (one or two hours) remove from the refrigerator. Scrape the mixture from the sides and bottom of pan and beat for two minutes. Smooth out and replace in the freezing unit for one hour, or until frozen for serving. Serves six.

MRS. ELEVENER,
238 Sweetland avenue, Carnegie.

GRAHAM CRACKER CAKE

Thirty graham crackers rolled to crumbs.
One teaspoon baking powder, sift in crumbs.
One cup sour milk or a little more.
One small teaspoon soda, dissolved in milk.
One egg, beaten.
Two tablespoons butter.
One cup brown sugar.

Cream the shortening and sugar, add the beaten egg, then milk and add to the cracker crumbs. Bake in two layers.

FILLING

One package of dates.
One-half cup of water.
One-half cup of sugar.

Pour hot water over dates to remove the thin skin, drain, then cut in small pieces and cook. Spread between the layers and top with whipped cream.

MRS. M. C. RICHARDSON,
301 Orchard street.

SOUR CREAM SALAD DRESSING

One cup sour cream.
Two tablespoons vinegar.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One teaspoon sugar.
One-eighth teaspoon celery seed.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
One-fourth teaspoon mustard.
One canned pimento.

Beat cream until stiff and then add vinegar, lemon juice, sugar, salt, pepper, paprika and mustard. Beat all together until very thick. Add celery seeds and pimento cut in small pieces. Serve on sliced cucumbers.

MARGARET B. SELL,
421 Canal street, Leesburg.

STURDY HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

Cream two tablespoons butter with one of flour. Add one cup boiling water, slowly stirring carefully. Then place over a low heat or in a double boiler and stir until thickened. Remove from stove and add slowly the well beaten yolks of two eggs, stirring it steadily. Season with a teaspoon of onion juice, juice of half a lemon, two spoons salt and a few grains of white pepper or paprika. Use with cauliflower, spinach, asparagus or broccoli.

MRS. RUTH ENNIS MANN,
2226 Spring street, Mt. Oliver station.

CALLA LILLIES

Three eggs.
Three-quarter cup sugar.
One cup flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Beat eggs a few at time, add sugar and beat. Sift flour and baking powder with baking powder and beat two minutes. Add vanilla. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet about three inches apart. Bake at 350 degrees until done, 15 min. Remove at once and roll like a flower. Place with folded side down to cool. Serve as a dessert using candied orange peel for stems and whipped cream tinted green for leaves and stem.

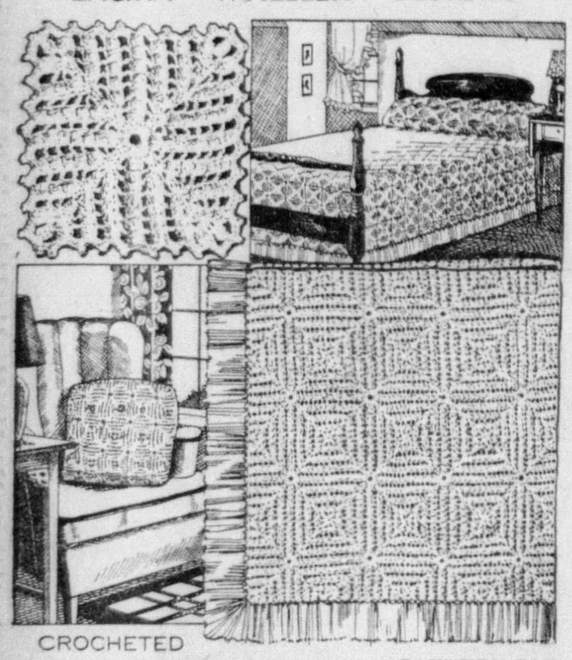
LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



CROCHETED POPCORN MEDALLION PATTERN 767

The crocheted popcorn bedspread, popular in Colonial Days, has, like so many of the lovely accessories of those times, again come to the fore. Whoever has seen one immediately realizes what beauty it adds to a bedroom, and if they know only the least thing about crochet will want to get their crochet hook right out and get to making one. This one, rich in design, yet easy to do, has continuous rows of popcorns, as the little raised knobs are called. The design, made in squares, makes a continuous pattern of small squares that makes a most effective spread. Aside from this use, the square also can be joined to make a handsome pillow for living room or bedroom.

Pattern 767 comes to you with complete directions for making the popcorn square and for joining it to make a variety of articles: illustrations of all stitches needed and material requirements.

20 PASSENGERS SHAKEN IN TROLLEY-TRUCK COLLISION

STUBENRAUCH SUSPENDED AGAIN

Often Hired, Fired Policeman Held as Drunk, Gun Wielder

Ho, hum . . . Patrolman Herman Stubenrauch was in another jam today.

Stubenrauch, who is just about the most hired and fired policeman on the city payroll, is under suspension again, this time charged with being drunk and disorderly, pointing his gun and for conduct unbecoming an officer.

After his arrest in Brookline at 2 a. m. Sunday, Stubenrauch appeared before Magistrate Howard B. McNutt, in Mt. Washington Police Court, yesterday morning in uniform and his head swathed in bandages. He was held for the police trial board.

According to Jack Eckert, county police sergeant, who turned Stubenrauch over to city police, Stubenrauch drew his gun on Dietz Keifer, of 1201 Hillsdale avenue, and A. Easton because they would not permit him to enter a club in Broadway, Beechview, to get a drink. Easton is employed by the club, Eckert said.

BLOOD ON NECK

Eckert, seeing Stubenrauch holding the men at bay with a gun, questioned the officer and the latter, according to Eckert, replied:

"These guys got fresh with me."

Stubenrauch had no hat and blood was streaming down the back of his neck, Eckert said.

Eckert said he tried to persuade Stubenrauch to put his gun aside, but the policeman turned it on Eckert, saying, according to the latter:

"I'll shoot your legs off."

Eckert continued:

"A crowd had gathered and as I tried to take Stubenrauch's gun away he hit me on the chin with a black jack. I knocked him down."

ALDERMAN KICKED

Eckert said Stubenrauch laid on the street kicking at everyone, one of the kicks catching Alderman Len Dyer on his crippled leg, causing the official a great deal of pain.

Eckert turned Stubenrauch over to Patrolman John T. Walker and as Stubenrauch was being led away by the officer Eckert quoted him as saying:

"I'm no squawker, but Jimmy Hoey is gonna hear about this."

(He referred to James N. Hoey, former police official, now a member of the police commission probing the police department.)

WAS VICE INVESTIGATOR

Stubenrauch was an investigator for the late vice-crusading Citizens League some eight years ago, but at the same time he was an undercover man for Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh.

In 1929, after he had been fired and rehired from the force, he was arrested on a charge of beating up a North Side man.

In September, 1930, he was again arrested on a disorderly conduct charge after he had been arraigned before the Police Trial Board.

In October, 1930, he was fired from the force, but in April, 1931, he was once more rehired.

CABARET MAN FINED, 49 FREED

Manuel Cohn, alleged proprietor of "Derby Dad's," a cabaret at 72 Fullerton street, was fined $50, and 49 white and Negro men and women who were arrested there when Inspector John Schnurr raided the place early yesterday, were discharged by Magistrate J. W. McGowan yesterday morning.

Inspector Schnurr said the music was playing at 5:30 o'clock in the morning. He also said Cohn attempted to "proposition" him. Cohn was fined for keeping a disorderly house.

Fifth Avenue Store Entered, Youth Held

A youth who said he was Palmer Marokis, 20, of 17 Kirkpatrick street, was held by Magistrate J. W. McGowan on burglary charges yesterday after Lieut. Dennis Hennessy and Patrolman L. Clouse testified they caught him in Weiner's Market, 2204 Fifth avenue, Saturday night. The officers said he had broken a window to gain entrance to the establishment.

Huey Long Gets Newspaper Vote As Best Dressed

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Washington newspaper men voted Huey Long the best-dressed man in Congress. That entitles Huey to fly his pearl gray spats from the top of the Washington Monument.

Senator Borah is the best talker on any subject and can boil an egg just by breathing on it.

Ohio Pess is the most conservative and author of that famous advice to never judge a turtle by its shell. There aint any other way of judging it. But the remark elected him to the Senate.

The newsboys started a riot when they said Indiana Robinson was least likely to be missed. Robby is up for election and is afraid somebody in Indiana will get hold of a newspaper.

The poll annoyed everybody. The Literary Digest had used all the straw in their votes, so the newspaper boys used spiny cactus.

HOTEL WOMEN ELECT HEAD

Mrs. Leona Harrison, of the Hotel William Penn, was the newly elected president today of the Pittsburgh Chapter, National Executive Housekeepers' Association.

Mrs. Harrison

Mrs. Harrison, who has been connected with the Eppley Hotels Company since the beginning of its first operations in Sioux City, Ia., 20 years ago, tendered a dinner to the retiring president, Mrs. Suzanne Staley, supervising housekeeper of the Children's Hospital. Other officers elected by the organization of clubs, hospital and hotel housekeepers, are: Vice president, Miss Marie Martin, Duquesne Club; secretary, Miss Josephine Phillips, Hotel William Penn, and treasurer, Miss Ida Lample, Ruskin Apartments.

KILLING IN CAMP HOLDS 2 MEN

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 25.—(AP.)—Two Pittsburghers are in jail awaiting the action of a coroner's jury on a charge that they fatally beat a third man, also of Pittsburgh.

The victim, Oakland Reynolds, 26, of Lincoln place, died early yesterday from a broken neck and other injuries.

Police jailed H. W. Flowers, 30, brother-in-law of Reynolds, and Charles Airhart, 31, both of whom brought Reynolds to a Uniontown hospital. He was dead upon arrival.

Police quoted Flowers and Airhart as saying a quarrel preceded the fatal beating, which occurred at a road camp where the three lived.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLWOOD, Cal., June 25.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

Lots of news today about that South American war. I was down there almost two years ago and they were going strong then. Now, how can they fight that long without getting all their war material from other nations. That's why there will always be war. You got every nation that's not in it boosting for it, for everybody makes money out of a war but the nations fighting. We used to think war couldn't last long because one or both sides had no money. Why there is no industry under the sun you can get credit as quick for as you can war. This war down there has been on credit since 24 hours after it started.

BANDIT'S SHOT KILLS SON OF MERCHANT

Youth Felled Running To Aid of Parent; Gunman Escapes

Charles Torin, 21, of 2425 Center avenue, died last night in Passavant Hospital from the bullet wound he received when he ran to the assistance of his father in a holdup of their store, 2412 Center avenue, Saturday night, according to a Coroner's report.

A wide search is being made today for the Negro gunman who shot his way out of the store after wounding the younger Torin.

According to police, Torin, with a companion, William Schutte, 22, of 2412 Center avenue, was sitting in an automobile in front of his father's store when he heard his parent's cry for help. As the youth ran into the store, the Negro opened fire and Torin fell with a bullet in his abdomen.

The gunman fled from the store, firing two shots at A. J. Leff, of 2501 Center avenue, who had run toward the store upon hearing the shot. Both bullets went wild.

The elder Torin told police he cried out to his son when the Negro drew a gun and ordered him to throw up his hands.

AIR TALK LEADS TO HOTEL SUIT

A recent radio talk telling of the amoebic dysentery epidemic in Chicago last summer has led a Pittsburgh steel official to enter suit for $35,000 damages against the Congress Hotel in that city, J. W. Benner, of the Bellefield Dwellings, Oakland, is the plaintiff in the suit, entered Saturday in the Federal Court, Chicago.

According to Benner, a superintendent of the Carnegie Steel Company in Homestead, he became ill a month after returning from a visit to the Mid-West city and was sick for two months. He said he believes he contracted the disease through food.

JOHN CROFT INSPECTING CRUMBLING WOOD PARTIALLY DEVOURED BY TERMITES AT HOMESTEAD'S MONONGAHELA BANK

HIGHTOWER ROW PROBED BY BELL

Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell today ordered an investigation into the affair in the Hill district Saturday when the Rev. Arthur V. B. Hightower, Negro detective and preacher, was beaten while arresting Herman Dixon, reputed gambler.

Hightower complained that the police of Center Avenue Station refused to aid him when he asked for help in making the arrest. Instead, he himself was later arrested for assault and battery, but was dismissed.

Director Bell ordered Inspector John Schnurr to make a complete inquiry and submit a report to him.

BOY, 11, KILLED BY STONE

Investigation continued today into the death of Walter Kocier II, of Freeport road, although county detectives said they were convinced that the boy's skull had not been fractured by a stone from a sling shot.

Police are working on the theory that Walter had been killed by a stone thrown by an unidentified man or by a stone cast by an automobile tire. The father of the boy informed police he thought his son had been killed by a sling shot.

Pest Horde in Bank Routed After Year's War

Insects Found Way Through 35-Foot Concrete Wall

By devising a method of starving the pests to death, the Monongahela Trust Company of Homestead has succeeded in ridding the bank of a horde of termites which had penetrated concrete and eaten much of the woodwork in the bank's coupon room.

After nearly a year spent combatting the wood-eating insects, the bank tried pouring a water-soluble mineral into the holes they had made.

The little pests lapped up this solution greedily, even licking it off each other. The mineral kills the bacteria parasites which live in the termites' stomachs and digest the wood for the pests.

With the bacteria killed off by the solution, the termites were unable to digest the wood they ate, so they starved to death.

The termites had grown to a colony of thousands in the vault before the exterminator came along and apparently wiped them out.

New Hours, Prices Adopted by Barbers

MOTHER, FIVE CHILDREN HURT IN CRASH

Ball Smashing Shield Results in Injuries To Three Men

Twenty passengers on an inbound McKeesport street car were shaken last night when the trolley collided with a truck in Second avenue, at Ross street. The motorman, Jess Verna, 38, of 778 Hazelwood avenue, and the truck driver, Anthony Schubert, 29, of 3720 McCord street, were injured.

Both truck and trolley were damaged. Traffic was tied up for almost a half hour.

Seven persons, including a mother and her five children, were injured early today when a son lost control of their automobile and it crashed into a tree near the Oakmont Country Club on Hulton road.

HAD NO LICENSE

The injured were:

Mrs. Rose Adamski, 40, of 423 Ridge avenue, Verona; John, 14; Helen, 12; Louis, 23; Sofia, 9, and Walter Adamski, 7, and Catherine Burich, 17, of Oakmont.

Two passing motorists took them to Pittsburgh Hospital, where the first three received treatment for minor hurts. The Burich girl, Sofia and Walter were detained with head injuries.

Oakmont police said Louis was driving the car and had no driver's card. The auto was demolished.

Three persons were injured when a batted baseball crashed into the windshield of an automobile driven by Robert Green, of West Ninth street, Homestead, causing it to stop so suddenly that it was struck by a following machine, according to police.

HIT CROSSING STREET

The injured were David Garsarello, 30, of Ralton, driver of the second car; his brother, Phillip and Frank Deloss, 47, also of Ralton.

Miss Margaret Metzer, 19, of 118 Cherry street, Etna, was in Allegheny General Hospital today with a broken leg suffered when she was struck by an automobile yesterday while crossing Butler street, Etna. The alleged driver of the car, John Boljkovac, 62, of 120 Sheridan street, Millvale, was held by Etna police.

Mrs. M. Kincaid, of 3132 Duquesne avenue, McKeesport, wife of C. M. Kincaid, McKeesport Tin Plate official, was injured when Kincaid's automobile collided with another automobile at Garbett and Patterson avenues, McKeesport, according to a police report. Martin Turner, of Rochester, Pa., a passenger in the other automobile, driven by Fred W. Green, of Beaver Falls, was slightly injured, police said.

EX-HOCKEY STAR SUICIDE IN CELL

Ten minutes after he had been jailed on a reckless driving charge, Russell (Silver) McCrimmon, 40, of West Prospect street, Ingram, former hockey star, hanged himself with his belt in the Ingram police station, early yesterday, according to a Coroner's report.

Sgt. William Shaffer, who tried to revive McCrimmon, told deputies McCrimmon had been arrested after his automobile had collided with a bus. A physician reported him under the influence of liquor, the deputies said they were told. McCrimmon leaves a wife and two children.

Jobless 3 Years, Man Hangs Self

Unemployed for three years, John Shaginaw, 36, of 1617 Seymour street, North Side, hanged himself in the attic of his home last night, the morgue reported. Mrs. Anna Shaginaw, his sister-in-law, said she found the body suspended from a light fixture on the wall shortly after he told the family he was going for a walk.

RARE INDIAN IDOL FEATURES RELIC COLLECTION HERE

4,000 Separate Items Found at Camps, Burial Grounds

S. Homer Spargo, 50, of 429 East Carson street, shows what is probably one of the best collections of Western Pennsylvania Indian relics, including a rare Indian idol, at his home today.

For many years, Spargo was assistant field director for the Monongahela Valley Historical and Museum Association, and later, under George Fisher, director of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Commission.

He found most of his collection himself—about 4,000 separate items—in Indian burial grounds and camp sites, scattered throughout Western Pennsylvania. Thousands of other articles he discovered are now a part of Pennsylvania's state collection.

The idol, somewhat larger than a large orange, appears to be a worn river pebble in the shape of a man's head, with a hole bored through it from top to bottom. Eyes are ovals cut into the stone, and the lips are raised and well carved. The workman who dug it out of an Edgeworth street, near Sewickley, broke the nose with his pick. It is Spargo's belief that this is the only Indian idol ever found in Western Pennsylvania.

Other items in the collection include poisoned arrow heads, still venomous, flint knives, tomahawk heads, shell scrapers and bone pins and surgical instruments.

Spargo explains that Indians were buried almost always in a sitting position, facing the setting sun. Several skeletons he and Fisher unearthed have been sent to Harrisburg to become part of the state exhibition.

Dancer With Ambition To Be Jumper Missing

Eleanor Sabaric, brunette tap-dancing and blues-singing miss of 15, with a weakness for parachute jumping and a desire to become a movie star, has been missing from her home, 609 Ann street, Homestead, since Thursday.

Her mother, Mrs. Meta Kiepper, who describes the child as black haired and eyed and pretty, recommends that all airports be searched because her daughter always wanted to learn parachute jumping.

Then, again, her mother said, she might have gone to Hollywood because she wanted to crash the movies. She also had discussed a fishing trip to Wellsburg, police were told.

Teacher Leads to Grave Of Girl's Burned Body

SHARON, Pa., June 25.—A confession to a clergyman by Homer Sanders, 43, school teacher and engineer, today had led to the recovery of some of the bones of 4-year-old Leah Minerva Dilley, in connection with whose death Sanders is being held.

Sanders was visited in jail at Mercer yesterday by his pastor, the Rev. William Diefenderfer. Then for the first time Sanders changed his story that the girl's body had been burned completely.

He later gave the information to state police and accompanied them to a tract of ground near his home.

The officers pulled from some refuse what remained of the child's torso and the legs.

The Dilley girl disappeared on June 3. Sanders claims that he found her dead on the floor of a house which he had fumigated and that he cremated her body.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

The chapel of the Church of the Ascension will be the scene of a pretty wedding today—that of Eleanor Milward Kirkpatrick, daughter of the Harlow B. Kirkpatricks, of Schenley Farms, and Charles B. Saints, son of the Charles A. Saintses, of Balph avenue, Bellevue, to take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The rector, the Rev. Dr. H. Boyd Edwards, will officiate, and the bride's father will give her in marriage.

Traditional white satin will be the choice of the bride for her gown. It will be fashioned with long sleeves, a train and a high neckline with a touch of lace. Her lace veil will be that worn by her sister-in-law-to-be, Mrs. John Hyslop, the former Margaret Saints, at her wedding in July, 1933.

Bride's Only Attendant Will Be Her Sister

Elizabeth Kirkpatrick, as her sister's only attendant, will wear pink organdie with a distinctive ruff of the organdie framing her face. Her hat will be of rough pink straw, and her bouquet will be Colonial.

Atwood Austin, of Pittsburgh, will be best man, and Paul Coggins and William Davenport will be ushers.

A reception in the Pittsburgh Country Club will follow the ceremony, after which the bride and bridegroom will leave for a Canadian motor trip.

Cora Ingham to Wed Charles W. Baldwin, Jr.

Another bride of today is to be Cora May Ingham, the Charles T. Ingham's daughter, who is to wed Charles W. Baldwin, Jr., son of the Charles K. Baldwins, of White Stone, L. I., this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Ingham home, Bellefonte street.

The bride is to wear a pale yellow organza dress having a ruffled-edged shawl collar of the same material, and she is to carry Talisman roses; her only attendant, Harriet McNair, is to wear pale green organza and carry yellow roses. Owen C. Lincoln to be best man.

After a small reception in the Ingham home, the bride and bridegroom will leave on a motor trip. They'll make their home in Wilson.

The bride attended Winchester College and Pennsylvania College for Women; the bridegroom is a graduate of Colgate University.

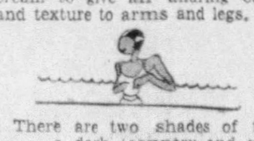
Wave an arm . . . Shake a leg! The yearly undressing scene is on . . . the parade of sportsters—sunning, swimming, slouching about. And as very few of us are Miss Americas when it comes to our personal beach appearances, some kindly soul has thought up the new scheme of using suntan cream to give an alluring color and texture to arms and legs.



There are two shades of this . . . a dark (coppery and very very flattering to brunettes) . . . and a light shade (that gives mediums and blondes a beige hue that is something to envy). This eliminates uncomfortable burning . . . gives you an even, all-over tan . . . and is easily applied. It won't dry out the skin or leave you with stains . . . and isn't at all sticky. In other words . . . a simply grand thing to have in your vacation luggage or at home. $1.00 the large-ish jar.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Girl Told Two Can Play Date-Breaking Game

Boys that FLIM you, sisters, seem in the ascendancy these days. Maybe it is the weather. So balmy and sunshiny that the fellows like to be out in the open spaces, and alone. Or again loafing around corners, and watching strangers go by.

Anyway, they don't SHOW UP when they have dates.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 17 and am going steady with a fellow of 19. I am in love with him, and he says he loves me. He asked me to marry him. But I refused. Because he hasn't steady work. He comes over to the house when he has a date with me. This will continue for about three weeks. Then all of a sudden he flims me. When I meet him on the street, the next time, he coaxes me to let him come up and see me. He never has a good excuse for his broken date. And I don't insist upon it.

Miss Brunot

After he coaxes long enough, I let him come again. And again, he flims me.

Should I continue going with him? BROKEN DREAMS.

After a fellow had flimmed me in this fashion ever so often, it does seem that it would be quite impossible for him to coax long enough, to get back again . . . Perhaps you have been too EASY in this matter with your boy friend. He may think you don't care. Be more severe, and keep him on PROBATION. That may cure him.

Without a good excuse, it is a serious social offense for a young man to keep on breaking dates. A fellow who does this would not be a good husband. For when a person fails in small responsibilities, he cannot be relied upon for bigger ones.

ALL IN A DAZE

THANK YOU says she is all in a DAZE on account of the way a certain fellow acts. The boy friend has been in the limelight for three years, and occasionally FLIMS her. He goes to military school, or at least he did. And this gives him an individual swagger, she hates to pass up.

He confesses he has another girl friend whom he likes very much, and might even marry were their ages more similar. The last time this soldier boy broke a date, he wrote quite a contrite letter, and said he had been on a veritable TEAR the night of the unfulfilled engagement and that he would have been anything but a credit to THANK YOU.

Yet that affection she has for him still hangs on, and she wants to know what she shall do. He tells her that were he a better fellow, she certainly would be the real girl for him. And that pins her. For she's one of those gals who has a hankering toward the reformation of mankind.

I'm afraid, I'll have to say, turn about is fair play. And the next time you manage to have a date with this young man, you do the FLIMMING. That might make him see things differently. Personally, I can't see that even the military trappings should convert this roustabout into anything phenomenal. Wait awhile, and he may settle down. Otherwise he will be well worth the losing. Let the other girl have him.

OTHER GIRL JEALOUS

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 18, and have been going with a young man of 20. I am deeply in love with him. But there is a girl whom he has known for 16 years, and she is very jealous of me because I am very popular when I go places. He says he loves me. But I kid him about the other girl. Sometimes she asks him to take her and some of her people certain places. And he does it. This girl is 22 and is not very good looking, and no one seems to like her. He always objects if he sees me with anyone else. And he says if he wanted this girl, he could have her.

This girl's sister, every time I go down to his house, is there also with his sister. And she keeps watching me all the time. Until I wonder if I am queer. Please tell me if you think this boy loves me. I will be looking for your answer in the Sun-Telegraph. BETTY.

A girl can't wipe out the entire past of any young man, no matter how much he cares for her. And the very fact that your boy friend has known this girl for 16 years makes their friendship something that cannot be broken immediately.

I do not think you have anything at all to be jealous about, and the fact you make so much fuss over it may be the only thing which may bring your love affair to a sad ending.

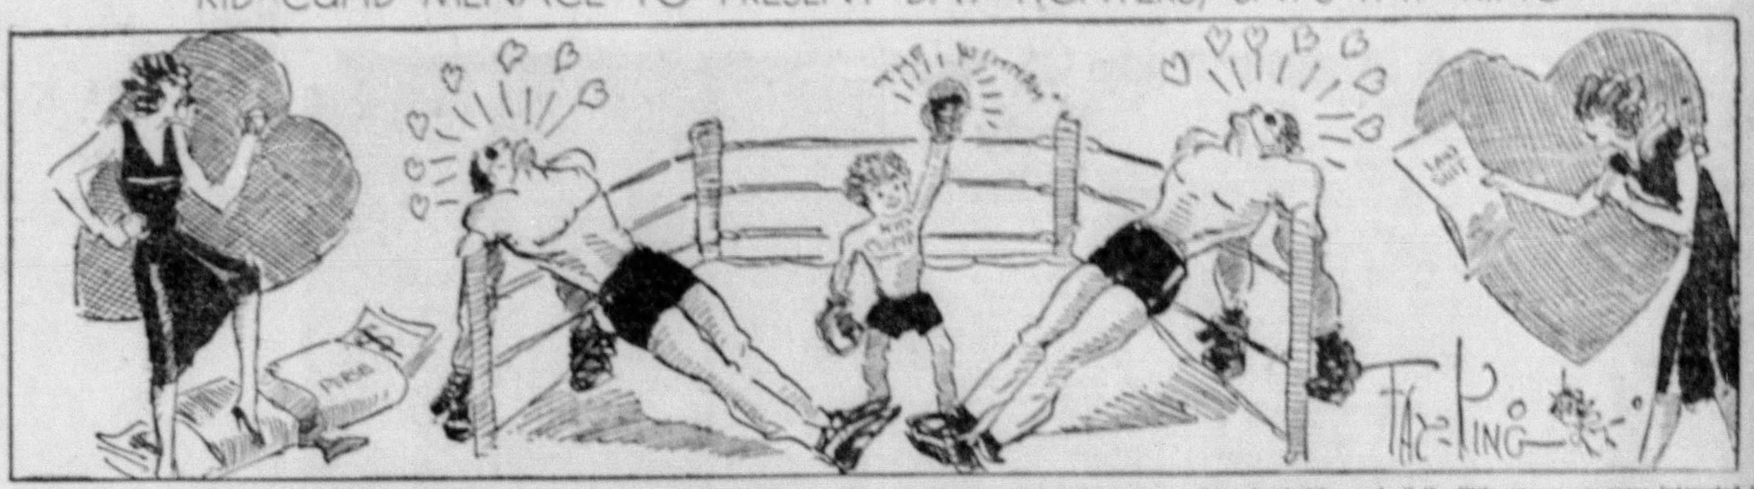
I would not worry over the LOOKS the sister gives you. And yet, Betty, I would not make it a point to be at your boy friend's house too much. Let him do the courting. Things will come along better that way. It is really his place, not yours, to visit.

Aren't you a trifle hard on this other girl when you say she is so plain looking and has no friends? Are you sure your remarks are wholly unprejudiced? It never gets a girl very far with any young man to be too critical of others.

A man doesn't like to contemplate living all his life with someone who is a back-biter . . . Cultivate saying nice things about even those who are apparent rivals.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

KID CUPID MENACE TO PRESENT DAY FIGHTERS, SAYS FAY KING



By FAY KING.

Well, as far as I can figure out the fight game as it is today, little Dan Cupid is now the "Abysmal Brute."

How this would startle Jack London!

The fighter in a London story was always a one-woman hero, who never gave any of the dames a tumble until THE little woman came his way.

Then he'd win his last great fight; they'd elope, and live happily forever after.

But it seems the punching Apollos of today have more romances than ring battles, and all the little women are more interested in suing than wooing.

It certainly is too bad the way the pleasant plots of London's ring romances have got all balled up with Kid Cupid putting everything K. O. now instead of O. K.

FAIR WEATHER CLOTHES FOR SHOWERY DAYS

The classic suit usually seen in tweed is sketched right. White waterproof linen in swagger coat, buttonless jacket and tailored skirt makes the ensemble.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Swell shoulders and a cool, wide cuff give swank to the three-quarter waterproof linen coat above. The buttons are carved oak; the skirt trig and tubular.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT IS THE deuce and all that the weather man does not keep sports events on his books and see to it that the more famous boat races and golf matches always get ideal conditions. But there are ways of fooling him, so that no girl needs to dress in slicker and sou'wester in case of rain in the early morning—and feel like a goop when the sun comes out by lunchtime. Waterproofed summer clothes are the answer. Togs that can go blithely through a cloudburst shedding water like a duck in a thunderstorm are easily found these days, and they don't cost a penny more than the same models made of identical material that has not been treated with this modern weather insurance processing.

* * *

CLOTHES MADE of such fabric are just as deft in avoiding water hazards indoors as they are out. Ever have the tall, cool drink drop dew over your frock and ruin its freshness, or shower spot your stockings?

Ever have the whole darn glass upside-down itself in your lap, spoiling not only itself and your frock, but neatly printing the colors of your gown indelibly onto your pretty slip beneath?

* * *

WELL, YOU can find waterproofed stockings and waterproof underwear as well as waterproof gowns of linen, organza or crepe, and searching them out is worth the effort. The process does not prevent either dry cleaning or careful tubbing, and it stays right with the fabric, no matter how often it is cleaned by either method. Incidentally, no nasty little moth or other closet desperado will take a nibble of anything treated in this manner, which is worth a thought to the careful buyer.

Note the generous action pleats on the back of the half-belt waterproof linen jacket, center. Single breasted, two buttons and four pockets. The skirt is also cut for action.

How to Keep Well

Headache Is a Warning of Trouble

It is surprising to find what great numbers of persons suffer from headache. A recent analysis of hospital statistics shows this symptom to be the continuous complaint of most persons suffering from this, that and the other disorder. This is understandable, because headache is in reality a symptom of some disturbance within the body.

Dr. Copeland

Headache should always be interpreted as nature's warning of something wrong in function or structure within the body. The disorder may be of slight significance or of something quite important. In each case it is imperative that every effort be made to determine the underlying cause.

There is a mild form of headache which can be traced to a temporary digestive disturbance, lack of sleep, or improper food. In such a case the headache is moderate and not lasting. It disappears when the underlying cause is removed. Let it not be forgotten that permanent and persistent headache is a serious matter and warrants careful investigation.

I am frequently asked what is the best treatment for the relief of an attack of headache. Nearly everybody has his own favorite remedy and in many instances it is a patent medicine of some sort. My advice to every sufferer from persistent headache is to consult with a physician who will determine its cause.

The sufferer from this disabling and annoying complaint often benefits by correction of faulty habits of living and undesirable environment. In many cases complete relief is obtained when overeating, or the drinking of excessive quantities of water, is discontinued. In other instances, persons whose working hours are long and tedious, benefit by drinking a glass of milk or cream between meals. When the hours are confining and fresh air and exercise are lacking, outdoor recreation whenever possible is beneficial. In addition, attention should be given the diet, avoiding all irritating and spicy foods. Daily bowel elimination and avoidance of constipation are necessary considerations.

Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Two Psychics

There are styles in bidding as there are styles in clothes. A few years ago there was a veritable craze for so-called psychic bids. Today they are a bit demoded, but they are still being used in Duplicate matches, as the hands below, played recently in Boston, demonstrate. On the first of the two boards the psychic bidders fared well with their bluff, perhaps because the North player was easily fooled. Mr. Milton Unger, who reports the incident, held the South hand in both cases.

West, Dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

	♠ 7 6 ♡ 4 2 ◇ Q 5 3 ♣ A Q J 8 5 3
♠ 10 9 4 2 ♡ Q J 10 6 5 3 ◇ — ♣ 7 6 4	North West East South	♠ K ♡ 9 8 7 ◇ J 9 7 6 4 ♣ K 10 9 2
	♠ A Q J 8 5 3 ♡ A K ◇ A K 10 8 2 ♣ —

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ◇ (1)	2 ◇ (2)
2 ♡ (3)	Pass	3 ♣ (4)	3 ♡ (5)
Double	Pass	Pass	4 ♣ (6)
Pass	Pass (7)	Pass

1. Of course East's bid is purely a third hand psychic.
2. The absolutely forcing Overcall.
3. Trying to disrupt the machinery.
4. Still having fun.
5. Once again the "force."
6. This bid may be questioned—yet if partner should hold four spades a Slam seems certain.
7. A breaking of the bond, since South has "forced to game" with his strong bidding. Unquestionably North should have bid four notrump or five clubs. But the psychic worked.

On the next hand East and West, flushed with their victory, again tried their psychic tactics and perhaps thereby goaded Mr. Unger into his game contract.

East, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ J 2 ♡ A Q J 9 5 ◇ A K J ♣ J 4 3
♠ A Q 9 8 7 ♡ 6 4 2 ◇ 10 4 ♣ Q 7 2	North West East South	♠ 10 5 4 ♡ K 8 7 3 ◇ 7 6 2 ♣ K 6 5
	♠ K 6 3 ♡ 10 ◇ Q 9 8 5 3 ♣ A 10 9 8

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ♠ (1)	2 ♡ (2)
2 ♠ (3)	Pass (4)	Pass	3 ♡ (5)
Pass	3 NT (6)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1. The third hand psychic at work again.
2. An alternative call would be to double.
3. East does not have a sound raise for his partner, but with four hearts to the King he hopes to get North and South into trouble.
4. Mr. Unger should have bid three diamonds unhesitantly with two honor-tricks and a five-card suit; to pass was unsound.
5. At this point North might have doubled the two-spade bid, and Mr. Unger, in view of the experience on the previous hand, would probably have passed for penalties.
6. Mr. Unger decided that he would not permit his opponents to cheat him out of game a second time.

The play was quite interesting. West opened the spade 8 and the Jack was played from Dummy, holding the trick. The Ace and King of diamonds were then led, followed by the Jack of clubs, which was covered by East with the King and which Mr. Unger won with the Ace. Three more rounds of diamonds were then taken, upon which West discarded two hearts and one spade. Mr. Unger then led the club 8, which West allowed to hold, hoping that East could win it and lead through with the spade King. The Ten of hearts was then led and the Ace played from Dummy. A club was returned, which forced West into the lead with the Queen. West subsequently cashed the spade Ace, but Mr. Unger won the two remaining tricks, making five-odd.

It is interesting to note that the time factor enters into the play. The heart trick must be taken after the club 8 wins. Otherwise West can exit with a heart after winning the Queen of clubs.

(Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your question to Josephine Culbertson, in care of the Sun-Telegraph.)

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Joins Search for Boys

If Hugh comprehended what Avis was trying to convey by her catty little speech, he gave no indication that he had such knowledge. Without a word he hurried after me as I fairly ran toward Marion's room, and as I raised my hand to knock upon her door, he touched me upon the shoulder.

"Shall I go on down stairs, or would you rather I waited until you are ready?" he asked.

For a panic-stricken fraction of a second, I felt that I could not be left alone in that upper hall. Then, thoroughly ashamed of my cowardice, I gathered myself together and answered him stoutly enough.

"Oh! Go on, of course. Hurry!" I said. "I'll come down the second I get somebody in Faith's room. But you can help so much down stairs."

"Very well. Call if you need me," he said with something in his voice that quieted and strengthened me. Then he was gone, and I knocked peremptorily on Marion's door.

VOLUNTEER NURSEMAIDS

"Who's there? What do you want?"

"Auntie Madge," I called back. "Please open the door at once. I need you."

There was a stifled little exclamation of alarm, then the pattering of bare feet along the floor, and the next instant Marion, a vision of girlish loveliness in rose-colored pajamas, with her chestnut hair falling around her neck and her great gray eyes filled with alarm, flung open the door after struggling for a second with the lock.

"Oh! What is it?" she said. "Has anything happened?"

Carolyn, almost as lovely as Marion, with golden curls framing her piquant face and blue eyes mirroring her "roomie's" alarm, echoed Marion's query as she, too, scrambled out of bed.

"We don't know," I answered. "But Junior and Roderick are not in their beds, and we are searching for them. If I go, that will leave Baby Faith alone, so I—"

"Carol and I will be with you in 20 seconds," Marion interrupted, with the resourceful quickness which is her inheritance from Lillian. "Here, Carol, shake a leg! Put on your bathrobe and slippers, gather up your clothes, with your toothbrush and comb, and let's be off."

RUSHER TO HUNT BOYS

"Don't you worry, Auntie Madge!" Marion said stoutly, and I hope I was right in my impression that she really was not unduly alarmed. "Those kids will turn up all right. They're just off on some important business of their own. Now, tell us just what you want us to do with Faith."

"Not a thing," I told them, slipping my arms from theirs as we reached the nursery and unlocking the door with the key I carried. "She has her morning feeding, and she'll lie awake and kick for a while afterward."

And with my mind at rest about Faith, I bade a hasty goodby to the girls and hurried down to the lower floor.

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

For the Graduate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am a young girl 16, and on Sunday evenings and on special occasions usually go out with a young man who is graduating from high school. I would like to know whether or not it is proper and correct to give him a graduation gift.

2—Should I send it, or give it to him personally? F.

1—Yes, it is proper for you to give this young man graduate a gift; if you choose such an appropriate gift as a book or a box of letter paper.

2—I suggest that you send the gift, with a little note of congratulation.

The Beauty Box

Rope jumping will put any kind of legs in form be they fat or shanky. It will make fat cells fly away and it will develop muscles that are undersized.

Eyebrows are coming down in the world. Instead of tweezing away the under line until there is a parade of single individual hairs, thinning is done on either side and the eybrow conforms to the natural pattern.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD :-: THEATERS

Cat Breaks Up Chick's Party

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.—Hello! It was Sunday evening, but the usual peace and quiet of the night was soon to suffer a severe shock. Not because Chick Chandler, RKO comedian, and his lovely wife were giving a party, but due to the sudden appearance of an uninvited guest . . . The whole affair might better be described in this manner:

A group of vaudville stars and film people were attacked at the height of a party by a raider who put to shame the depredations of Chicago gansters. The attacker was a civet cat (look up that one—if you don't know), which, according to Chick, who is now in suffering retirement, entered the basement of the residence armed to the teeth and with trembling trigger finger.

Chick, a marksman by hobby, took his 22-rifle and descended to eliminate the visitor. Jay C. Flippin suggested that Chick do something about his clothes, "just in case." The comic donned a pair of shorts and set out, rifle cocked and ready.

The cat, according to Chick and his guests, who trooped along behind to see the sport, "shot first," and then died with his boots on. The precipitate retreat which followed was joined by Cy Wills, Joan Davis, Eddie Foy and the Missus, Marty and Mrs. King, Jay C. Flippin, Clare Carter and the Chandlers. Describing the aftermath, Flippin said:

"The Chandlers are moving today. As for myself and the other guests, we have never been so moved in our lives!"

* * *

Jack Cluett pauses long enough to mutter:

"Apparently all the European nations but Finland have been to see 'debts takes a holiday'."

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood—It wouldn't surprise me (and I'm not easily surprised) to hear that the Josef Von Sternberg and Marlene Dietrich combination—cinematically famous, no less—NEVER get together again! . . . Walter Wanger has SNEAKED off to Russia, where he's supposed to be on a secret deal. It's really to see about filming "Merry-Go-Round"—if he can arrange to purchase the rights from Universal, but there's a difference of $5,000 in agreeing on the price . . . Rubinoff absolutely refuses to permit special lighting effects when broadcasting. He claims it interferes with his feeling for the microphone! Is that the height of something, or is it just the height of something? . . . Shirley Temple made the bright remark of the day:

"I guess I'm getting old—these studio lights are bothering my eyes!"

* * *

Scoop! The Bobby Ernests (Althea Henley) have separated—and for keeps! . . . Pauline (Mrs. Skeets) Gallagher has gone high-topper—if anybody cares. . . . Bonnie Bannon is AFFECTING an English accent, which is just TOO, TOO funny!

* * *

When Jack Durant, Frank Mitchell and Gene Mann were driving back from New York, Jack lost control of the car due to a roadhog and they landed upside down in a creek. Frank was asleep in the back seat when the accident occurred, but was unhurt. He was a prisoner for two hours until a wrecking crew could pry open the doors. Jack and Gene stood on the outside and laughed . . . John Beal, the New York actor now in the cinema, has invented a color system for piano playing that may—well, 'tis rumored—make him a fortune, if fortunes are made out of such things.

Little Nell To Relive

Charles Dickens' "Old Curiosity Shop" will come to life in a screen transcription soon to go into production in the studios of British and Dominions Productions in London, it has been announced by Herbert Wilcox, production head of that company, now on a visit to this country.

The story will largely be filmed at the actual locations depicted by Dickens, among them the famous spots in old London, the Dickens country, particularly Gads Hill. The world-renowned characters of Little Nell, Dick Swiveller and the Marchioness will be among those who will people the film.

With production to begin the first week in August, Mr. Wilcox is now making preliminary arrangements. He plans to produce the screen play with an American star at the head of the cast, and an American director.

Lloyd Balks At Return To Stage

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.—Stage producers are ready to threw up their hands and stop trying to lure Harold Lloyd back to the footlights.

The comedian, whose fortune is one of the soundest in the film colony, has just turned down a British guarantee of $200,000 for a 20-week tour. With equal firmness he has given the negative to two Broadway producers who sought to bring him back to the stage next fall in a dramatization of his new picture, "The Cats-Paw."

"A 20-mule team couldn't drag me back to the stage again," the bespectacled comedian assured me. "I had my taste for the footlights pretty well satiated in the early days. Some film players like to get relaxation from camera work by taking a fling at the theater, but I've been away from it too long to be innoculated with the fever again."

It has been more than 18 years since Lloyd played on the stage. He last appeared with the Morosco Company in Los Angeles. He began his stage career at the age of 12½, appearing as little Abe in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" with the Burwood Stock Company in Omaha, of which Frank "Lightnin'" Bacon was then a prominent member.

Although he won't do a play himself, Lloyd is going to Broadway as soon as he finishes his picture. He'll search for movie material. Until he purchased "The Cats-Paw" from Clarence Buddington Kelland, the comedian never produced except from original stories created by himself and his staff. The results of the new film convince him there is material for his comedies in the literary and stage world. In fact, Harold would have bought "The Milky Way" if another company had not beat him to it.

GREEN ROOM GLEANINGS

That lovely little lady on the July cover of Film Fun is Marguerite Bowen, Wilkinsburg dancer, now making good in movie shorts . . . Burt McMurtrie, former local newspaperman, is plenty ill in New York and has been granted a two-month leave of absence by the Columbia Broadcasting Company . . . George Pennington, also a former member of the Pittsburgh Fourth Estate, has resigned as Harry Thaw's ghost writer . . . Mike Cullen and Dr. M. R. Goldman conferring on the theater men's picnic to be held at Dravo Park July 1 . . . Eddie Klein is seriously considering a return to the night club business . . . Bill Scott, Stanley manager, has airplaned East on his vacation . . . Myrna Loy, recipient of Max Baer's love-making in "The Prize Fighter and the Lady," gave him the cold shoulder off the screen . . . The State Censor Board has passed Ann Harding's "The Life of Virgie Winters," banned in Ohio, and the Stanley gets it June 29, but "Dr. Monica" is still being held up by the watch dogs, and plenty of trouble is expected when Mae West's "It Ain't No Sin" gets before the scissors wielders.

Those quaint sayings, "I'll be seein' ya" and "You wouldn't fool me, would you, sister?" were created by the late Hal Skelly in "Burlesque" . . . They have become as much a part of modern conversation as Mr. Winchell's celebrated slanguage . . . In regard to the eulogy on Skelly that appeared in this column, Victor McGovern writes: "I once saw him hand a two-spot to a panhandler just to get rid of—the two-spot! The guy's song-and-dance was too much for Hal . . . You're right, he was a sucker for a touch, but human to the core." . . . Wesley Eddy has moved to the Fox Theater, Philadelphia, after a nice run in the Roxy, New York . . . The Mike Cullens call their love birds "Rasputin" and the "Empress," and Mike, renewing an old friendship with Willie Wilkins, ahead of the Ringling show . . . Willie broke Mike into the circus game 16 years ago . . . The arrival of Wilkins means that Col. Dexter Fellows, cane and all, is due in the editorial rooms any minute now . . . Speaking of press agents, what has become of Milt Crandall? . . . Prosperity note: the circus will stay three days instead of the customary two . . . And the big show hasn't had a losing day this season!

Joan Blondell has prepared two layettes . . . One trimmed in pink in case the little newcomer is a girl, the other in blue to match a possible boy . . . Flash—Budapest authorities have banned a Mickey Mouse film . . . On request of the Italian legation, attaches of which claim one of the animal characters looks too much like Gen. Balbo! . . . Sam Galanty, Columbia's new district manager, looked over the local situation Friday and Saturday . . . The Alvin's interior decorations are practically completed, and swell, too . . . Willard Mack, Pittsburgh's old melodrama writing favorite, is doing the dialogue for Gable and Harlow's "China Seas," a job that should be right up his alley . . . Dashiell Hammett's "The Thin Man," which has the critics in ecstacies, reaches the Penn, Friday, while "Woman in the Dark," another of the Hammett chillers, has gone into production in the Biograph studios, New York . . . Fay Wray is coming east to play the feminine lead . . . Mrs. Schnozzola handles the money in the Durante family . . . The Broadway wise boys swear Mae West invented her "Free-wheeling" slither to "steal" a vaudeville turn in which she was appearing with Ed Wynn and Frank Tinney.

A. Mike Vogel, chairman of the Managers' Round Table Club of the Motion Picture Herald, is due in Pittsburgh shortly to renew acquaintances among local showmen . . . Ben Kalmenson, Warner booker, is back from New York . . . Flash—Mae West gets lead in "The Queen of Sheba!" . . . Anent mention in this space that they had newspaper plays back in 1909, Mrs. John B. Reynolds writes to say that both she and her sister saw "The Fourth Estate" in this town . . . Thanks to Lou Goldberg, Columbia exploitation chief, for the copy of that nifty tome, "The Unsinkable Mrs. Jay," which Lou, under the name of Lewis Graham, wrote in collaboration with Edwin Olmstead . . . "Mrs. Jay" is especially recommended to the ladies . . . Lois Wilson, of the Pittsburgh Wilsons, doesn't smoke and looks 10 years younger than she really is . . . Announcement that Leo Carrillo will reach the Penn in person July 6 recalls that plenty of Signor Carrillo was left on the cutting room floor when "Viva Villa" was prepared for the trade . . . While that film was Beery's, and rightly, the Signor came closer than you'll ever know to walking away with it . . . There'll be 24 Chester Hale girls in the Carillo unit.

You Must Not Miss—Shirley Temple and Adolphe Menjou praying in "Little Miss Marker" . . . Fawn and Jordan, adagio dancers, who will be held another week in the Urban Room . . . George Breakston denouncing Jackie Searl, the traitor, in "No Greater Glory" . . . The fight film in both the Fulton and Family . . . "Snake-Hips" Tucker's gyration with the Ellington unit . . . Add things to look forward to—W. C. Fields in "Missippi," a show boat talkie . . . Lewis Milestone, fine director, is working again after being "in bad" with the Hollywood powers.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

A Right Guy.

IT ALL happened in the Fall of 1927, and I am privileged to print it now for the first time. If you recognize the characters, that's up to you. I will do my best to disguise them . . .

In a large city in this amazing country, a powerful limousine was speeding toward the outskirts. There were five men in the car; two in the front and three in the rear. We are concerned only with the latter men.

On the left seat Shorty, who never spoke. The gun that he held in the ribs of the man beside him, did all his speaking for him. The unfortunate man in the middle was Joe Mason, chief lieutenant in the well known Frankie Smith gang. On the right, a powerful and terrifying figure in the booze racket, sat Smith himself.

"Joe," said Frankie Smith, "you're gonna die. In about 10 minutes, after you and me has our little chat, you're gonna wind up wit' two slugs in that cheap dome o' yours. I'm jus' tellin' you now so that you ain't surprised when the accident happens."

The man in the middle wet his lips nervously.

"Gee, Frankie," he muttered. "I don't get all this. I ain't done nothin'. You an' I has been real pals, an' now you're gonna kill me like a rat. Honest, Frankie, I ain't—"

He was interrupted by a swift slap across the mouth. A tiny trickle of blood appeared immediately. Frankie, who had delivered the blow, rubbed his right hand against his left palm. Shorty said nothing.

"Joe Mason," said Frankie Smith, "you're a rat. And when a rat hangs out with a right guy like me, the rat has got to go. That's why you're goin'.

"As I says before, you an' me has got 10 minutes for a little chat. But it's a little chat where I do all the talkin'. So get ready to listen to a lotta things—'cause they're the last things you're ever gonna hear."

Joe Mason, his hands trembling and his jaw dangling, kept his eyes straight ahead. It is doubtful if he saw anything. Frankie Smith crossed his legs, lit a cigaret and settled back comfortably. Shorty said nothing.

"Me an' you, Joe," Frankie went on, "come to this town right after Prohibition. I like you 'cause I think you're a right guy like me. After me, I make you the head man of our mob. We make a load of dough an', if I say so myself, we got the smartest booze outfit in the country.

"An' why do you suppose we're figured so smart, eh? I'm askin' you why, but I don't want no answers from you. Because I'm givin' the answers here as well as the questions. We're figured so smart 'cause the head man is Frankie Smith, the rightest guy that ever lived.

"I try to keep my mob clean. If we did catch a rat edgin' into the picture, he didn't last long wit' us. 'Cause I was proud of my rep—and I'm gonna stay proud of it."

He tossed away his cigaret and gripped Mason's arm savagely. The latter man squealed with pain. Shorty said nothing.

"So what happens?" Frankie Smith went on. "So this happens. We're good friends with the other two mobs in this town. Bein' a right guy, I say everybody's gotta right to a livin'. They make their little piece of change; we make ours. Why not?

"All of a sudden, the other mobs starts to get knocked off by the Federal men. One shipment is nailed, and then another. Then the government guys grab a third load from them—and all the while, we ain't bein' touched.

"The other mobs come to me 'cause they know I'm a right guy. They tell me there ain't nothin' to it; somebody in my outfit has been squealin' to the Feds. Somebody needed dough bad—and somebody is makin' a heel outta me and my reputation.

"I couldn't believe it, but I had to investigate. No rat is ever gonna be linked to the name of Frankie Smith. So I looked around an', through a right Federal guy, I got the info I was lookin' for.

"It was you, Joe Mason. You was the cheap louse who put the finger on them other mobs. You was the squealer. You was the rat who was tryin' to spoil my reputation for bein' a right guy. You was takin' dough for squealin' on my friends.

"Wasn't you, Joe?"

The car rolled off the road and came to a stop beside a clump of bushes. Joe was attempting to speak, but the words wouldn't come. Huge drops of perspiration rolled down his face.

The driver sat motionless. The man beside him jumped out and flung open the door. Shorty jabbed his gun into Mason's ribs and motioned to the door. Frankie Smith drew a revolver and looked at it with a smile.

Joe Mason stepped from the car and fell to his knees on the cool grass. He clasped his hands.

"I done it, Frankie," he cried, "but please don't kill me. Mamma mine, please don't let him kill me. Ma—"

Two shots rang out. Three men leaped back into the car. The other one lay motionless in the bushes. Frankie Smith settled back for another smoke as the car speeded away.

"That's the way Frankie Smith deals with rats," he observed calmly. "I want the world to know what a right guy does."

Shorty said nothing. . . .

In his hotel suite the following day, Frankie Smith was awaiting the police. He confidently expected to be picked up for the murder of Joe Mason—and he had an alibi that was without a flaw. So let them come.

But nobody came. And Frankie was completely mystified until he read the newspapers. They were all pretty much alike.

"Joe Mason," they said, "was unquestionably slain by members of a rival mob. There has been considerable friction between the mobs of late—and it is generally understood that Mason was killed for carrying out orders given by his boss, Frankie Smith." . . . .

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.—HUGH WALPOLE will probably be that AMAZED to know that all the fresh new HUGH WALPOLE books lining the offices of the M-G-M studios are FRESH and NEW on account of MR. WALPOLE has arrived there and the moguls did not want him to think they were IGNORANT of his works . . . TARZAN—MR. WEISSMULLER to youse—has gotten his hair cut . . . Which proves that there will be no more Tarzan operas for some time . . . BING CROSBY is now getting up at 6 for his game of golf so that he will be able to hurry back home and feed the baby. Incidentally, and unfortunately, MRS. CROSBY is in a much more serious condition awaiting the stork's arrival than has hitherto been published.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The second summer season of the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse will open tonight in the auditorium of the Arnold School, 414 South Braddock avenue. "The Curtain Rises," a romantic comedy by R. M. Kaye, will be staged, under the direction of Arthur Marlowe, by a cast including Helen Wayne, Robert Gill, Irene Cowan, Patti Lilliell, George Rowland, DeLisle Crawford and William Ross. The second production, opening Monday, July 9, will be "The Green Bay Tree," by Mordaunt Shairp.

Moss Hart, co-author, with Irving Berlin, of "As Thousands Cheer," in which Marilyn Miller is one of three stars, the others being Clifton Webb and Helen Broderick, once had a worship-from-afar calf love for Miss Miller. A stenographer in a theatrical office in the theater building where Miss Miller was starred in "Sally" 15 years ago, he frequently watched her dance from backstage, after passing his friend, the stagedoor man, a cigar. He does the same thing now, and believes that some kind of a miracle has happened when he sees the girl he adored in silence 15 years ago in his own (partly) show. One difference is they are good friends now. He first met her at a dinner last summer, before "As Thousands Cheer" was completed, and asked her if she would be free to take part in that play when it was ready. She said she would be glad to do it if the part were worth while. One rather imagines that he made good his promise that it would be "worth while."

Irene Rich is in Hamburg, Conn., visiting Robert and Mrs. Steele (Norma Mitchell). Mr. Steele is a co-author of "Cradle Snatchers" and Miss Rich made the trip to discuss plans for the production in the fall of his new play, "Any Woman."

New York writers made a point of the fact that Pauline Frederick took a year to reach New York in her play, "Her Majesty The Widow," which had stopped here and there on the way. After it opened on Broadway a week ago there was praise for Miss Frederick, while the play itself was fubbed off, as the saying is.

* * *

Henry Hull departed from the cast of "Tobacco Road," Hollywood bound, a few days ago, and James Barton took his place. We mean took his place, for the comment was that the characterization of Jeeter Lester, already something of a tradition in the theater, suffered not a whit, in Jeeter's transmigration from the person of Hull to that of the former burlesque hoofer, Mr. Barton.

The Era, London theatrical publication, contains a note commenting on the fact that Lew Cody and Lilyan Tashman, stars of "Wise Woman and Song," just previewed in London, had both died before the picture could be shown to the British public, and quoting a line spoken in it by Cody:

"Well, it's your funeral."

TRAYNOR PLANS NEW SYSTEM OF HANDLING HURLERS

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Cubs Save Pennant Race Halt Giants in Runaway Judge Dodges Night Ball

Ryan Again Shows Value Chance Seen for Filly Helen Hicks Tells Secret

Besides putting themselves back in the flag fight and saving the job of Manager Charley Grimm, for the time being at least, the Cubs, in bracing suddenly to win five games in a row, have helped the National League race in general. The Bruins are beginning to look like dangerous contenders again, with pitching normalcy restored by Lonnie Warneke's recovery of form and the return of Guy Bush to duty after an absence of three weeks, but even if they do not keep up their winning stride they must be credited with having saved the race by taking three in a row from the Giants, after losing the series opener.

Guy Bush

Prior to being halted in Chicago, the New Yorkers had not been beaten twice in succession in a stretch of 34 straight games, of which they won 25. They were threatening to make a runaway race of it, but the reverses suffered in the Windy City slowed them down to such an extent that today they were only three games ahead of the Cards and Bruins, while even the Pirate handicap has been reduced from nine games to seven. It's still going to be a hard job for any rival to beat out New York, inasmuch as the Giants have 51 games to play on their own grounds, but the race ought to be a whole lot closer than it promised to be before the Cubs came back and halted the champions' rush.

JUDGE STEERING CLEAR OF NIGHT GAMES

Night baseball may not be objectionable to the youngsters in the minors, but Joe Judge is fighting shy of it as a game for veterans. Whatever measure of his old first-basing ability Judge may have left he is determined to nurse by using it only in the sunlight. Shifted from the Senators to the Dodgers and then back to the American League as a member of the Red Sox, Joe became a free agent following his release by the last-named club when Eddie Morgan made good at the first base job, and soon afterward he was signed as playing manager of the Baltimore club.

But Judge is a playing manager only in the daytime. In every afternoon game that the Orioles play, Joe is found directing them from his regular position at first base. When the schedule calls for the Baltimore club to play a night game, however, the veteran is strictly a bench manager and does his master-minding from the dugout.

RYAN AGAIN BIG FACTOR IN GIANT DRIVE

Blondy Ryan, who played such a big part as a sparkplug and a hustling shortstop in the rush that carried the Giants to the pennant and the world championship last year, has figured prominently again in the new drive of the Terrymen. Ryan has demonstrated most convincingly this season that spirit isn't the only thing he contributes to the success of his club. He has given an exhibition of infield versatility that stamps him an even better ball player than he ever was given credit for being. After excellent emergency service at shortstop and second base, Blondy inherited the third-base job when Johnny Vergez fell into a batting slump, and within a month he has developed into one of the best men in the majors at that position.

Blondy Ryan

Ryan looks even more impressive at the hot corner than he did at short or second. He covers a wide range, has a great throwing arm, and the sureness of his fielding is evidenced by the fact that he hasn't made an error on the Giants' present trip. But his greatest improvement has come in the batting department. Considered rather a weak sister there last season, with an average of only .238, the aggressive infielder this year actually has added a punch to the New York attack. He hit at a .500 clip during a large part of the trip and batted safely in nine straight games until Lonnie Warneke stopped him. Ryan is one of the main reasons why the Giants made an unexpectedly good showing on the tour on which they had been tipped to slump. Though losing three straight games in Chicago before opening the Cardinal series yesterday with a victory, the world champs have a record of 10 triumphs against only five defeats for the trip to date.

FIGURES WAY TO MAKE MATA HARI WIN

Previous failures notwithstanding, it is the opinion of Clem McCarthy, turf expert and broadcaster, that Mata Hari, Charles T. Fisher's filly, can be made to beat Cavalcade if ridden properly. McCarthy has figured out a way in which it could be done, he thinks. His suggestion is that a smart, woman-handed jockey be put on the filly, and that the rider should try to be last leaving the barrier instead of letting her be a front runner, as has been the custom.

Then, he adds, the jockey should keep his hands down, and with voice and gentle restraint try to kid Mata Hari into trailing the bunch behind Cavalcade, never making a move until Cavalcade moves, and sitting cold behind him until the final 150 yards. Then, in response to a cluck, the filly might beat the Sloane colt by using that remarkable speed of hers in the last furlong instead of the first. But McCarthy admits it would take an intelligent, patient rider like Tod Sloan or Johnny Maiben, with soft hands and a way about him to kid Mata Hari into waiting and wondering what it's all about.

HELEN ADVISES GOLFING AGAINST MEN

Now that she has left the amateur ranks to become a "business woman golfer," Miss Helen Hicks, former national women's champion, feels that it is within her province as a professional to give lessons. But she gives the first of them free. She advises women players desiring to reach the front ranks to do as much of their playing as possible against men, declaring that whatever success came her way in women's golf was due to early competition against the sterner success.

Helen Hicks

Until she was 16, Helen relates, she played golf only with her father, her brother and their men friends. Naturally, she was outdriven consistently, beaten to the pin regularly, and seldom managed to win a hole. When she met her first woman opponent—Silvia Highton, in a minor tournament—the novel experience of finding herself yards ahead off the tee, and well inside on the greens, gave her confidence. Miss Hicks terms it a psychological stimulus that never quite wore off. She says this golfing theory of relativity boosted her morale in feminine competition. After being outhit by wide margins by her father and brother, she had no qualms about facing a mere girl. It was easy by comparison.

Star Sprinters Who Challenged Metcalfe in Collegiate Events

FOY DRAPER, California STERLING DUPREE, Auburn HARVEY WALLENDER, Texas ED HALL, Kansas PERRIN WALKER, Georgia Tech

Five of the newer star sprinters of the country, who competed in the National Collegiate meet at Los Angeles over the week-end, challenging the reign of Ralph Metcalfe, Negro ace of Marquette University, of Milwaukee, who demonstrated his mastery by winning both the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Draper was fourth in the hundred and also in the 220, while Hall finished sixth in the 220 and Dupree fifth in the same event. The times were 9.7 and 20.9. Metcalfe was an easy victor in the century dash. This is an International News Photograph Service picture of the stars.

CAMERA COSTS TITLE, RECORD IN MEET

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—(AP.)—Definite proof that the movie camera is far more accurate than the human eye was given when National Collegiate A. A. officials made a wholesale revision of the placings in the final races of the N. C. A. A. championships Saturday.

Fortunately, the standings of the first seven teams were not changed, but unfortunately George Fisher, Louisiana State high hurdler, was shorn of his title with the crown being shifted to the head of Sam Klopstock, Stanford.

The photographic timing device, tested and certified before and after the meet, probably stole from Glen Hardin, Louisiana State, his chance for a world 220-yard low hurdle record. The camera caught him in 23.16 seconds, while the timers gave him a new world record at 22.7 seconds.

There was no question of Ralph Metcalfe's victory in the 100-yard dash, but Hunter Russell, Illinois, originally listed third, was given a tie for second with Charles Parsons, Southern California.

PIE TO BANK ON HOYT AND CHAGNON

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

A new system of handling his pitchers with a view of getting better results was being evolved today by Manager Traynor of the Pirates as he wound up the first week of his managerial career. With four victories in seven games played to his credit, after having had the bossing job suddenly thrown into his lap, Traynor was beginning to see his way out of the pitching forest which has scared the followers of the club since the bell rang.

It probably would be impossible for any manager to mould a championship staff out of the present corps of Pittsburgh pitchers, but Pilot Pie feels that by deft manipulation something like order may be restored.

CHAGNON, HOYT GOOD

In Leon Chagnon and Waite Hoyt, Traynor thinks he has two great relief pitchers and you may expect to see a lot of these two hurlers as the season progresses. Either Chagnon or Hoyt might win for Traynor as starting pitchers, but right now he has a different idea. He says he will string along with French, Birkofer, Lucas, Swift and Smith for the present, but Chagnon and Hoyt will be ready for all emergencies.

Hoyt entered the clash with the Phillies at Forbes Field yesterday when the Pittsburgh cause was in jeopardy. Waite hurried to the relief of Red Lucas in the fourth

Donnelli Returns From European Tour

Aldo (Buff) Donelli, former Duquesne University grid star, and present freshman football and basketball coach on the bluff and local soccer star, returned last night from a tour of Europe. Donnelli was a member of the all-star U. S. soccer team which played in the recent championship tournament in Italy.

The U. S. team played exhibition games in Switzerland, Germany and Italy after the games in Rome.

Clarion Auto Racer Victor at Sharon

SHARON, Pa., June 25.—Jack McFayden, of Clarion, Pa., led the field in the 20-mile feature auto race at the local speedway here yesterday. He covered the distance in 18:53.2.

Second place was taken by Gail Lanker, of Tiffon, O., and third went to Roy Young, of Johnstown. Deb Snyder and Bill Carr were forced out of the race.

Londos, Browning In Title Battle

NEW YORK, June 25.—In the same ring in Long Island City in which Primo Carnera recently lost his world heavyweight title Jim Londos and Jim Browning, rival claimants of the world heavyweight wrestling crown, meet tonight in what Promoter Jack Curley announces is one of the big "shooting," or on-the-level, matches of all time.

SARAZEN, SMITH, KIRKWOOD CARD 75'S IN BRITISH OPEN

HENRY COTTON SCORES GREAT 66, LEADS

SANDWICH, England, June 25.—(AP.)—America's "big four" in British open golf championship, including Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, the defending titleholder, found the greens fast and tricky today and as a consequence were no less than nine shots behind the front-running Henry Cotton, whose bristling, par-cracking 66 set the pace in the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round for the championship proper, which begins Wednesday over the Royal St. George's course.

Gene Sarazen, champion in 1932 and betting odds favorite; Joe Kirkwood, trick shot Australian, and MacDonald Smith, the veteran Scot who still is seeking his first national title, posted 75s, while Shute was still further back with a 76.

Starting out with a record field of more than 300 golfers, of which only the first 100 and ties will qualify for the 72-hole championship, Sarazen and Smith played their first round over the Royal Cinque Ports course in Deal, while Shute and Kirkwood performed at Royal St. George's. The Americans switch courses tomorrow.

AMATEUR CARDS 70

In between Cotton and the American professional brigade were 11 British amateurs and professionals with one exception: D. H. R. Martin, a native simonpure, shattered the amateur standard for Royal Cinque with a 70, and five players were tied with 71's, Angel De La Torre, of Madrid, five times former Spanish open king; S. B. Roberts, Cecil Denny, Aubrey Boomer and Bert Gadd.

The Whitecombs—Ernest and R. A.—had 73's, while Syd Easterbrook and Harry Padgham, looked upon by British experts of having the best chance of recapturing the title, which has been held by Americans for a decade, and Percy Allis posted 74's.

A stroke behind Smith-Sarazen-Kirkwood and knotted together with Shute with 76's came Robert Sweeney, formerly of New York and now an Oxonian; Jack McLean, the Scottish and Irish champion, and two veteran British pros, Archie Compston and Abe Mitchell.

COTTON SETS RECORD

Cotton shot his sensational round over Royal St. Georges. He was out in 31—five under par—and came home in 35. His card consisted of one deuce, four 3's and all the rest 4's. He had to sink a 12-footer at the eighteenth to overcome a threatening 5.

U. S. NET ACES WIN ABROAD

WIMBLEDON, England, June 25.—(AP.)—Frank Shields, of New York, No. 1 ranking American, scored a decisive straight-set victory over Daniel Prenn, former German Davis Cup ace, today in the opening round of competition for the all-England tennis championships. The scores were 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York, whose sensational singles play so far in England has served to raise American Davis Cup hopes, rallied after a slow start in the first set to eliminate the youthful Australian, Vivian McGrath, 10-8, 6-4, 6-4, in one of the day's features.

LOTT IS EXTENDED

George M. Lott, Jr., American Davis Cup doubles player, was hard pressed in scoring a four-set victory over R. O. Williams, a British southpaw. The sets were 6-3, 6-1, 6-8, 7-5.

The first American casualty was W. L. Breese, formerly of Harvard, in the men's singles. He was eliminated in the first round by Marcel Bernard, of France, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

Henry W. (Bunny) Austin, British Davis Cup star, disposed of Mohammed Sleem, of Lahore, India, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2. The defending singles champion, Jack Crawford of Australia, was unexpectedly pressed to defeat the clever Polish player, Ignacy Tloczynski, 6-2, 7-5, 8-6, on the center court. Christian Boussus, France defeated C. E. Hare Great Britain, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

MRS. MOODY IN STANDS

Two former queens of the Wimbledon courts, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, of California, and Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, of Paris, were besieged by autograph hunters. The American girl sat in the center court stands behind the royal box in her new role of tennis writer.

Zivics Make Good for Manager Carney, Begin Main Bout Careers Tonight

Eddie Boxes Joey Costa in Hickey Park Feature Bout, While Brother Fritzie Meets Eddie Ran Next Week

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Revised Version: A prophet may be without honor in his own country, but not in California.—Luke Carney.

Months and months ago, Luke Carney, veteran local boxing manager, was being laughed at as unduly optimistic as he was extolling the fistic virtues of his two proteges, the Zivic brothers, Eddie and Fritzie, but he remained undaunted, saying:

MANAGER LUKE CARNEY

"The day will come when the local promoters will wake up to find Eddie and Fritzie the darlings of the fans. The largest arenas won't be large enough to hold the crowds which will flock to see them. Forbes Field won't be large enough when they fight for championships."

BUILT UP ON COAST

There were condescending smiles. Just another fight manager talking about the selling points of his boxers. Oh, well; let him rave on.

Then Luke got an idea. He bundled Eddie and Fritzie, brothers of two famous former local boxers, Jack and Pete Zivic, into an automobile and off they went to California. There they engaged in 36 bouts between them, and didn't suffer a single reverse. Then, several weeks ago, they came back home, with the local fans anxious to see them again. When they went away they were preliminary boxers. Now they're main-bouters in their own right, and tonight Luke Carney, the man who believed in them, begins to show them off to the folks. He has booked them for windups a week apart at Hickey Park, Millvale.

Eddie goes to the post first, meeting Joey Costa, of New York, a seasoned young lightweight who has fought some of the best men in the East. Next Monday night, Fritzie, now grown into a rugged welterweight with a punch, takes on Eddie Ran, Polish veteran, of Chicago.

Before the summer is out, Luke says, he'll have both of the Zivics fighting for titles. Well, he has been right so far, and he may be right all the way. Anyway, you can't blame him for trying, and you have to admit that he has accomplished a good deal already with his young charges.

LITFIN IN SEMI-FINAL

Nat Litfin, of the Hill, boxes Georgie Pace, a former Golden Glove champion, of Cleveland, in the six-round semi-final tonight, and there will be three five-rounders, as follows:

Jack Dalcherone, of Springdale, vs. Tom Green, of Homestead; Farmer Bill Schwerin, of Clairton, vs. Vic Wickets, of the Hill, and Ralph Gizzy, of Donora, vs. Ernie Schwartz, of Cleveland.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Duke Barry, former Connellsville promoter, is putting on the benefit boxing show for the Resthaven Convalescent Home in Chicago, July 18, in which Ted Yarosz will box Tail Littman in one of the 10-round bouts. Littman has beaten both Kid Leonard and Frankie Battaglia in recent bouts.

Yarosz, by the way, still is planning to invade Europe to box for Jeff Dickson this summer. Negotiations are on for a series of bouts.

Marty Gurnick's bad hand is o. k. again and he will be seen in action within a few weeks.

Ray Fabiani, the Philadelphia promoter, who will stage wrestling bouts in Duquesne Garden next fall and winter, has had an interesting career. He was first out as a concert violinist with the Chicago Grand Opera Company, was lured into wrestling by Jim Londos, failed in his first attempt in Baltimore, and now, in Philadelphia, one of the most successful wrestling cities in the world. He has been a promoter as well of professional tennis, with Bill Tilden and of miniature golf and other sporting events.

Harry Dublinsky boxes Billy Hogan and Mike Belloise meets Lew Feldman in 10-round supporting bouts on the Tony Canzoneri-Frankie Klick card at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night.

COLLEGE GOLF LEAD SHARED

COUNTRY CLUB, CLEVEAND, June 25.—(AP.)—A. F. Kammer, Jr., of Princeton, and Roy W. Ryden, of California, went into a tie for the temporary lead among early finishers of the first qualifying round of the annual national intercollegiate golf championship today.

Both players went two strokes over par and finished with 74s. Kammer, a baseball pitcher at Princeton, was out two strokes under par, but slipped badly on the incoming nine and carded a 40.

Oliver Transue, of Yale, whose home is in Canton, O., was next in line temporarily with a 75.

Regis Wolff, of Pitt, scored 40-40-80.

Razing of Garden Begins This Week

The work of razing Motor Square Garden, cleared of seats and furniture last week, will begin within the next few days, and construction work on a new $2,000,000 arena to house Pittsburgh's new entry in the National Hockey League, will get under way as soon as the site is cleared.

The Pittsburgh hockey team will play on the road until December, when the new arena, which will have a seating capacity of 12,469 for hockey and about 15,000 for boxing, will be available. Bill Dwyer, of New York, owner of the local ice franchise; Attorney J. F. Callahan, his local representative, and Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, are expected to confer here this week.

Waller Is Victor In New York Race

NEW YORK, June 25.—George Waller, of New Rochelle, N. Y., won the New York American's Around-Manhattan motorboat race yesterday by 1 minute 40 seconds. His elapsed time was 51 minutes.

Everett Shannon, of Audubon, N. J., was second, and Fred Jacoby, Jr., of North Bergen, N. J., third.

Outboard and inboard races made up the remainder of the program. Several hundred thousand spectators lined the river's edge to witness the feature event.

CUBS CONTINUE FINE PLAY IN FLAG RACE

Associated Press.

The current "crucial" series between the Giants and Cardinals today offered the third place club of the National League, the Chicago Cubs, the finest sort of opportunity to get into the middle of the race for the lead.

The Giants protected their place at the top yesterday when they smashed the Cubs down into a 9-to-3 defeat in one decisive inning, but three more games were left of the New York-St. Louis scrap and almost anything could happen. While Bill Terry's team was winning one game the Cubs took two decisions from Brooklyn, 5 to 1 and 8 to 0, in an "artificial" double-header and moved into a virtual tie with St. Louis, just three games behind the league leaders.

GIANTS HIT HARD

Some husky stickwork in the fifth inning brought the Giants their triumph. Trailing 3-3 at the start of that frame after Fred Fitzsimmons had been knocked out, they batted clear around, drove Tex Carleton and Jim Lindsey to cover and scored six runs before Bill Hallahan got them out.

Pat Malone and Bud Tinning each pitched a seven-hit game for Chicago against the Dodgers and the Cubs backed them up with home runs to win easily.

While the "grandstand managers" were shaking their heads over Babe Ruth's 21 hitless trips to the platter, the great man stepped up and gathered most of the day's American League headlines by propelling his eleventh homer into the bleachers with the bases full to give the Yanks a 5-to-0 victory over Chicago.

TIGERS ALSO WIN

The victory couldn't lift the Yanks out of second place as Detroit's Tigers handed the Athletics an 8-to-4 shellacking despite Bob Johnson's twenty-second circuit swat.

The Cleveland Indians returned to third place ahead of Boston by downing the Red Sox 6-2 with a ninth inning rally that gave the former Indian ace, Wes Ferrell, his first defeat of the year. Walter Stewart's five-hit hurling enabled Washington to blank the Browns, 7 to 0, and finish just a half game out of the first division.

Former Dukes' Star Says New Game Here to Stay

IRVING BRENNER

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

Softball is a fine game, with many desirable features.

The authority for this statement is Irving Brenner, an athlete whose sports activities have been varied and whose opinion, therefore, should carry weight.

Brenner, who was graduated recently from Duquesne University, after starring on the Dukes' basketball teams for four years, including his freshman year, is the star pitcher for the Commercial Garage softball team, an entrant in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur tournament. He won his first two games in the tournament, and says:

"I have played both softball and mushball, but I prefer the former. It is a coming game and I like it immensely. The game is played almost the same as baseball. It takes speed and some real fielding to play it.

"In mushball a pitcher has the batters at a disadvantage, due to the short pitching distance, but in softball, where base runners can steal bases after the ball passes the batter, a pitcher must have good control and a good catcher behind the plate. The game is very fast and the fielding is spectacular."

Continuing, he says:

"I prefer to play with the 12-inch softball. The bases are 60 feet apart and this is a great help to the fielders. If a fielder knocks down a hard drive he still can throw a man out at first base.

"I have noticed that softball is taking the place of mushball in many communities. There are not as many mushball teams now as there were. They are gradually giving way to softball, which is here to stay with a national organization behind it."

Brenner is 6 feet 3 inches tall. He has won 18 games and lost only three so far this season, and also is a very good batsman. He also pitches for the Richbaums of the Hill District. He is a graduate of Fifth Avenue High School.

By HONUS WAGNER,

Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

I'm still straying from the sports pages. Honest, I'm surprised to find so much interesting stuff on the other pages I never suspected all of these years! Now about the J. P. Morgan Co. going in for regular banking, taking deposits, etc. I might open an account with them, but first I'd like to know if they charge 50 cents for every month when your account goes below $100. That is important for me to know before I open an account there. A friend of mine once tried to open an account with a bank on Fifth avenue with $128, and he was told to come back when he saved up another $372. That was 10 years ago and he's still trying.

HONUS WAGNER.

POLICE NAME COMMITTEES

Committees have been named to arrange for the first police field day in four years, which will mark resumption of the former popular annual program staged under the auspices of the Police Pension Fund Association.

An amateur boxing tournament of 12 bouts will be staged at Forbes Field on the night of August 21. Leading boxers will be seen on the special card being arranged for the fund by Dr. William D. McClelland, state boxing commissioner.

Mayor William N. McNair is honorary chairman. Police Supt. Benjamin R. Marshall will serve as general chairman, assisted by a general committee composed of directors of the association. They are Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell, Charles T. Cahill, Patrick E. Dixon, Morgan J. O'Brien, William R. Sullivan, Thomas W. Beggs, Bernard J. McArdle, Harry C. Hyer and Chester B. Morley.

The ticket sale, which opened today, will be supervised by a special committee including Assistant Supt. Jacob Dorsey and Inspectors Andrew Charles, Anthony Block, Harry E. Moore, John H. Schnurr, Jeremiah L. Deasy, Charles L. Dye, Elias Wentzell, Walter V. Kaiser and Samuel E. Wheeler.

CLEVELAND NET STARS ANNEX W. PA. TITLES

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The forty-sixth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships passed into the annals before a packed gallery at Stanton Heights yesterday as Cleveland contenders carried off major honors of the event, LeRoy Weir, crack Buckeye schoolmaster, downed Frank Brooks, home hope from Harvard and the Belmont Racquet Club, in a brilliant five-set struggle, 6-2, 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, for man-to-man laurels and the David T. McCahill Cup, while Mrs. Barbara Duffy, charming and diminutive Ohio State premiere, kept her slate clean against her fellow Forest citian, Mrs. Andree Russell, by downing her in consecutive canto, 6-2, 6-4, for the women's singles crown and the coveted Honus Wagner flagon.

Neither victor had ever previously landed one of the local trophies; in fact, only Bill Haseltine, of Philadelphia, boasts two legs on the McCahill bowl and never, since it was placed up in 1929, has the Wagner silverware been twice won by the same contender.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY OF GREATER PITTSBURGH

METALS QUIET, QUOTATIONS STEADY

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—Non-ferrous metals were generally quiet in the past week with little or no price changes reported. The copper industry continued to center its interest in effecting successful operations under the code and, in the meantime, blue eagle copper remained at the 9-cent basis.

Business was of small proportions after the active scramble for metal several weeks ago prior to the half-cent advance. An informal statement credited to the director of the copper code authority that the trend of prices would not be anything but upward attracted interest. Unofficial statistics revealed a reduction in world refined stocks during May.

Tin prices fluctuated irregularly over a narrow range but while the market was moderately active on arbitrage buying credited to London account owing to wider differences, mill demand did not develop until late in the week. Prospects for seasonal declines in tin plate mill activity with consumers well stocked, accounted for the restricted buying.

Lead held steady in a quiet market, with the exception of a moderate volume of buying for prompt shipment which appeared on a few days. Seasonal declines in demand from battery manufacturers was reported although a fair call from the paint trade was noted.

Zinc also was quiet with prices unchanged. Prospective consuming demand was said to be dependent upon the outlook for steel operations. Reports of plans for curtailment of ore production following recent heavy output were being watched.

Antimony was dull and while a little competition developed among sellers for spot business, forward quotations were maintained in sympathy with Chinese markets.

Slight decreases in steel ingot production during the week reflected a tapering off in activity as the deadline on second quarter shipments approaches. Finishing mill operations, with the exception of plates and shapes, however, were active on orders for delivery before July 1. Third quarter operations were said to be dependent upon the amount of stocking done by the consuming trades, and demand from railroads and the building trades. Pig iron shipments against contracts are expected to be large for the month, but new business is light.

They've Been Bartenders Many Years

BARTENDER WALL: "JOHN L. SULLIVAN, BOB FITZSIMMONS, JIM CORBETT . . . TRIED MINE"

DEAN OF BARS REVIVES ART

Wining and dining has once more become an art in Pittsburgh . . . an art thoroughly understood by a few after years of haphazard hasty swallowing.

Among those in the know, though, are two veritable artists, Louie and Frank, bar men at the Hofbrau in the Diamond. To them the concoction of fine cocktails is a delicate process, acquired through many years of serving world-famous personages. Louie Wall, known as the dean of Pittsburgh bartenders, has been at his work for 40 years. According to him:

"I never dreamed when I first mixed drinks in the 1890's that some day I would be serving the grandsons of my first customers. In the years since then, I've put a punch in the drinks of many a famous man—John L. Sullivan, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Corbett—they've all tried my mixers."

COCKTAILS LEAD

Frank (Sewickley) Swick, his partner, much in demand at parties, says that Manhattans and Martinis lead in popularity throughout the country, today, but that the Hofbrau's own specialties most in demand are the Omar Kahyam, named for the mural by Trumbull, which hangs over the bar, and Wagon Wheels.

Fine liquors, it is the Hofbrau's contention, should be accompanied by equally fine foods. The kitchen, consequently, is in charge of A. S. Geraud, former chef of old Delmonico's and the Astor Hotel in New York, and August L. Folin, in charge of Kaufmann's for 17 years and of the Ritz Carlton in London. They serve the foods of all nations, as well as the delicacies of the sea.

CUSTOM CHANGES

Not so many months ago, women, when they came to the Hofbrau, used the more secluded Danube Room where they might listen to a string ensemble play lovely Viennese waltzes and Gypsy love songs, but now, those who prefer, sip their legal beverages in the Old World Grill, before repeal the "sanctum sanctorum" of men.

Here in the grill is found the atmosphere of a hunting lodge. Majestic trophies, fine old woods, colorful plaid linens combine to form the restful background which the manager Herman Schlesinger, devised in his travels in metropolitan cities and old world byways of Europe. Regularly he continues to make his trips to famous spots so that Pittsburghers may have the latest in drinks—drinks worthy of supplementing food designed for epicures.

Vanderbilt Bank Pays More Than 100 Per Cent

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 25.—The First National Bank of Vanderbilt is paying off today—100 per cent. plus a 1.18 per cent dividend to depositors.

Receiver Frank J. McFarland is distributing $14,500 to 600 depositors, the third and final dividend. The first dividend was 75 per cent, the second 15 and today's dividend was 10 per cent plus slightly over 1 per cent interest.

It is the first of recently collapsed banks to pay in full.

BERLIN-LONDON PARLEY NEAR

LONDON, June 25.—(AP.)—Negotiations between Germany and Great Britain are to begin Wednesday at the British Treasury between representatives of both nations.

Germany is sending a legation of three experts who will arrive tomorrow for the conference.

The parley will be concerned with the German moratorium on debt payments and some unofficial quarters anticipate that a settlement—if one is reached—may provide lower interest rates on German debts owed in Great Britain.

The same circles likewise anticipated that, to reach such a result, the Germans would make certain concessions and call off the moratorium.

There was, however, no official indication of how far Great Britain might be willing to go in the concessions. It is known that the government desires to avoid a trade war with Germany.

TRIBUTES PAID TO EDUCATOR

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 25.—Educational leaders from all parts of the state attended the funeral of James Killius, 44, superintendent of the downtown Johnstown public schools since 1929, held at his home today.

Mr. Killius, who died Friday, was well-known as an authority on vocational education and a leader among Pennsylvania educators. He was president of the Western Convention District of the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

He was past president of the department of vocational education of the association and past president of the Pennsylvania Society for Vocational Education.

Mr. Killius was a graduate of California State Teachers College, the University of Pittsburgh and Penn State and a member of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary education fraternity.

He leaves a son, James; a daughter, Ruth and a brother, J. W. Killius.

County Recalls Tax Work Group

The first of a group of clerks furloughed by the county following the installation of labor-saving machinery in the keeping of records was recalled today by the Bureau for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes. They will be tested on their ability to operate the machines. About 40 of the most proficient will be rehired.

Schramm to Speak At Trade Meeting

The Allied Boards of Trade in Allegheny County will hold its monthly meeting at 6 p. m. Wednesday in the Congress of Clubs. Judge Gustav Schramm, of the Juvenile Court, will speak.

The organization represents 44 trade and civic groups with a total membership of 20,000.

POSSE TRACKS HERMIT KILLER

WOLCOTT, Conn., June 25.—(AP.)—A hermit killer, John Crowe, 65, slipped through the paths of the Wolcott woods today, leaving two dead men and a wounded woman, and eluding a posse of several hundred officers and civilians.

Crowe fired a rifle point blank at Clarence Yuskis, Jr., 22, on the Yuskis grounds yesterday, killing the youth almost instantly; shot to death the hired man, Julius Karvauskas, 40, and wounded Mrs. Yuskis, Clarence's mother, in the head.

Leaping into his automobile, the killer drove 500 yards down the road, abandoned the car beyond a bend and fled to his home, a shack in a field adjoining the Yuskis property.

As a posse formed and advanced on the shack with machine guns and tear gas bombs, Crowe retreated unseen in the woods behind his home and vanished.

While state troopers stalked through the woods and others guarded the highways, bloodhounds were ordered brought from Litchfield to track down the fugitive.

Through the night, as the hunt progressed, lights burned in the homes in and about Wolcott and men slept with rifles close at hand or joined the searchers.

Community Council Due to Select Aides

Recently elected heads of the Lawrenceville-Bloomfield Community Council will meet tomorrow afternoon to select chairmen and members of committees on health, recreation, thrift gardens, housing, employment, and relief. The officers are the Rev. Albert G. Curry, president; Miss Muriel Hanson, first vice president; Miss Helen Brennan, second vice president, and Miss Stella E. Hartmen, secretary-treasurer.

USE OF POWER AT '31 RATE

NEW YORK, June 25.—Energy consumption in the group of 3,800 large manufacturing plants in various industries scattered throughout the country, survey each month by Electrical World, indicates a continuation in the rate of industrial activity registered during the past few months. Total operations in May were equal to those of April, but when adjustment is made for the difference in the number of work-days, May shows a recession of 2.5 per cent. The average of the first four months in 1934 was surpassed by 2 per cent. The survey says:

"A year ago the upward movement was in full swing, but the present figure is nearly 17 per cent higher than that of the corresponding month of 1933, 32 per cent over 1932 and virtually on a level with 1931. Fully half of the ground lost since 1929 has been regained; the deficiency compared with May of that year amounts to 21 per cent."

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, June 25.—The market was due 2¼ to 2½d higher, opened unchanged to ⅛d lower, and at 12:15 p. m. was off ⅜ to ½d.

The close was ⅜ pence lower; figured on sterling at 5.02½.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Steel prices per 100 pounds f. o. b. Pittsburgh: Blue annealed sheets, hot rolled, $2.15; galvanized sheets, $3.25; black sheets, hot rolled, $2.65; steel bars, $1.90.

Nickel Increases Ontario Holdings

NEW YORK, June 25.—The American Metal Company announced that it has sold to International Nickel Company, of Canada, for $1,596,306 in cash, which includes accrued dividend to June 18, 1934, 13,324 shares of the Ontario Refining Company. This increases holdings of International Nickel in Ontario Refining Company to 90,000 shares and decreases the holdings of American Metal Company to 10,000 shares out of the total of 100,000 outstanding.

MILK PRODUCTS OUTPUT OFF

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP.)—The Bureau of Agricultural economics reports that total production of manufactured dairy products during April was three per cent less than a year previous and prospects were for "light production for some time."

Milk production per cow on June 1 was the shortest on record for that date and total production was five per cent less than on June 1, 1933, the bureau said.

The declining production was attributed to effects of the drought and low prices for butter fat.

Crop Movement Helps Atchison

CHICAGO, June 25.—With the aid of an earlier harvesting season and winter wheat yields above the indications of several weeks ago, freight traffic on the Atchison System gained sharply last week both over the preceding week and a year ago. Total revenue cars handled for the week will probably reach 28,500 or better, against 25,535 in the previous week and 24,348 in the corresponding 1933 week.

WHEAT CONFAB POSTPONED

LONDON, June 25.—(AP.)—Argentina's refusal to curb wheat exports or to accept any scheme to decrease production today forced an indefinite postponement of the regular session of the International Wheat Commission, scheduled to open here Wednesday.

Members said the life of the commission itself, which was organized last August with the hope of boosting wheat prices throughout the world, was threatened.

No formal announcement of the postponement was made, but it was learned that all members of the commission were informed privately that negotiations between Argentina and other members of the "big four," which began early in May, thus far have been fruitless.

Therefore, it was felt, nothing could be gained by summoning the full commission to meet.

Today's was the second postponement of scheduled formal meetings of wheat within the month.

Automobile Sales Lower Last Month

NEW YORK, June 25.—Factory sales of automobiles in the United States in May totaled 331,641 units against 354,745 in April and 214,832 in May 1933.

RICHFIELD OIL SALE LOOMS

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—Sufficient number of Richfield Oil and Pan American Petroleum bonds have been deposited under a plan based on the offer of the Standard Oil Company of California, to enable the committee to bid on the Richfield and affiliated properties at the forthcoming foreclosure sale, it was announced by Richard W. Millar, secretary of the reorganization committee.

At the same time the committee extended the time for the deposit of bonds and unsecured claims until July 14.

In a letter to bondholders announcing the extension, Millar stated that Judge William P. James, who has assumed supervision of the plan, is expected shortly to sign a decree of foreclosure and sale, a draft of which already has been presented to him.

The letter stated that the committee hoped that appropriate arrangements can be made with the Standard Company to proceed with completion of the reorganization as soon as the judge fixes the date for the sale.

R. F. C. REPORTS APRIL LOANS

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP.)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation reported to Congress today that it had authorized loans and advances totalling $118,478,000 in April.

That included $71,629,075 for banks and trust companies, of which $39,059,287 went to liquidators and receivers of closed institutions; $25,870,800 for subscriptions to preferred stock in 171 banks; $10,000,000 advanced to the Secretary of the Treasury for subscription to stock in the Home Owners Loan Corporation; a $4,000,000 loan to the Del-Mar Company of Baltimore on preferred stock of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company; $4,195,000 for the purchase of capital notes and debentures of 71 banks, and $1,001,118 for loans to irrigation and drainage districts.

The report filed with South Trimble, house clerk, showed the corporation had $3,221,815,219 in notes outstanding on April 30. It also listed railroad loans of $8,254,000 and mortgage loan company loans of $14,269,221 during the month.

Three High Schools Hold Graduation

Annual commencement exercises will be held at three high schools tonight.

Diplomas will be awarded 281 seniors of Schenley High at exercises in Memorial Hall, Carrick High will hold exercises in the school auditorium, and Westinghouse High in the school auditorium.

Exercises also will be held by the Overbrook and Prospect Junior High schools.

Institute Awards Westinghouse Men

Presentation of awards to three Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company engineers today marked the summer convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at Hot Springs, Va.

The awards, for the best technical papers on engineering practice, theory and research, were won by F. H. Gulliksen, Joseph Slepian and L. R. Ludwig, all of the East Pittsburgh works.

CATTLE RELIEF LOANS READY

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP.)—Gov. William I. Myers, of the Farm Credit Administration, announced today that loans from the $525,000,000 drought relief appropriation to farmers and stockmen to purchase feed for live stock and for production of forage crops in primary drought areas would be available this week.

Myers said that in accordance with the emergency relief act just passed by Congress he would make the loans in areas which have been designated as emergency drought areas by the Department of Agriculture.

Administration of the loans will be in the hands of the emergency crop and feed loan section and will be handled through the emergency crop loan offices which already have local loan committees established in all counties in the drought areas. No loans will be made to purchase feed for live stock acquired since April 1, 1934.

OIL PRODUCTION PLAN O. K.'D

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Strict control of a recently-discovered oil field, based on a detailed plan that may be extended in the future to all new fields, was announced by Petroleum Administrator Ickes.

The development plans for the 12,000-acre Cayuga field include limiting the number of wells to one per 20 acres, with no more than 75 wells to be brought in during the year 1934. If the daily output reaches 10,000 barrels by December 10, drilling operations are to be suspended.

The plan, recommended by the Petroleum Administrative Board and the Geological Survey, provides that the nine companies operating the field shall divide the 75 wells equitably among themselves.

Review of Reviews

This chart offers a comparison of the internal and external trade of the United States. The solid black bars show the sum of imports and exports in terms of dollars. The hatched bars represent the total of carloadings in the United States. One series, therefore, represents the trade of the United States as a whole with other parts of the world and the other represents the trade of various portions of the United States with each other.

Unfortunately, the two series are not strictly comparable for a number of reasons. Internal trade is measured here in terms of physical units, namely, carloadings, whereas external trade is measured in terms of value, that is, dollars. Furthermore, the measure of internal trade is incomplete, because it leaves out of account pipelines, waterways and motor transportation. In a similar fashion, the measure of external trade is incomplete because it omits a large number of very important intangible items, not the least of which is tourist trade.

The only safe conclusion from the chart is that both external and internal trade have responded to the improvement in world business and that Ottawa pacts higher tariffs and NRA restrictions to the contrary, a general improvement in world business results in a rise in trade both within and without the borders of particular countries.

At this time the picture is of particular interest because of George N. Peek's report to the President regarding the American experience with foreign trade. Mr. Peek points out that over a period of 38 years the United States has lost 22 billion dollars. In other words, the American nation without realizing it has been distributing a consumer's dividend to the rest of the world, enabling it to live off the fat of the American countryside without making any corresponding return in terms of services or goods.

It is significant that the President has not only given this report his own careful personal attention but has made it the subject of an extended discussion with the newspaper corps at the White House.

STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—The stock market continued in slumberland today and the ticker tape idled through one of those "dullest" sessions which have recently become the despair of brokerage houses.

Prices generally were quite narrow, although there were some firm as well as soft spots uncovered in the listless proceedings. Meat packing company shares and a few of the oil issues were in moderate demand at fairly substantial advances, but some of the steels, coppers and silver mining stocks sagged. There was little news to brighten the rather desolate trading picture. Floor members were said to have accounted for approximately 90 per cent of the extremely small turnover.

The action of grains furnished no encouragement to the followers of the equity list. Wheat, corn, oats and barley, after early steadiness, turned downward for losses of 1 to around 2 cents a bushel. Small improvement, however, was shown by cotton, rubber and silver futures. Bonds were sluggish and a bit uneven. Foreign exchanges held to a restricted groove.

The flurry in the packer group was attributed partly to the steady advance of livestock prices. Hogs are around their best levels for the year. Another increase in the price of gasoline in California helped to steady the petroleum group.

While the belief was general that higher prices will be seen this fall, most commentators hesitated to venture even the most cautious forecasts as to near-term equity movements.

In some quarters an upturn in the capital goods industries was expected to point the way for stocks. In the manufacturing end it was recalled that, while the dollar has been devalued by 40 per cent, thereby indicating a probable price rise of 66⅔ per cent, prices have actually risen only about 20 per cent thus far. Various industrialists who have been studying this apparent gap were reported planning modernization of their plants and equipment before such a course entails considerably more expense.

Those who hold that costs will rise, base their reasoning on the belief that, if the gold bloc countries are forced off the standard this summer, and England further depreciates sterling, America will find it necessary to cut another piece out of the dollar; that large government outlays, especially those for relief, and the growing budget deficits, may in fact generate an inflationary price advance, and, finally, if business progress shows signs this summer of suffering a severe setback, the administration will administer a fresh stimulus.

HIGHER CABLES AID COTTON

NEW YORK, June 25.—Cotton futures opened steady, 7 to 9 points advance on higher Liverpool cables, continued dry weather in Texas, and showers in portions of the Atlantic states. July, 12.02; October, 12.31; December, 12.42; January 12.47; May, 12.66.

Trading was fairly active at the start. Further July liquidation was quite readily absorbed by trade at the recent widening in differences and there was scattered buying on the Liverpool showing and the unfavorable view of over-Sunday weather reports.

The advance to 12.32 for October, making net gains of about 7 to 10 points on the general list, met considerable reailizing, however, and prices sagged off 4 or 5 points from the best after the call. At the end of the first half hour, October was ruling around 12.29, with the general market showing net gains of 6 to 7 points.

The market held steady later in the morning. The July liquidation continued and there was further switching from July to later deliveries without much change in the differences. Business otherwise was scattering and orders appeared to be fairly well divided on the basis of 12.28 for October. The market at mid-day showed net advances of 5 to 7 points. Crop complaints from West Texas reporting hot winds and slow growth were a sustaining factor.

LIVERPOOL, June 25.—Cotton, 6,000 bales, American nil. Spot—Moderate business done; prices 4 points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 7.35; good middling, 7.05; strict middling, 6.90; middling, 6.75; strict low middling, 6.60; low middling, 6.35; strict good ordinary, 6.15; good ordinary, 5.85. Future closed quite and steady. July, 6.47; October, 6.43; December, 6.38; January, 6.38; March, 6.39; May, 6.38.

Will Next 6 Months See Gain?

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT IS the outlook for the second half of 1934?

WHEN embarrassingly questioned, canny Scots are fond of replying, "it all depends."

IN MY OPINION, it all depends on how responsible men of affairs act.

ADMITTEDLY, the adjournment of Congress was not immediately followed by visible expressions of relief and gratification. Quotations on the New York Stock Exchange which is the nation's most important register of sentiment, did not manifest joyousness immediately following the adjournment of Congress. Instead, security prices declined daily until Saturday. Nor did quotations for leading commodities reflect resiliency.

Mr. Forbes

DEVELOPMENTS during coming months will vitally affect the whole future of America's history.

Unless employers, unless men of affairs, unless institutional and other heavyweight investors exhibit confidence and courage, unless recovery can be quickened, unless employment can be expanded, the prospect inevitably is that Washington will feel compelled to resort to still more radical experiments when Congress meets in January.

THE GREAT MAJORITY OF AMERICANS seem ready and willing to follow aggressive leadership.

NOTWITHSTANDING the apprehension which set in some time ago in high places, and which has since been reflected by recessions on the principal exchanges, and slowing down of enterprise, the rank and file of consumers have continued to purchase gratifyingly freely.

As a matter of fact, volume of retail trade has been well maintained as has the general price level.

BUT UNLESS leaders shortly resume aggressive action, their skepticism doubtless will be reflected all down the line.

Supreme efforts should be exerted to avert such a catastrophe.

CONGRESS manifested less radicalism in its closing session than had been widely predicted. It modified acceptably various measures affecting finance and business; and it refused to pass the Wagner bill and other legislation strenuously objected to by business, industry and employers.

NOT ONLY SO, but NRA bureaucrats let it be known that they had become anxious to cooperate with employers in bringing about satisfactory solutions of various problems and to grant industries opportunity to effect self regulation.

As a matter of fact NRA is today looked upon much more kindly than it was in its earlier stages. Some of our basic industries are now all for it.

WHAT DOES summer promise to bring?

Again the reply might well be "it all depends."

Thus our general activity has been satisfactorily maintained. True expansion in railway freight, power consumption, steel production, bank debits, retail trade are showing some slackening. Also security and commodity prices have sustained a modest relapse.

Nevertheless nothing has occurred so far to justify out and out pessimism.

PECULIARLY pleasing is the consistent strength of government obligations.

Although governmental debt has skyrocketed to a new peak, although federal reserve banks are carrying unparallelled amounts of long term government obligations, although additional federal appropriations running into billions have been sanctioned, prices for United States bonds have stood up strong as Gibraltar.

THIS FACT is important and encouraging beyond expression.

WAS THE opposite true the potentialities would be truly alarming.

ANOTHER inspiring development has been the abatement in actual and threatened labor troubles. President Roosevelt has exhibited consummate skill in devising machinery designed to effect conciliation and peaceful settlements.

ALL IN ALL the second half of the year could and should bring constructive, reassuring, inspiring developments.

But these can be achieved only and if the employing classes muster up courage to exercise enterprise even at what they may regard as considerable risk.

(Copyright, 1934, B. C. Forbes.)

California Raises Price of Gasoline

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—Standard Oil Company of California announced, effective tomorrow morning, an advance of 2c a gallon on third structure gasoline and 2½c a gallon on standard grade and ethyl gasolines. Similar advances are being made in Los Angeles.

DETROIT, June 25.—Gasoline prices in this area have been cut 1 cent on all grades. The drop brings prices closer in line with prevailing levels throughout the Mid West.

QUIET SEASON FAILS TO BRING USUAL SLUMP

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, June 25.—Success stories in a period of hard times are more interesting to me than in periods of prosperity.

Mr. Rukeyser

For it takes sterner stuff to buck the tides than to ride them.

As an industry, the new refrigeration trade has heard comparatively little about the depression. The Norge Corporation, one of the units, actually began its national penetration in 1931, when quitting was more fashionable than initiating. In these intervening years, the company greatly increased its sales.

It has been the basic idea of Maj. Howard E. Blood, the president, that the major executive must not only take care of his stockholders and employes, but also of his dealers and consumers.

Maj. Blood looks upon modern industry as a vast co-operative enterprise, rather than as the private province of a dictator.

"The main considerations," Maj. Blood points out, in the executives' service bulletin, "back of our philosophy in this matter, are:

"1—New times and conditions call for the reversal of a typical management viewpoint. Heretofore it has grown accustomed to viewing an operation from the angle of the company out to the consumer. What is now needed is that it train itself to judge all moves from the consumer back to the company. Norge planning starts with the retail salesman and works back. Its local selling programs are not the weak precipitates and unsupported simmerings of plans that have exhausted their force before they arrive at the crucial point. They are the beginning and not the end of an impulse.

1934 OBJECTIVES

"2—Plans, methods, design and program should be based upon the experience and expressed judgment of the distributive group concerned rather than upon the assumed genius of a single authority or company group. It is our policy to build products containing features that consumers would install were they able to build such products themselves. Similarly it is our policy to build our selling program to contain the elements which dealers would adopt were they able to design it themselves.

"The attainment of our major 1934 objective—the manufacture of customers—hinges upon a thoroughly integrated sales program fashioned to supply all needed dealer merchandising requirements.

"It is apparent that with the shift of selling emphasis from price to value caused by present-day conditions, a tremendous sales retaining job confronts every appliance manufacturer. We went to the 2,142 supersalesmen in our organization and asked them what their best methods were in relation to the most important selling activities. Here were men who had won their spurs and who, every day, were practicing successful methods by the knowledge of which others could be helped. We let them write our sales training course. We took the best of their methods, combined them into 24 practical lessons that contain ideas and methods which a salesman can rely upon."

It is good for a chief executive to look within his own organization, instead of outside, for guidance, inspiration and useful data.

In the past week, business in the United States about held its own, as the quiet summer season opened. Steel output, coal production, power consumption and freight car loadings stayed up.

Restoring the heavy goods industry remains an important aspect of the "managed recovery" campaign. In addition to stimulants, it is important to detect a genuine need for capital goods. One of the principal equipment manufacturers offers this argument:

"Avoiding capital investments by operating obsolete equipment frequently wastes more capital than is needed to purchase modern, improved equipment. Obsolete equipment adds to losses indefinitely. The right kind of modernization pays for itself and then adds to earnings."

Of course, where obsolescence exists, it is an indictment of management. With proper accounting policy and adequate writeoffs for depreciation, the process of dismantlement and replacement is almost automatic.

Where sufficient chargeoffs have not habitually been made, management has fooled its stockholders. Instead of earning the reported profits, it was in reality using up capital.

European Wheat Cut by Drought

ROME, June 25. — (AP.) — The International Institute of Agriculture estimated today that the European wheat harvest this year will fall short of 1933 by 260,000,000 bushels.

The 1934 harvest is expected to total 1,470,000,000 bushels, an amount which approximates the 1932 crop. This year's decline is due to the drought.

Westinghouse, G-E Reduce Lamp Prices

Reductions ranging from 10 to 30 cents in the list price of various sizes of electric light lamps was announced today by the Westinghouse Lamp Company. A reduction averaging 13 per cent in the list price of four types of lamps was announced by the General Electric Company.

STRIPPED, SLAIN IN DANCE ROW

MANCHESTER, Tenn., June 25.—(AP.)—A Negro who slapped a white man at a Negro dance has paid with his life, and today eight white farmers were in jail charged with killing him.

Stripped of his clothing, shot four times and beaten with a weapon believed to have been an ax, the Negro, Dick Wilkerson, 25, was found dead in an oat field yesterday by two farmers who lived near the scene of the crime, 14 miles southeast of here.

A few hours later, upon information furnished them by a 14-year-old boy, Coffee County officers arrested eight young farmers and charged them with murder. Among the eight, said Sheriff C. D. Huffman, was the stepfather of the boy. Three other men were brothers.

Meanwhile, officers had found that the Negro's home had been invaded and wrecked.

Sheriff Huffman said the slaying of the Negro was an act of vengeance growing out of the slapping of a white man by the Negro at a dance.

Girl in the Family

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XIX.

Uncle Worthy was in his office, leaning back in his swivel chair reading when Susan opened the door and told him that Mr. Melton wanted to see him. He jumped up eagerly and took a small glass from the top of his desk.

"Hello, Mr. Broderick. Here's some more just like that last stuff I brought you," Susan heard Mr. Melton say to him as he went shuffling down to the side door in his house slippers.

"That was very fine stuff," Uncle Worthy answered in his hearty voice. "It should have been—at the price. How much is this?"

"Same price."

"Well, we can't get along without it, can we? Even if you fellers do hold us up," Uncle Worthy chuckled, more cheerful than he had been for days.

There was a little pause and then Mr. Melton spoke again. "This is strictly cash this time, you understand, Mr. Broderick."

From her place at the end of the hall Susan could see that he still held his burly sack in his arms. She watched her uncle stroke his long chin thoughtfully for a minute or two, then put his hand into his back trousers pocket and bring forth his leather wallet. He took three twenty dollar bills from it, handed them to Mr. Melton and took the sack into his own arms.

"Come up into my office," he said, "and we'll try it, eh?"

It was almost seven before Mr. Melton left and dinner was fifteen minutes later than usual. Before Susan brought in the dessert her uncle got up from the table and announced that he did not care for any. He was going to bed, he said, to try to sleep off a headache that he had had ever since noon. One side of his face was flushed a deep red, she noticed, as he got slowly out of his chair, and his eyelinds were almost closed with puffiness.

Aunt Edna made a sudden movement of her head toward John, and John got up and followed him into the hall. He went slowly up the stairs, the crystal prisms of the hall chandelier tinkled as he crossed the floor above, and then the door of his bedroom closed.

Uncle All Right

"He's all right," John said, coming back from the hall. It was not the first time that he had stood at the foot of the stairs, waiting until his uncle reached his bedroom in safety.

To all of them the whole scene was like part of a play that they had seen so many times that they knew exactly what was going to happen before the curtain went up.

"Gosh all hemlock! Did you notice his face?" John asked in a grave, shocked voice as he took his seat at the table. "Red on one side and white as paper on the other. I never saw it like that before—I wonder if he IS all right."

He pushed back his chair and ran upstairs. In two or three minutes he came back. "Yes, he's okeh." His voice was full of relief. "In bed already, and sound asleep."

It was 8 o'clock when Susan put the dishpan on its hook behind the stove and switched off the kitchen lights. The house was very quiet. John had left directly after dinner to cover a hockey game for his paper, picking Connie Sayre up on his way to the rink. Behind the closed door of the parlor Lutie and Aunt Edna were reading, and upstairs Uncle Worthy slept soundlessly in his room.

Susan went into his little office to gather up the used glasses that stood on his desk and turn off his reading light. A little sheaf of bills lay beside it, and she stopped to look at them. It was easy for they were spread out like a hand of cards—Hart's bill; a bill from the Hermit Club, her father's club; the grocer's bill; the butcher's bill; the gas bill; the electric light bill; Herbst's bill for the milk; a bill from the coal dealer; the telephone bill; a bill from the plumber who made the repairs at The Broderick Arms.

"All these bills, very little money in the house, and still he buys liquor at $10 a quart," thought Susan, glancing up at the six brown bottles that stood on the desk . . . Ah, well, it was Uncle Worthy's money, after all, and what he did with it was no one's affair but his own.

She switched off the light and went upstairs to write a note of thanks to Connie for the breakfast coat. As she passed Allen's room on her way to her own she saw that his door still stood halfway open just as she had left it that morning. She remembered then that this was Friday, one of his nights at law school. He would not be home until 11 or a little later. She knew because she had often stayed awake on other law-school nights, waiting to hear him come in.

The evening wore on slowly. Susan wrote her note and a short letter to Wallace. Then she washed her hands and powdered them to remove the dish-washing redness from them, carefully brushed her hair, put on her wraps and went downstairs. Lutie heard her and came to the door of the parlor to find out what she was doing.

"Are you going out?" she asked.

"To mail these." Susan, with one hand on the vestibule door, held up the letters.

"At this time of night? It's after 9 o'clock, Susan." She said it as if she were telling her that it was 3 in the morning.

"No one's going to bother me, Lutie. I'll be back in a second." The door closed on her.

When she came back to the house 10 minutes later there were no lights in the parlor, and Lutie was sitting on the hall seat and her lips, under their coating of bright red salve, were smiling. "I just had a cigaret," she whispered guiltily. Every now and then she smoked one. It made her feel modern, she said—"as if I still had a little youth and zip," she confided to Susan, and Susan had never realized before how tragic that sentence was. How it summed up the narrowness and nothingness of Lutie's life, where the smoking of a cigaret in secret was an excitement.

Interested in Romance

"Edna's gone to bed, and I'm going too now that you're in safely," said Lutie, getting up. "You'd better not stay up late. . . . Did you write Wallace a nice turtle-dove letter?—I do think a man likes to get love letters just as much as a girl does, even if men are too matter-of-fact to admit it." Having never had any romance of her own, Lutie took the greatest interest in Susan's.

"I suppose you're going to wait up in case Wallace telephones you tonight," she added archly, "Nighty-night, Childie."

When she had gone Susan opened the hall door once more and let the fresh cold winter air rush in to sweep out the cold dead air with its odors of roast goose and stale tobacco and dust from the layers of gray paper padding that lay under the hall carpet.

In the darkness of the parlor she could see the dull red eye of the grate fire. There was some coal in the brass bucket that stood on the hearth and she poured it on the flames. After a few seconds it flared up and began to crackle cheerfully.

On the table in the middle of the room lay the volume of Walpole that she had been reading in odd moments for the last week. She settled herself in John's leather rocker and began to read. A week before when she began it she had decided that it was one of the most beautifully written and entertaining books she had ever opened. But now, after a page or two, she laid it down on her lap. After all, what difference did it make that a man in a book fell in love with a woman? It was what happened to real people that mattered. To John and Connie Sayre. To the two middle-aged women who were moving about so softly upstairs. To Anna Oberg, dancing tonight with Herbst at the Scandinavian Club, blissfully unaware that tomorrow her home and her living would be taken away from her. To Susan herself and to Wallace and to Allen Sholes—

Susan was one of those rare people who are truthful with themselves. She had told Anna that she would see Allen and ask him to leave the side door unlocked. But she knew that that was not the reason she was sitting up waiting for him. It would have been a simple matter to write a note about the door and pin it to the wall of the side entry-way where he could not fail to see it when he came in . . . She was waiting up because she wanted to see him, because she wanted to talk to him. But what she wanted to say she didn't know.

Toward 11 o'clock the wind that had been shrieking around the house all day died down, and directly afterward it began to rain. At first it was just a sharp spatter of drops against the plate glass windows, but by 11 water was washing down the panes as if it were trying to wash the winter's soot from them, and Center street was black and shining under the arc light that swung crazily in the wind.

At ten minutes after eleven she heard a street car stop at the corner and a minute afterward she saw Allen's tall broad-shouldered figure come swiftly along the sidewalk, his head down against the storm, and turn in at the gate.

She opened the front door and stepped out on the porch. There was a fresh wet smell in the air, a smell like spring, and the air was warmer than it had been in months.

"Allen!" Susan stepped to the edge of the porch and called to him just as he reached the point where the walk curved around to the side of the house. "Allen, come in this way."

He stopped, raising his face, a white blur, in the darkness. Then without a word he came running up the steps and into the house. Rain streamed from the edge of his hat brim, and his overcoat was so wet that it looked black.

Synopsis

Lovely Susan Broderick lives in the old family mansion with her father, Morris, brother John, Uncle Worthy, his wife, Edna, and a spinster aunt, Lutie. Although they have lost their wealth the old folks live in a dream world of social prominence. They feel humiliated when it is necessary to take in a "paying guest." The family wonders what Susan's fiance, Wallace Steffen, young banker, will think. John does not like Wallace. While Susan is waiting for Wallace, Mr. Sholes, the roomer, arrives. Uncle Worthy reprimands her for talking with Sholes. Wallace presents Susan with a diamond and sapphire ring. Later, Susan comes upon the jeweler's box, stamped with the name of a firm long out of business. The Brodericks objected to Susan and John being friendly with their late mother's relatives, the Cullens. Susan tells Cousin Mary about Sholes. Wallace leaves on trip. Susan's father tells family he's going to be married. Susan leaves party at home and joins Cullen. Susan's engagement to Wallace is announced simultaneously with the wedding of her father. Susan realizes she doesn't love Wallace. Uncle Worthy's bootlegger calls.

Now Go On

JUNIOR PATROL MAIL BOX

We hope every Junior Patrol member gets to see the World's Fair this summer.

Maybe you saw it last summer. It's really worth seeing again if you can. There are so many new things and so many more things that are entirely new this year.

Perhaps the fair looks best at night, when the wonderful lights flash on in all their colors. Great searchlights make fans of light in the sky. Glowing gas tubes outline many of the buildings. Little mushroom ground lights throw pools of light on the ground. Even out in the lagoon, lights play on the huge fountain, which sparkles in a dozen colors.

Today we have a swell letter from Thommy Parker, of 618 Fairview avenue, Elliott, Pa. He is captain of the Blue Eagle Junior Patrol. Here's his letter:

"I have been slow in writing, but the Blue Eagle Junior Patrol is still very active, but our time is taken up with baseball. The name of our team is the Blue Eagle, and we are doing good work.

"We won three games out of four, but we practice very hard. Our club gave a 15-minute broadcast, but we were very disappointed we did not meet you, Uncle Quin. We hope to meet you some time, although the members met Miss White and they think she is grand. We are making a scrap book out of your comic strip. We would like to schedule a game with Spike, Butch, Junior and Snuggings, but I think they are too heavy for us this year, but we may take them on in the future."

And Thommy sends a clipping from a paper—"Eagles defeat Attica Sluggers." Say, that's swell going, Thommy, and we are very proud of your patrol. We'll bet other patrols are proud, too. Keep up the good work, and write and tell us how you get along and what you do.

We think that's a good idea to keep a scrap book of the comic strip, and we hope some of the other patrols are doing the same thing. It's lots of fun to read it over again after while. Almost like reading it new again.

Another idea for a wonderful place to go this summer, fellows, is Washington, the capital. There are many fine new buildings. The city is more beautiful than ever before. You will surely have a wonderful time.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

If lack of sleep makes you feel dull and uninteresting, don't accept an invitation to the home of a friend or acquaintance.

When you partake of the hospitality of friends, you owe them something.

You are expected to add to the pleasure of other guests.

You are invited because it is believed you will be congenial.

The success of a party you attend depends upon the individuals invited as much as it does upon the plan of the hostess.

The host wishes his guests to appear to the best advantage and impress others in the party favorably.

Surely, you cannot do this if you're sleepy-eyed and mind-befuddled through lack of sleep.

There is no greater damper on social events than the person who has to fight to keep his or her eyes open.

The one who sits back and fails to take a share in an animated conversation is a social millstone to those entertaining.

It has surprised you that certain homely, ordinary persons are so popular.

It is because they condition themselves to be interesting.

Daily Short Short-Story

By BEN BISHOP

Officer Tim Calhoun, doing patrol duty out of Birmingham station, climbed laboriously aboard police car One-Twenty and settled his capacious bulk in the rear seat. His partner and subordinate, Chan Gordon, took the wheel.

"Where to, Tim—the usual round?" Gordon asked as he fumbled with the ignition.

"Nope," Tim grunted. "We've got a dog-bite case over on Young street. On the way over we'll pick up the kid that was bit."

Arriving at the address on Young street, Officer Calhoun, accompanied by the youngster, rapped on the front door. No response. They went around back. Again Calhoun knocked. The door opened slowly to admit them to a squalid flat.

"You folks got a dog here?" Calhoun asked casually.

There was no need for a reply. A tell-tale thumping was coming from underneath a battered table.

"Hello there, pup! What's your name?" Calhoun coaxed.

"His name's Moy," the dog's master, a frightened, browbeaten sort of man said.

"Moy, eh? Funny name. What kinda dog is he?" Calhoun inquired.

"Gosh, I dunno. Guess we'll have to classify him as jes' dog," Moy's owner said.

"Was—was you thinkin'—of buyin' a dog like this one for your little boy?" Moy's owner asked timidly.

Officer Calhoun's face clouded.

* * *

"No," he said soberly. "I'm sorry, folks, but this boy's mother says that Moy bit him. I hate to take him away from you, but I must. It's the law. We'll keep him for twenty-one days, then if he's all right we'll bring him back. I hope you'll understand," the policeman said as he backed out of the door with Moy under his arm.

At Birmingham station, Calhoun carrying the diminutive Moy under his arm, went straight to the office of Capt. Forsander.

"This is Moy—the dog that bit the kid over on Young street," Calhoun explained.

"Quit your kidding. I know my dogs. This little guy wouldn't bite any one, unless . ."

"Unless what?" Calhoun wanted to know.

"Unless to protect himself," the captain averred with emphasis.

"S'what I thought. But what'll we do with him? It's too late to take him to the dog pound."

"Take him home and keep him for a while, Calhoun. He's all right. I'll vouch for him. Here's a bit of change to help pay his board," Capt. Forsander advised.

About three weeks later Officers Calhoun and Gordon were cruising about in the small hours of the morning. Suddenly they were snapped into abrupt attention by a message coming in over the radio.

The Briarcliffe apartments were afire!

"Holy Mother o' Malachi!" Calhoun shouted above the anguished wail of fire sirens. "That's my address—my home! Drive, Chan! Drive like you've never driven before! My wife—my kiddies! May God be with you now!"

Calhoun's wife was safe with their eldest child. The younger was undoubtedly in its crib. No one could enter—the firemen forbade that as suicidal.

Into the very maw of the rampaging fire god Calhoun plunged—through searing, blistering hallways—up tortuous stairways twisting endlessly upward. Stark nauseating fear clutched at the heart of Tim Calhoun.

* * *

Then he spied them: Moy and the baby, dimly silhouetted against a background of flames. To this farthest outpost of safety the faithful dog had dragged the helpless mite.

Tim Calhoun prayed—prayed as no man has ever prayed before or since—that all three might be saved. He'd do what he could.

Outside Father O'Rourke was solemnly intoning the office for the dying when a fire-blackened figure carrying a baby and a small dog emerged from that hellish maelstrom of smoke and flame.

Officer Tim Calhoun was made of he-man stuff. He was up and about the next day. This was the twenty-first and last day of Moy's stay with him.

Over on Young street Moy's owner gloomed over his meager pile of belongings which were piled in the street.

"The landlord put us out," he explained briefly to Calhoun. "The relief won't let us keep a dog, so you can have Moy if you want to. Maybe you can give him away to some one."

Officer Calhoun patted Moy's head. Pleading brown eyes looked up into his. "So long as this little fellow lives I'll give him a good home. So help me God," he muttered thickly. He thrust his hand into his pocket and took out his purse. He emptied it—$75—into the hands of Moy's owner and said: "Take that as part payment, Bud—part payment," he added solemnly.

Health authorities have decided that indigestion is often caused by 'cat and dog wrangling between husband and wife."

A vicious cycle, if you ask us—because cat and dog wrangling is often caused by indigestion.

"For dyspepsia," says Dr. Fishbein, of the Medical Journal, "a man should try to get away from his wife and household occasionally."

But how about the thousands of poor unfortunate goofs who haven't got dyspepsia!

TODAY'S COMEDY RELIEF

(From the Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Ray Wilson hands us a good one on Harold Inglish, of this city, who is the secretary of Dodson's World's Fair Shows that were recently at Jackson, Mississippi. While at Jackson, Harold met F. H. Yeh, a converted Chinaman, who was in that city attending a conference of the M. E. Church, South. The introduction went like this: "Mr. Inglish, Mr. Yeh; Mr. Yeh, Mr. Inglish." Mr. Yeh speaks only broken English and does not yet fully understand all that is said to him in our tongue. Yeh's only remark to old Harold: "Mr. 'English' me been studying you two years. Me study English, Find him hard."

HORRIBLE TRUTH

Horror films, contrived of shrieks,
Pistol shots and eerie squeaks
Send no shudders down my spine,
Nor bead my brow with clammy brine.
No goose-flesh on my spine appears

I only wish the film made sense.
I'm horrified a little bit
To realize that here I sit.

The Adventurous American

The 1934 vacation fad is to enjoy yourself under the worst possible conditions.

We heard from a pal down in Papua among the head hunters. He is still in one piece like a collar-button. The next time we hear from him he will be a group picture.

Four young and intrepid collegians sailed yesterday for Europe on a screen door. As they were the brightest boys in their class you can imagine what the others will do.

The last word we got from Ripley he was headed straight for the savages of Formosa. The Formosa cats are mean and organized. One swipe of their machetes and you are converted into a pair of book ends.

Floyd Gibbons will summer in the Manchurian riots. He sweetens his coffee with trouble and loves to cross Siberia on a rented camel. Under a new agreement with the Universal News Service, Floyd will send his expense accounts to Prof. Einstein.

We haven't heard from Frank Buck since he wrestled with a boa constrictor in Bangaway. We don't want to play quoits with a rock python. It makes too many ringers on one throw.

Wouldn't be surprised if some college professor started after Dillinger with a dollar camera. You can have a nice time down on the Amazon with the Jivaro skull skrinkers. Every Jivaro needs three skulls for his billiard table. Think how bad it would be if they were pool sharks.

An Eastern scientist will take up his abode during July in an Africa tree. His neighbors will be seventeen thousand monkeys. Then he will write a book about them without fear of contradiction. Seventeen thousand monkeys make a large class. He will be in a nice spot, when they start playing basket ball with coconuts.

Of course, you know that all those trips wind up in lecture tours and moving pictures. Times have changed since Burton Holmes knocked us off our seats with intrepid stereopticon slides of the Paris vegetable market. Now, the American public demands exciting wild beasts and terrific struggles between the monarchs of the jungle. Hollywood will pay a million dollars for a picture of a python swallowing a hippopotamus without Hollandaise sauce.

It takes practice. But it can be done.

ODD FACTS

Boiling water, red in color, has been found in a mysterious lake situated in a steep-sided basin in the Andes, South America. Animal and plant life does not exist near this basin, which is supposed to be the crater of a semi-extinct volcano, the gases of which agitate the water.

Where mine shafts have to be sunk through quicksands or waterlogged ground it is now possible to "freeze" the ground, when the water is removed in solid masses.

Stated to be the smallest in the world, a manuscript in the Bodleian library at Oxford measures three-quarters of an inch square.

The Toll Question

South Hills Residents and County Commissioners Must Come to Agreement on Tube Charges.

Unless a committee representing South Hills residents and the County Commissioners can come to some amicable agreement respecting the subject of tolls on proposed new and improved traffic arteries, it appears the controversy will be laid in the laps of PWA officials in Washington.

An offer to present the protestants to the federal officials already has been made by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen in the event the projected conference with the commissioners proves fruitless. It will be unfortunate if the subject gets to Washington for adjudication. There will be no more chance of accord there than here, and the only result will be to jeopardize the major portion of the requested grant for public works in Allegheny County.

Nothing constructive is to be attained by mass meetings at which the County Commissioners speak in an atmosphere of conflict of opinion between themselves and South Hills residents. The decision to appoint a committee to sit down practically with the commissioners and discuss the problem is a wise one.

South of the Monongahela there is difference over the toll question among the residents. Representatives from boroughs and townships at a meeting in Carnegie welcomed the tolls at the same time residents of Dormont and Mt. Lebanon were warring with Commissioner C. M. Barr in a public meeting.

No one can have any cock-sure judgment on this question. The Dormont and Mt. Lebanon residents have a logical argument, even though the weight of majority opinion south of the rivers eventually may bear it down. There are big issues involved, matters of public interest involving the progress of the whole county for years to come, and those issues should be settled right here on a basis of the ultimate best for the majority to be affected

Almost unnoticed was a statement made Friday night by Commissioner William D. Mansfield in the same meeting which proved so stormy for Barr. He pointed out that if tolls were imposed, and if experience proves them too specifically burdensome, the bridges and tube improvements can be freed by bond issues. And another phase, not publicly discussed now by those applying for loans, but in the back of the minds of officials of communities throughout the nation, is the possibility that Congress within a very few years will forego a demand for payment of all of these local loans, and absorb them into the federal debt.

Sectional jealousies would play little part as a barrier in that proposal, for a majority of the congressional districts in the country have benefited.

This federal absorption is, of course, merely conjecture, and is no valid argument for tolls, but is a probability that some men who have been in touch with Washington believe eventually will become accomplished fact.

Postoffice Errors

New Ramp Plan Should Be Given Serious Consideration From Two Standpoints

The postoffice ramp shows either bad planning or complete lack of planning. It is objectionable from two standpoints.

First of all, serious traffic congestion will result from the present arrangement. The ramp now under construction will throw an increased volume of traffic at the intersection of Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue, a point which forms an undesirable bottle neck even under present conditions. From the Sun-Telegraph Building, where this is being written, two lines of cars can be seen extending from Seventh avenue almost to the Seventeenth street incline.

The second objection rises from the fact that the ramp is unsightly. It is utterly ridiculous to build a beautiful limestone building and then to spoil it with a hideous concrete appendage which does not conform to the general design.

A new ramp plan, favored by Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston, would include widening of Bigelow boulevard and an under pass at Seventh avenue and Bigelow boulevard. The federal government is being asked to make an additional appropriation of $600,000 to be added to the amount the city would spend for the traffic improvement.

The new plan is entirely feasible and would reduce traffic congestion instead of increasing it.

School Economy

Centralization—Not New Taxes—Provides Solution Of Pennsylvania's Education Problem.

No American citizen begrudges the intelligent and efficient expenditure of money for schools.

At the same time, there are few taxpayers who will not agree with the objection of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce to the institution of income or sales taxes for school subsidies until some attention is given to sensible economies which can be secured without the slightest impairment of educational facilities.

The chamber recommends consolidation of the state's 2,584 school districts into a series of fewer units and the centralization of tax collections for school purposes. That means cutting costs, improving the schools, reducing the tax drain.

Depositors Unpaid

Banking Department Still Delays Action on Bank of America Trust Company

Another week has passed and the State Banking Department has taken no action on the Bank of America Trust Company of Pittsburgh. The institution was placed on a restricted basis on April 20 following the discovery of irregularities in its management.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will pay all deposits up to $2,500 within 24 hours of the appointment of a receiver. Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon has said that he wishes to give stockholders a chance to reorganize the institution. It seems certain that ample time has been given for such action.

Dr. Gordon should explain just why some definite action on the bank has not been taken.

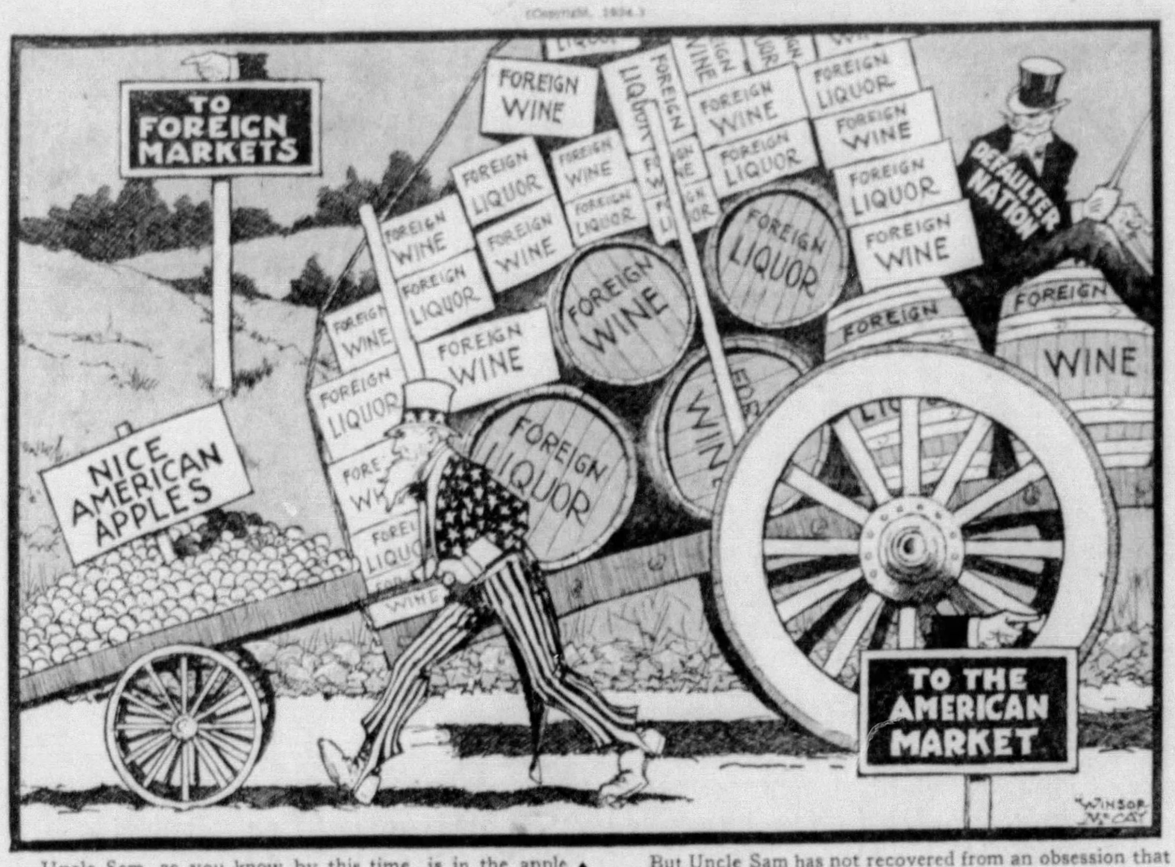
'To Market, to Market---'



Uncle Sam, as you know by this time, is in the apple business.

In order to sell a few more apples in Europe he has agreed to let defaulter France sell a lot of wines and liquors in this country.

Of course, Uncle Sam has first-class wines of his own to sell—wines which cost his own people less money than the foreign wines cost, quality for qualtiy. And American wines ought to have preference in the American market.

But Uncle Sam has not recovered from an obsession that everything is all wrong unless he is buying and selling in Europe—mostly BUYING.

So France, having defaulted the war debts, gets what France wants by merely making a new "agreement" with Uncle Sam.

And while Uncle Sam is trading APPLES for PENNIES in the foreign market France will be trading EXPENSIVE WINES for DOLLARS over here.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 25.—In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: Driving home through the produce district of First avenue, John DeCarlo, the chauffeur, pointed to a hotel sign: "Ninety Beds for Farmers Only." He observed: "I guess they don't want any wise guys." Humor from crowded Mulberry street flagstones!

At dinner we heard a deal about George Raft, the cinema arriviste. He is out of a hard-boiled strip of Tenth avenue and formative years were spent knocking about cabaret dives. Conscious of grammatical lapses, he is mute among strangers. With pals he expresses himself vigorously in side-mouth clips.

He is a human sponge for the cry story and comparatively big money slips through his hands. In spite of oily, dancing-man prettiness, he is nimble with fists and will let fly if annoyed. Someone told, too, of Bob Hague's collection of watches. By the scores, owning one that belonged to Charles and Mary Lamb.

Movie discussions remind me no up-and-coming player should indulge trashy theatricalisms. Like Loretta Young miscast in that "Born to Be Bad." It leaves scars. S. T. in from Paris said Frank Jay Gould is selling all his French investments, getting out in a high rage at measly treatment.

Dispiriting to hear Ed Howe say that after crusading against evil and bad taste most of his life he might well have saved his breath. It got nowhere. In disproof Roscoe Peacock points to Henry Mencken and Sinclair Lewis as deflaters of Babbittry. Yet I hear Mencken does not believe the Rotarian spirit he so hooted, is as foolish as the Brain Trust nonsense and actually believes the professors must be eliminated or there will be a march on Washington. This day I installed complete the works of R. L. Stevenson.

M. read after breakfast a comfortable essay of Montaigne's. I was impressed by this: "To what end do we so arm ourselves with this harness of science. Let us look down upon the poor that we see scattered upon the face of the earth . . . from these nature every day extracts effects of constancy and patience, more pure and manly than those we inquisitively study in the schools . . . The very names by which they call diseases, sweeten and mollify them. The pleurisy is but a stitch and as they gently name, they patiently endure them." Reading Montaigne despairs one to write. He does it with such exquisite simplicity. Anna Held, Jr., writes me she has Harry Silvey's chair from the Cafe de la Paix at her up-the-Hudson place.

Bide Dudley tells me about Damon Runyon's amazing chauffeur, most alert of Broadway's human divining rods, en rapport with all subtleties of the street, talking the brisk argot and knowing first hand the gossip. The flood of sidewalk cafes must touch off a miserere for roof gardens. There's only one roof garden I ever cared about—The Majestic. L. V. and M. and I tried dining at a gaily parasoled terrasse. Very much old hat. Stuffily paced. Service so-so. Everybody seemed to order sliced tomatoes, cold assorted meats and iced tea. We, too. No wine buckets visible. The Irving Berlins seemed especially animated. Maybe a new song theme blowing across the latitudes. Whitney Warren, alone, with hair in wild wavy toss. J. P. McEvoy and Morris Gest still cling to those fuzzy floppy Fedoras. But no one has the courage for a pearl derby since Raymond Hitchcock's day.

Our handsome waiter, a juvenile Warren Williams with hair at temples in broad patent-leather swipes, confided he was a Georgian prince and L. V. thought maybe he could live it down by honest toil and sending money to his folk.

She had heard Mdivani was pronounced "Deeoney." At a Paul Whiteman fiesta Estelle Taylor told she sipped a cup of tea before singing. Tannic acid contracts the muscles, preventing throat nervousness. Her singing is rather goodish. A magazine query asks a jot for a symposium on emotional fluctuations. Wakeful hours the blackest pessimism is 3 p. m. Fluffiest optimism just before lunch. Midnight optimism usually alcoholic. The world's most intelligent thinking is done in the bath and over breakfast coffee. Disraeli said evenings, between 5 and 6, daily saved the world from atheism. LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

So Now You've Graduated—

So now you've graduated? That's great; salute! And you're looking things over.

Not much to look at, are they? What a tough world for a youngster to make a start in? We Oldsters have certainly made a mess of things. I don't blame you for feeling sore—for thinking that you've been two-timed.

For, naturally, you feel you've a right to a better deal than this—the sort of chance young people used to have. At least a decent toe-hold on the ladder. Instead, everything's haywire. Stupidity and crookedness on every side! "Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

So where does that leave YOU? Just what can you expect to get, facing a mess like that? Where, out of all that wreckage, can you find the makings of a Big Time Career?

In short, you're asking just what young people have always asked—"What does life hold for me?" But there's a note in your voice which the other generation never had—a shrillness and hardness; a defiant resentment. You know you're in for a battle, and you're mad about it.

That's right; you are in for a battle. And there's no use telling you that it's going to be any picnic . . . or handing you any Pollyanna maxims about the PRETTY SILVER LINING in the BIG, DARK CLOUDS. If you're only a quarter as smart as both you and I think you are, you'd greet that sort of palaver with a bronx cheer.

For you know that you're up against a tough proposition. It's going to be a hundred per cent harder for you to make good than it was for your grandfather. You'll have to face hazards and handicaps—challenges and competition—of which he never dreamed. And you'll have to do it without much help.

The world of grand-dad's youth was still jogging along pretty much as it had done for the last 500 years, with about the same notion and about the same tempo. The old programs and laws were still holding. It didn't require superhuman initiative or audacity for a youngster to win through, provided he was still willing to work hard and mind his step.

But all that has changed. Of that old order there's hardly a cow trail left. You'll have to build your world as the first man did—from the slime up. And what slime!

The primordial hog wallow was a cozy bed compared to what you must face. Not just forthright brutality and wickedness—they are fairly easy to recognize and fight—but all the 57 varieties of spineless viciousness, complacent cowardice and self-righteous cruelty. And the finer and braver you are, the sicker and sadder you'll be as you strive to find your place in this smeared up world.

Nor would I be honest if I told you that, by some clever hocus pocus, you could avoid the pain, disillusion and tragedy of life. It can't be done! You are not that smart—"the master of your fate" in the sense that you can mold outward circumstances to your desire. In spite of your best efforts you may be stripped of money, friends, health and reputation by forces beyond your control.

So many a time you'll want to cry—"to the deuce with it all; What's the use of trying? Can I possibly get anything worth while out of a mess like this?"

YES, YOU CAN.

No matter what grief you're about to face—and it'll be plenty—and you can always bank on this:

LIFE CAN BE WORTH WHILE. YOU CAN FIND THOSE THINGS IN IT WHICH YOU WISH TO FIND. IF YOU WANT TO FIND DECENCY AND GENTLENESS, HONESTY AND GALLANT COURAGE, CLEAN HAPPINESS AND HIGHER ADVENTURE, YOU CAN HAVE THEM ALL THE DAYS OF YOUR LIFE. IT'S ALL UP TO YOU!

How can you find those things in life?

BY PUTTING THEM INTO LIFE YOURSELF.

LIFE IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT.

You don't realize that yet. You think that life is something entirely outside yourself . . . something which you can achieve or possess, as you'd possess a piece of fine furniture or an acre of land. It isn't. The life which you see, hear, touch, taste and smell is merely scenery . . . actually as unreal as a mirage.

Over that life you have but limited control. Only those things which you actually experience in your own spirit are real. BUT OVER THAT INNER LIFE YOU HAVE UNLIMITED CONTROL.

LIFE IS AS YOU MAKE IT.

A thousand men may face the same scenery—go through the same incident—but each man gets a different phase of LIFE. Each man gets from experience that which his own nature desires to get.

One man finds weariness where another man finds inspiration. One man finds joy where another man finds hardship. One man finds boredom where another man beholds the glory of God unveiled!

YOU WILL GET OUT OF LIFE WHAT YOU PUT INTO IT.

YOU WILL FIND IN LIFE WHAT YOU SEEK.

What does life hold for you? It holds whatever you are determined it shall hold. It will be as base or as beautiful as you wish it to be.

And, when all's said and done, no man can either help or hinder you. It's up to you. You hit the trail alone!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Dollar Princess — Or Beggar Maid?

One of the strange phenomena of human nature is a "poor-little-rich-girl's" optimistic belief that she will be married for LOVE.

* * *

Of course, there have been green roses and five-legged calves. And there HAVE been penniless young men who have fallen desperately in love with beautiful heiresses, and married them in spite of their millions. But there is no truth in the old adage that it is as easy for a man to love a rich girl as to love a poor one. It's infinitely HARDER!

Somehow, instead of brightening up a woman's charms, a background of gold seems merely to dim them to the point of invisibility. Her fortune so dazzles a man that no matter how beautiful she is, he scarcely SEES it.

* * *

No matter how brilliant her mind or her wit, it can never outshine the glitter of her father's moneybags; and no matter how lovable and sweet her disposition, it can never rival the sweetness of Daddy's "sugar."

* * *

That's why the "beggar maid" always catches King Cophetua—and why the Lucky-Little-Poor-Girl stands the best chances of getting a faithful, tender, devoted Prince Charming. When a man marries a gel, who hasn't even a fat salary check to sustain her, it MUST be love! Because he is practically signing up to keep his nose to the grindstone for the rest of his life, and his only reward is the bundle of curls, ruffles and lipstick which he holds in his arms.

* * *

It's funny, but it's true, that most girls look prettier in bungalow aprons or cheap slacks than in the fussy things they wear on "dress parade." And when a man's mind is not on Bradstreet's, he has more time to enjoy a girl's repartee.

* * *

There is no blazing background and no halo of gold dollars to hide the sparkle in her eyes or to blind him to the flash of her smile or the glint of her hair. She dosn't have to live up to a dozen trunks full of clothes—or to try to distract his gaze from her jewels to her dimples. What there is of her is "all girl."

* * *

Besides, when a man is trying to work out the amount of dowry he'll collect and the best way to spend it, it's pretty hard to listen to a woman's wit. Her MONEY does the talking!

Those are just half-a-dozen chances which the poor girl has over the rich girl, of getting a real lover and real happiness along with a husband! To be born with a golden spoon in your mouth may have been lucky, ONCE; but in these days, it's just a handicap!

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

Dancing in the Darkness

Dancing in the darkness
To a tinkling tune,
Dancing in the darkness,
Waiting for the moon;
Joy is overflowing
Through the wine-sweet hours,
With the night-wind blowing
Scent of jasmine flowers.

Dancing in the darkness
To a husky croon,
Dancing in the darkness,
Waiting for the moon;
Hearts are brimmed with blisses,
Dowered with delight,
Stealing carefree kisses
In the starlit night.

Dancing in the darkness
To the song of June,
Dancing in the darkness,
Waiting for the moon!

Congress Investigates To Gather Votes

By James T. Williams, Jr.

FOR THE unusually large number of congressional investigations now under way or soon to start, "there's a reason."

This is a congressional campaign year when the entire membership of the House of Representatives and one-thirg of the membership of the Senate will be elected.

This means that the hunger for patronage and publicity was widespread, during the Congress just ended, at both ends of the Capitol. An investigation by a congressional committee or subcommittee provides both, especially for the legislator with enough political pull-to get himself named chairman.

The chairman of an investigating committee, under the rules of the two houses, is allowed to control the expenditure of the public money voted to finance the inquiry. He also directs the course of the investigation and wields a large influence upon its publicity.

These three powers can be effectively utilized to tie up votes back home and to establish an advantageous trading basis with the administration in power. And votes, now as always in a congressional campaign year, are the dominant factor in nearly everything a Congress does or leaves undone.

According to George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania, who lectured on the subject before the University of Virginia Law School after he left the Senate, Congressional investigations are generally of one of three types:

"Of one type is a sincere search after truth in a field clearly within legislative jurisdiction. Of another type is the inquiry launched to inflict political harm on a person or party.

"Of still a third type is the investigation begun in good faith but later prostituted to promote the ambition of an unscrupulous chairman."

* * *

Authority Records Many Investigations

SENATOR PEPPER quotes a careful student of the subject as finding, after a painstaking search of the records, that from 1789 to 1925, 285 investigations were launched by standing or select committees of the House and Senate. This authority says:

"They have disturbed the peace of every administration. Only three congresses have denied themselves this indulgence."

The favorite target for this form of political probing is the War Department, which is now under fire from the popguns of the House Committee on Military Affairs.

Congressional committees have scrutinized the conduct of all wars in which the United States has been engaged except the war with Spain. Investigation of that conflict was forestalled by President McKinley when he appointed the Dodge commission to make the inquiry.

Up until 1925, the Treasury had been investigated 54 times, the Interior Department 21 times—chiefly the Indian Bureau. Both the Navy and the Postoffice departments and the government printing office have also been called upon to face the fire of a congressional investigation.

The first President to be investigated was John Adams and there have been 22 such investigations since that time, the last one being during the presidency of Woodrow Wilson.

In the earlier days of the republic, the House ranked the Senate in the number of investigations made. Latterly the Senate has become "the grand inquisitor."

It was a senatorial inquisition which Senator Black conducted during the last Congress as chairman of a special committee. It resulted in the cancellation of all domestic airmail contracts without due process of law, in the temporary wrecking of the federal airmail, in the crippling of American air transport and in sending to an unnecessary death 12 young pilots of the Army Air Corps.

* * *

Guilt of Foulois Yet to Be Proved

THIS colossal blunder naturally shocked the country. It is unlikely that such a blunder will soon be repeated, in spite of the fact that a Congressional subcommittee, imitating the course of the Black inquisition, has attempted to stampede another member of the President's cabinet into destroying the morale of the Army and further crippling its effectiveness by dismissing the chief of the Army Air Corps, without giving him that day in court which is the birthright of every American.

The guilt or innocence of Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, United States Army, has yet to be proven by due process of law. But by insisting that he is entitled to a presumption of innocence until a court finds him guilty of the charges brought against him by the sub-committee of the House Committee on Military Affairs, the Secretary of War has shown that he is more interested in upholding the Constitution and the law than he is in currying favor with Congressional politicians seeking re-election by means of a so-called Congressional investigation.

Marne Anniversary Recalls McAlexander's Gallant Stand—Scientists Seek Carnivorous Tree

By Edwin C. Hill

THE recent primary in Oregon and the approaching anniversary of the Second Battle of the Marne bring to mind a man who figured in both, Ulysses Grant McAlexander. I imagine that this name is known to very few of our adults. Yet, in the history books of the children of this generation and of the generations to come, it will be bracketed with those of Thomas Stonewall Jackson and George H. Thomas, "The Rock of Chickamauga."

It was as Col. McAlexander, commanding the Thirty-eighth Infantry of the Third Division, that this American soldier won for himself his niche alongside those two military heroes. He and his men stood in the trenches 40 miles from Paris on July 15, 1918, when Ludendorff and Hindenberg launched their supreme effort, the blow that was to win the war for Germany.

Marshal Foch saw "a great danger of the war being lost." The French and British were exhausted, their ranks depleted by four months of incessant fighting and crushing defeats. The Americans, virtually untried, were the sole hope. If they should fail, all was lost. The Germans came, wave after wave of shock troops, seasoned fighting men, rested and ready for the grand thrust.

The French gave way before the onslaught. The Americans stood their ground. Attacked on three sides, the Thirty-eighth Infantry fought it out and piled up regiment after regiment of the flower of the German Army. Paris and Rheims were beyond the Marne. Between them and the Kaiser was the Third Division of the American Expeditionary Forces and "no German soldier," to quote the official report, "crossed the road from Fossoy to Crezancy except as a prisoner of war."

* * *

Gen. Pershing Recounts Story

GEN. PERSHING is not given to enthusiastic over-statement. In his history of the American armies in France, the former commander-in-chief does not devote much space to anything but the bare facts. However, when it came to setting down the happenings of July 15, 1918, we find Pershing using these words:

"On this occasion a single regiment of the Third Division wrote one of the most brilliant pages in our military annals. It prevented the crossing at certain points on its front while, on either flank the Germans, who had gained a footing, pressed forward. Our men, firing in three directions, met the German attacks with counter-attacks at critical points and succeeded in throwing two German divisions into complete confusion. Men from three different enemy divisions were captured by the Third in the fighting of this day. By noon of the 16th, the attacks against its line came to a halt."

McAlexander, now a retired major general, won't be the next Governor of Oregon. He lost out in the large field in the Republican primaries for that nomination. But he must find solace in the knowledge that while the nation would forget him soon as his excellency, the Governor, it will remember him always as "The Rock of the Marne."

Expedition Seeks Girl-Eating Tree

COMES an amazing yarn from Madagascar—the blood-curdling tale of a palm tree which devours native girls. Captain De La Motte Hurst of the British Royal Geographical Society is leading a party to Madagascar to find that tree. The scientists seem to be taking it seriously and they are determined at all events, to find out if it is a gruesome fact. The blood-thirsty tree is described as similar to a colossal pineapple, eight feet tall, with tendrils as thick as a man's arms, and leaves lined with claws or spikes.

According to the tall tale, it yields a sap that is intoxicating. In sacrificial ceremonies natives, drunk with the sap of the demoniacal tree, force a girl to climb its trunk. She is seized by the tendrils and claws and is in five days reduced to bones. Such stories were never heard outside the shivery romances of Sir Rider Haggard, but Captain Hurst says that natives have often told him of this girl eating monster of the forest.

He's determined to find it and to exterminate it if man can do the job. What cruel things Nature can do!

In the woods of Maine, I myself, have seen at work the devilish plants we call fly traps. They have hairy, sticky leaves which attract insects, drop them into a deep cup (its stomach) and eat them at leisure. And out in California, I have seen a pitcher plant, with a head like that of a poisonous snake. It is said to have an appetite for rabbits and baby deer, but botanists assert that it traps and murders insects only, with a special partiality for butterflies.

I doubt very much if science even today is aware of all the strange and terrible things that hide in the fastnesses of the jungles or lurk on the bottom of the sea. Personally, I have always believed that sea serpents do exist and that some day there will be proof of it.

If Capt. Hurst and his party of scientific adventurers really find, in the mysterious depths of the jungles of Madagascar, that horrible plant thing that lives on human flesh, then I shall continue to believe that somewhere, in the black darkness of the unplumbed ocean depths, there are survivals of those great reptiles that lorded it over land and sea long before man ever drew the breath of life.
